UN to Consider Cyprus Crisis Monday, NATO Is Threatened

Invasion Threat Is Reported

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Cyprus tried and failed to get an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council Saturday night on grounds she faced an imminent threat of Turkish invasion.

A U.N. spokesman said a council meeting about Cyprus was "tentatively set for Monday afternoon but it can be convened earlier if developments warrant."

The Cypriot bid for an "emergency meeting" came after Britain requested an "early meeting" of the 11-nation council to resolve a "dangerous situation" in Cyprus, scene of fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots. The United States endorsed the British move.

The U.S. statement made clear that the United States and Britain still were trying to get agreement on an expanded international peacemaking force for Cyprus from the Greek Cypriot president of the country, Archbishop Makarios.

Later, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant appealed to Cyprus,

Allies Side With Own Nationals

LONDON (UPI) — The Cyprus crisis poses a deadly threat to the strategically vital southern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The two Allied nations directly involved in the conflict are Turkey and Greece, both representing the pillars in NATO's defense front in southeast Europe and the major bulwark against Soviet penetration into the Mediterranean.

These nations now stand on opposite sides in the Cyprus conflict.

Turkey backs the Turkish minority on the island and apparently is determined to carry that support to the point of armed intervention.

Greece sides with the Greek majority of the island. Greece has been cautious about giving public backing lately to an earlier demand from Greek Cypriot extremists for the island's union with the Greek mainland.

Turkey, in addition to partnership in NATO, is also one of the pillars in CENTO, the Central Treaty Organization set up as a pro-Western defense alignment in the Near East and including Britain, Iran and Pakistan.

Hoffa Granted Acquittal on One Jury Charge

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa was freed of one jury-tampering charge Saturday, but was directed to begin his defense against three other counts Monday.

U. S. District Court Judge Frank Wilson, acting at the government's request, entered a directed verdict of acquittal to a charge that one juror in Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville was offered $10,000 to vote to acquit him then.

Chief prosecutor James R. Neal had requested the verdict after the government rested Friday. He said the court's rulings had prevented the prosecution's proving the alleged offer to Nashville insurance man James C. Tippens.

Wilson agreed, saying evidence of Hoffa's connection with the alleged incident was insufficient to warrant submitting it to the jury.

However, he overruled defense motions for directed verdicts of acquittal for Hoffa and his five codefendants on the remaining three counts.

Hoffa is expected to testify later in the trial, but a defense spokesman said Nicholas J. Tweel, Huntington, W. Va., businessman, would be the first defense witness.

Parties Split Over Property Assessment Bill

By STEPHEN M. AUG

DENVER (AP) — A bill revising Colorado's property tax laws was passed 21-10 by the State Senate Saturday, on a vote that wandered widely across party lines.

The measure was attacked by its opponents as one which harms the individual homeowner and benefits wealthy utility corporations.

Those who favored the measure said it would tax all classes of taxpayers on an equal basis.

The bill is certain to go to a House-Senate conference committee.

As it stands, the measure would assess most property in the state at 30 per cent of its

Cascade Citizens Urged To Get Water Rate Facts

By DONNA LOGAN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The proposed water district for Cascade would mean "maximum water rates, higher taxation and eventually lower property values" for home owners in that Ute Pass community, according to a pamphlet released Friday by the Cascade Town Company.

A water district would hike the average annual water bill from $60 to $185 by this May, the pamphlet said.

A public forum will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Cascade Fire House. All interested persons, regardless of whether they are members of the Cascade Property Owner's Association, are urged to attend. George Knox, association vice president, will moderate the discussion in the place of association president Mel Schumacher.

Schumacher is expected to lead opposition to the proposed district, while Bert Still, steering chairman, will speak in favor of it. Bob Kirchner, representative of the Denver bonding firm of Kirchner and Company; and engineers from the consulting firm of Henningson, Durham and Richardson, will also be present to answer questions.

Cusack's pamphlet, mailed Friday to water company customers, emphasized nine major points pertaining to the water district. They are:

"1. A water district is financed by tax-exempt bonds, a lien against all property, and currently sell at a 2.75 per cent basis for a 10-year maturity.

"2. Because there is no risk involved, and no sales expense, water bond underwriters are willing to gamble the outlay of considerable money for initial expenses and promise commissions (called finder's fees) to local citizens for their political help.

"3. A "gentlemen's agreement" is drawn up to insure the bond underwriters getting the "deal" at the price and terms prescribed, the engineering company their charges, and the "steering committee" members will be elected as initial water commissioners.

"4. Initial water commissioners can serve without compensation, can also vote themselves salaries and expenses at any time; and short of outright

Soviet Party Ends Nikita's Farm Expansion

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Communist party's Central Committee ended a marathon plenary meeting Saturday by officially calling a halt to Premier Khrushchev's 10-year effort to increase farm production by expanding farmlands.

A resolution, adopted at the windup session of the six-day meeting, said the time had come to switch to modern intensive farming methods.

Paying tribute to Khrushchev's direction of farm policy, the resolution said that "In the last 10 years, much has been done for the advance of Soviet agriculture."

It called the Soviet leader's scheme for plowing up millions of acres of arid virgin lands of Kazakhstan "an exceptionally important contribution to the progress of all branches of agriculture."

The document, published in the Soviet government paper Izvestia, called on agricultural workers to double and treble

France-Germany Agree on Latin America Aid

PARIS (AP) — France and West Germany agreed Saturday to pool their economic aid to South America but remained at odds on policy toward the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This emerged as President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, and a group of French and West German cabinet ministers, ended a two-day summit conference—one of a semi-annual series under the French-West German cooperation treaty.

DeGaulle and Erhard, according to West German sources, agreed to join forces in sending economic, technical and cultural assistance to the nations

Master of Girl Crews Being Sued

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) —Lee Quinn, skipper of a sailing ketch with an all-girl crew, has been sued for divorce in San Jose, Calif. Mrs. Mary Ann Quinn had said earlier they were parting as friends.

Quinn previously announced that he planned to marry one of his crew members, Mrs. Bernice Berkson, who filed for divorce in San Diego Monday from her wealthy husband, John.

Quinn made trips from San Francisco to Honolulu, and Honolulu to Tahiti, aboard his ketch the Neophyte, with only the girls to keep him company.

Smoking, Quitting Has Virtue

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A heart researcher said Saturday it may be better for the heart in some cases to have smoked and stopped than never to have smoked at all.

He said people who give up cigaret smoking apparently have less heart trouble than those who never have smoked.

Dr. Henry I. Russek, president of the Russek Foundation, Staten Island, N.Y., announced results of a survey of professional men at the annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

Russek said a survey of 14,000 professional men showed that more than seven per cent of the nonsmokers had some kind of coronary trouble. Eleven per cent of the light smokers and 14 per cent of the heavy smokers had coronary disease. But less than three per cent of those who had quit reported any heart trouble.

Sentence Suspended, He Leaves

LUBLIN, Poland (AP) — Andrew Field, an American student charged with assaulting a Polish frontier guard was sentenced by a Polish court Saturday to eight months imprisonment. The sentence was suspended, however.

Field, 26, of Cambridge, Mass., and South Orange, N. J., was studying Russian literature in Moscow. His trial was at Lublin, in eastern Poland. Another charge of assaulting the officer was dropped.

On Jan. 21 he passed the Soviet-Polish frontier aboard the Moscow-Paris express train on his way to Paris for a vacation.

He quarreled with a border guard officer over the validity of his transit visa which, according to court evidence, was filled out incorrectly by the Polish Embassy in Moscow.

Field admitted that in the heat of the argument he shook the officer by the lapels of his coat. The assault of an officer on duty is punishable in Poland with imprisonment up to five years.

Field could have obtained a new Polish visa at Terespol, the border station. He would have had to interrupt his journey and continue it by the next train a few hours later, but he refused to leave the train.

He was arrested at the Polish-

How can America afford its Oswalds?

That was the question asked Saturday night by Mark Evans, vice president of the National Capital Area Council of the Boy Scouts, Washington, who spoke at the Scouter's Recognition Dinner held in the Broadmoor International Center.

In answering his own question, Evans pointed to Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn, who was the first American to orbit the earth in a space craft.

He said America can well afford to invest its time and money in boys who grow up to be men such as Glenn, who was an active Boy Scout in his boyhood.

He also pointed out that Lee Harvey Oswald, the man who was accused of murdering the

Ryerson Gets Hawaii Tickets

Ray Ryerson, local Scout executive now beginning his 20th year of service here, Saturday night was given a special award for his services.

Ryerson was presented with the tickets for a round-trip, eight-day, all-expenses paid trip to Hawaii for him and his wife, to be used at his own convenience.

The award was presented to Ryerson after he had finished delivering the short "Scout's Executive Minute" speech that he gives at each annual recognition dinner.

The award came as a surprise and was presented to him for the Pikes Peak Council of Boy Scouts by a three-man committee composed of Willis Becker, Orville Trainor and Bill Henderson.

In his talk, Ryerson cited the friendships he has experienced here in 19 years of work.

Scout Bill Mack of Troop 80, Air Force Academy reported to the group for the Scout members and said thanks to the adults who have done the work for the past year. He said the local Scout movement has the largest number of youngsters enrolled in history.

State's Spending Bill May Near $140 Million

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP)—The Long Appropriations Bill, setting spending next fiscal year from the state's hard-pressed general fund at $140 million, will make its appearance in the Colorado Legislature within the next few days.

Republican leaders tentatively plan to offer it Tuesday, but the timing may be switched at the last minute.

Actual spending called for in the bill — although all items are not included in the measure itself — is $139.8 million, an informed source said.

This is about $200,000 above the amount recommended by Gov. John A. Love, but the Joint Budget Committee is including a $519,000 appropriation for junior colleges which was not in the governor's budget message. A separate bill already has been introduced by the three House members of the Joint Budget Committee to cover the extra aid for junior colleges. It is to reimburse them for funds they failed to get when the Supreme Court declared a tuition bill unconstitutional.

This means that the Joint Budget Committee recommendations for other spending are slightly below levels suggested by Love, although the informed source said there are numerous variations between the governor's proposals and those of the lawmakers.

Introduction of the measure is certain to precipitate a rush for final adjournment of the 1964 legislative session. Usually the windup comes within 10 days of the time the bill is presented. Often an effort is made to keep the legislature meeting every day—without even Sundays off—from the time the bill is offered until it has passed both the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Republican leaders controlling the legislature are driving for a windup of the 1964 session by Leap Year Day—Saturday, Feb. 29. Most of them have given up hope the session can end by Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22.

The 1964 session seems certain to be the longest "short" session held by the Colorado Legislature since the practice of meeting in election years was begun in 1952.

The previous record is 45 days in 1960, from Jan. 6 through Feb. 19. Through Saturday the session this year had lasted 39 days. It opened Jan. 8.

The length of other session: 1952, Jan. 2-Feb. 9; 1954, Jan. 6-Feb. 13; 1956, Jan. 4-Feb. 10; 1958, Jan. 8-Feb. 16; and 1962, Jan. 3-Feb. 15.

One reason for the extension of this year's session may be an increase from 120 days to 160 days each two years, the number of days which lawmakers can receive their per diem allowance. This will expire March 12 for 82 of the 100 lawmakers. Eighteen holdover senators ceased drawing their allowance at the beginning of February.

The Long Appropriations Bill draws its name from its length, because it contains appropriations for most state departments, institutions and colleges.

It is worked up by the six-member Joint Budget Committee and technically is only a recommendation to the legislature. However, few major changes ever are made in the budget group's decisions. The committee is made up of three members of the House—two from the majority party and one from the minority—and the same number of senators, split the same way. The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee always is chairman of the Joint Budget Committee. The Senate Finance Committee chairman is always vice chairman of the joint group.

Membership of the committee this year is Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, chairman; Sen. Harry Locke, R-Hartsel, vice chairman; Reps. M. R. Douglass, R-Grand Junction, and Stan Caywood, D-Walsenburg; and Sens. Joe Shoemaker, R-Denver, and George Brown, D-Denver.

Introduction of the bill will come when the three House members of the Joint Budget Committee offer it. It will be referred to the Appropriations Committee for handling.

Wasson High School News

By CAROL JENSEN

"The Male Animal," Wasson's junior class play, will be presented the evenings of February 20 and 21 in the Wasson Auditorium. The play, a satirical comedy written by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, is being directed by Homer Paris, Wasson's dramatic coach. Price for the play will be an activity ticket or one dollar per person. Students with activity tickets are urged to use them, for the junior class will receive ten cents toward financing the Junior-Senior Prom in May for each ticket punched. Most of the proceeds from the play will go to help the junior class finance this annual dance. Money will be used for the decorations, the band and the invitations for each senior student.

"Leisure-time Activities" a the "Adolescent and the Automobile" will be the topics for discussion at Wasson's last Parents' Discussion Group to be held Feb. 25. These meetings are held in the auditorium and usually concern problems facing teenagers and their parents. Last Tuesday night the discussion dealt with "Problems of Boys and Girls" and a panel of students from the various grades at Wasson led the discussion. Originally this group only included parents, but Mrs. Hermina Kilgore, dean of girls and head of the discussion groups, felt that the meetings could be of value to students also.

Last Friday was Teacher Appreciation Day at Wasson. This special day is designed to enable the students to show their appreciation of their teachers by taking their classes for them. Students interested in teaching a class asked the teacher for an application blank and the teacher then picked the students who should teach. Friday was also a dress up day for the students, more so because of Teacher Appreciation Day than because of Valentine's Day.

During the latter part of the assembly, the candidates for Sweetheart Queen were introduced to the student body. These girls are Misses Pat Bailey, LeeAnn Bashore, Nancy Jewell, Judy Kennedy, and Janie Pryor. Students voted, as usual, for their top three choices. Ballots were counted Friday after school by the records committee.

One of the five queen candidates reigned at the annual Sweetheart Dance on Saturday night. Social committee, headed by Scott Brown, decorated the boys' gym for this occasion. Those couples present were able to take home a momento of the dance in the form of a paper heart with the boy's and girl's name printed on it. Music was provided by tapes, which were arranged by Rich Hovey.

Students wishing to go on the trip to Colorado State University in Fort Collins on Feb. 25 paid their four dollar fee last Friday. These seniors must bring a note from home on Monday and give this permission note to their counselor. The counselors will give them a note to take to all their teachers, who will sign it according to their eligibility to go grade-wise. Any students wishing to have a refund for the trip's cost must do so before or on February 19. The trip, planned for Feb. 25, is designed to acquaint those students interested in attending CSU with the school campus and some of the classrooms and instructors. The day has been planned with tours and special events.

Second semester council members will be installed this Wednesday nigth in a special assembly. This installation is primarily designed for these council members and their parents, but other interested students may also attend.

Wasson's National Honor Society sponsor, Miss Francis Wallingford, and officers and members have been compiling the first semester honor roll. The honor roll begins with grade averages of 3.25 and up. Honorable mention is 3.25; honors is 3.5; and high honors is 3.75.

A meeting was called by Miss Wallingford last Wednesday to determine how many members would be interested in attending a special conference for the State National Honor Society members on Feb. 29.

The meeting is being sponsored by the University of Colorado and will be composed of panel discussions and assemblies.

County Chapter For Retarded Children to Meet

Mrs. Raymond Edquist, president of the El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children, Inc. has announced that the subject of the February meeting will be "What can your agency do to help the parents of a retarded child?"

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, in the First Congregational Church, at the corner of Tejon and St. Vrain Streets.

Parents of children with problems are urged to come to the meeting to hear what help Colorado Springs has to offer and to make friends with professional people from these agencies:

Richard Olson, The Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, which includes Hope House and the Sheltered Workshop, Everett Scott of the Colorado State Department of Rehabilitation, Miss Bernice Kennedy of the Child Welfare Department, Kenneth Olson of Goodwill Industries, Mrs. Hubert Coleman of the Red Cross Monitors and Dr. Kenneth Dumars, pediatrician of the Penrose Chromosome Laboratory. A short speech describing each agency will be followed by questions from parents. Doctors, teachers, and social workers and clergymen are also invited to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Edquist stated that the March Retarded Children's Association meeting will be devoted to special education.

K-O Polio Effort Enters Final Series Today

Today is K-O Polio Sunday, the final in a series of three. Type Three Sabin oral vaccine will be administered by mouth to residents in 51 locations in the Pikes Peak region. Clinics will be open from 11:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Under the direction of the El Paso County Medical Society, clinics will operate with the volunteer assistance of doctors, ing home residents during the PTA members and others. Because of the assistance of these volunteers the serum will be administered free of charge to administered free of charge to those who cannot afford to pay. The majority of residents will make a 25 cent per dose donation to offset costs of the program.

Sabin vaccine is advised to everyone by the Medical Society because it gives long-term, probably lifetime protection from polio and it eliminates carriers. Some healthy people can transmit polio to others. There is no maximum age limit. A mobile unit will take the serum to nursing hom eresidents during the next week.

Infants over three months of age may receive the serum. Those who were two young for the previous doses or residents who missed earlier dose may take serum thru the City County Health Department or a private physician. Six weeks is needed between doses for maximum effectiveness, according to Dr. William Stone, chairman of the K-O Polio program.

Clinics will be located in the following schools:

Local Stations To Carry Middle East Discussion

A representative of the United Arab Republic and an U.S. State Department official discuss the possibility of stability in the Middle East on the third "Great Decisions" radio program which will be broadcast over three Colorado Springs radio stations — on KFMH, today at 9:30 p.m.; on KSHS, on Monday, at 7 p.m.; and on KRCC, on Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

The subject for discussion is "Egypt and the Middle East."

Phillips Talbot, U.S. assistant secretary of state for the Near East, one of the speakers on the program, contends that despite Arab factionalism and the bitter conflict between the United Arab Republic and Israel, stability is closer than it seems in the Middle East because the countries are establishing a firm economic base. "Economic stability will be followed by political stability," he says.

The other speaker on the program, Mohammad Habeb press counselor to the UAR, dessays the average Egyptian, as a result, is much better off than he was 10 years ago.

He says Egypt, because of its location and size, is the spokesman for the rest of the Arab countries. He blames Israel for much of the tension in the Middle East because "it does not cooperate with its neighbors. Israel makes up its own mind and takes action without regard for the effect of this action on others," says Habeb. He points to Israel's decision to build a dam on the Jordon as an example and contrasts it with Egypt's behavior when it conceived the idea of the Asway Dam. "Egypt," he says, "first negotiated an agreement with both Sudan and Ethiopia, thru which the Nile flows, before going ahead with the dam.

Next week's topic will be "Disarmament." Guest speaker on the radio program will be William C. Foster, a member of the United States disarmament team at Geneva.

Twenty-three radio stations throughout the state are carrying the "Great Decisions" radio programs.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Crystal Palaces

NEEDED: Photographers' hypo, a pan, a stove, some water.

DO THIS: Place the hypo in the pan, pour in a small amount of water, and heat on the stove. Stir constantly. When the hypo is dissolved, set the pan aside where it will not be disturbed.

WHY? As the water cools and evaporates, the hypo forms beautiful crystals, many of them in a form that suggests palaces.

Each salt has its own particular crystalline form. Try table salt in this experiment and see the difference.

19.5 Million Visits Made To Rocky Mountain Parks

An estimated 19.5 million visits were made to the 16 Rocky Mountain Region National Forests and Grasslands of Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas during 1963.

Regional Forester D. S. Nordwall, Denver, indicated a leveling off in recreational visits following the more than 20 per cent jump from 1961 to 1962. That sudden surge was partially attributed to Seattle World's Fair travel. The 1963 estimate, However, is an increase of 3.5 per cent over the 18.8 million record of 1962.

Forest Service estimates are based on traffic counters, actual campground and picnic ground head counts, and spot checks in National Forest reреation areas. Most wilderness areas now have registration checkpoints at trail entrances.

Camping and picnicking made up for more than 4 million of the visits, while general enjoyment and sightseeing accounted for more than 10 million.

All recreation activities registered a visitor increase over the previous year. The largest was in organization camping of 141 per cent. A 25.9 percent increase in wilderness travel was reflected in the total figure of 65,500 visits. National Forests continued to be the favorite hunting grounds and a 30.4 per cent increase was noted in this field.

Nordwall pointed out the number of visits estimated do not include those "Just passing through" a National Forest. The average visit was for a little longer than a day.

By states, National Forests and Grasslands reported the following estimates: Colorado, with 11 National Forests, 12,455,300; Kansas, one Grassland, 8,600; Nebraska, one Forest, 291,500; South Dakota, one Forest and two Grasslands, 3,762,400; and Wyoming, with three National Forests and one Grassland, 3,032,100. Wyoming's Figure does not include three National Forests west of the Continental Divide which are managed by the Intermountain Region.

The Rocky Mountain Region forests have 430 developed campgrounds with 5,153 units, plus 231 picnic grounds, offering, 288 units. A unit is composed of picnic table, fireplace grate, with central sanitary facilities. In addition, there are 14 developed boating sites, a swimming sites, and 27 winter sports areas on these Forests. Organizations, such as youth groups, churches, etc., maintain 47 sites under special use permit, and there are 62 privately-owned lodges or resorts located on leased Natioal Forest lands. These figures do not include the many lodges and resorts located on state and private land within the National Forrest boundaries.

With more than $53 million invested for recreation facilities on National Forests in the five-state area, private industry has a big stake in Rocky Mountain recreation. The Forest Service has slightly more than $11 million in recreation facilities for the same area.

Basil Crane, deputy regional forester, explained the Forest Service attitude on public services this way:

"The Forest Service does not plan to, or desire to get into the business of providing recreation user public services which can be appropriately provided by private enterprise. The system of depending upon concessioners, operating under special use permit, to provide this type of public service is well established. It is our desire and policy that there be no change in this respect."

"In fact," Crane said, "We would like to see concession operation expanded for campground and picnic ground facilities as much as feasible. But we do acknowledge that experience so far indicates definite limitations where such concession operations can be successful. For one thing, the 70-90 day season of use in this region increases investment risks. One rainy month can ruin profits for the entire season. Construction costs in the mountains are high, when compared with similar construction in a city or town."

The 1963 season brought about one major change in forest service camping. For the first time, charges of $1 per day were made at three campgrounds in Colorado, and one in South Dakota. The charge did not reduce use of the campgrounds and $15,000 was collected. As with all National Forests receipts, 25 percent of this money will be returned to the states in which the fee was collected.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

Editors Note: As a public service, The Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and problem drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism.

1. Q. Is there a Trial test given before treatment with Antabuse?

A. When Antabuse was first introduced in 1947, it was thought necessary to give each patient at least one experience of alcohol-antabuse reaction, in order for them to believe it — This was done in a hospital under medical care. During the past few years, this test has been rarely employed, provided sufficient information is given the patient about the dangers of drinking while taking Antabuse.

2. Q. Does Antabuse do away with the impulse to drink?

A. Antabuse serves as an automatic check on the impulse to drink. There seems to be a freeing of the mind from its preoccupation with alcohol.

3. Q. Should persons be given Antabuse against their will?

A. A person should never be given Antabuse against his or her will or without his full knowledge, consent and understanding. It is not wise for the wife or employer to take over the administration of Antabuse altho occasionally it may be done if the patient himself asks for this kind of help.

4. Q. Should Antabuse be given a Psychotic?

A. No — Altho it can materially help some borderline schizophrenics who are also alcoholic.

5. Q. Can Antabuse be given to a Diabetic?

A. Dr. Ruth Fox states that she has treated people with Antabuse who are diabetic without ill effects. . .also tubercular patients.

6. Q. Is Antabuse administered in tablet or liquid form?

A. Antabuse, when first used, came in tablet form, but has been supplanted with a suspension of medication in water.

7. Q. Who is qualified to give Antabuse?

A. Medication is administered either by the chief nurse or assistant under her direct supervision, or an out-patient treatment, the patients personal doctor or his chief nurse.

8. Q. Is Antabuse ever administered other than in a hospital?

Macleod Nixes Party Offer

LONDON (AP) — Iain Macleod, former joint leader of the Conservative party who refused to serve in the Cabinet of Prime Minister Douglas-Home, told parliamentary constutuents Friday night he would refuse again, no matter how much distress it caused the government and party.

MacLeod, 50, is running for Parliament again in this year's national election from Enfield West. He now is editor of the Weekly Spectator.

Army Recruiter Gives Seniors Special Deal

The United States Army will guarantee, in writing, before enlistment, any of over 120 technical schools to the high school graduate, says Sgt. Sandberg, chief recruiter for the Army in this area. However, these schools are on a first come, first served, basis.

"Due to this the senior that feels he will be interested in the possibility of attending one of these schools must have one reserved in advance of graduation in order to be sure of his choice at the time he intends to enlist," said the recruiter.

In order to assure the graduates of this area their choice Sgt. Sandberg has started qualifying them at the Denver Recruiting Main Station. The senior is sent to Denver, at Army expense, to qualify for his choice before graduation. He will take all qualifying mental and physical tests while there and return home that night. During this qualification the individuals are not in the Army nor are they obligated to enlist, explained the recruiter.

In order to accommodate the seniors of this area the U.S. Army recruiting Office, located in the Old Post Office Bldg, will be open nightly until 8 p.m. and Saturdays for interviews until graduation this year. Parents, teachers, counselors or lawyers are cordially invited to attend these interviews. Individuals may either come in at their convenience or may make appointments by calling Sgt. Sandburg or Sgt. Wright at 633-6772 or in Security at 392-5850 or 392-23342.

Writer Gets Pocket Picked While Searching for Coffee

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles written by a Santa Ana, Calif., businessman which are being reprinted in the Gazette Telegraph. The author spent three months in Moscow on an assignment.)

By C.D BAXSTRESSER

MOSCOW—When I was being briefed in California for this trip~~to~~ Moscow, one of the statments that was made many many times was that I had very little to fear insofar as petty thievery was concerned. It was told to me by people who had been to Moscow again and again that stealing is unheard of. I was told that I should have no fear of leaving items in my hotel room. I was told that when I walked the streets that I could expect curiosity on the part of the Russian people but that was all. Apparently things are changing rapidly in this city.

I am not particularly fond of the food served in the hotel where I stay. This is especially true of breakfast. I am a big coffee drinker and coffee is not served at this hotel for breakfast. I did find in downtown Moscow a hotel that serves excellent tomato juice, coffee lent tomato juice, coffee, ham and eggs. This morning, as is my custom, I left my hotel, and rode downtown on a bus. Upon arriving and ordering I automatically touched my back pocket only to find that I had had my pocket picked while I was on the bus.

I, of course, immediately reported this to the All-Soviet Chamber of Commerce, who are my hosts for the period of time that I will be in Moscow. I was told that this is the first time this had happend to any tourist to their knowledge (I wonder if that is true). I was also told that it is not wise to carry one's wallet in one's back pocket as is the American custom. It is more advisable to carry your wallet in your side pocket (budge or no buldge) because it is more difficult to remove a wallet from the side pocket than from the back pocket.

In the wallet that was stolen were some 30 rubles and $22.00. I certainly hope that whatever Ivan is now 50 rubles richer will have a good time with my money. Starting today I will close the barn door after the cow has left and carry the money in my side pocket.

The customs of the people in this city are both American and European. For example, they eat in the European manner. Food is cut but the knife is not laid down. On the other hand their automobiles drive on the same side of the street as California. Here are some of the differences of custom:

1) Russian women wear their weeding rings on their right hand.

2) Most tables in the restaurants have six chairs. It is not uncommon if four of the chairs are occupied by two couples who know each other for another couple to join them without invitation. The other couple may not necessarily be a man and woman but two men or two women. (You certainly get to meet a lot of people quickly with this arrangement.).

3) Two men walking down the street or two women walking down the street will more than likely be holding hands or have their arms about one another. Very few men and women walk on the street without doing this.

4) It is not uncommon sight to see two women or two men dancing in the restaurants when the orhcestra is playing. Each restaurant has an extremely small dance floor but it is not necessary to dance in that area. Much of the dancing is done between the tables and up and down the aisles. I personally will never get used to the sight of two burley men dancing together.

5) It is considered foolish to waitress, and salespeople do not smile. Nor do the people walking the streets talking to each other. On the other hand it is my observation that the Russians have rather a keen sense of humor and a witty remark brings a big smile and in many cases deep laughter.

6) Elevators are for riding up but it is Russian custom to walk down no matter how many flights.

7) Upon leaving your hotel room you cannot under any set of conditions take your hotel key with you. On each floor of the hotel there is stationed a woman in charge of that floor you may not pass her without depositing your key.

8) At most of the restaurants, meals are paid for in advance. What we would call the cashier sits at a table with a menu, a cash register, and an abacus. You go first to her station and look at the menu. You tell her what you want to order, she in turn rings up each item separately on a tape which is disensed by the cash register. She then totals the amount on the abacus. You pay her and take your tape to the table. The waiter or waitress then comes to the table and takes the tape, you order exactly what you told the cashier. As each item is ordered, it is checked off of the tape and this is all you get. If, for example you desire a second cup of coffee it is necessary to go back tot he cashier's stand, order receive a tape, and then go back to the table. This is a cash in advance country.

9) Smoking indoors is frowned on and if you could smell the aroma of a Russian cigarette you would understand why. The exceptions are restaurants, and the privacy of your hotel room but in elevators, stores, shops or any other building where the public assembles, it is very, very bad manners to smoke. In the above exceptions, the smoking is done outdoors.

10) Paying your fare on the buses or streetcars is based on the honor system. The driver sits in a compartment up in front isolated from the rest of the bus. At the front and the rear f the bus is a receptacle for the money and attached to the receptacle a dispensing machine for tickets. The two are not however connecsted. You put your money in the receptacle and turn the knob to receive your ticket. The knob will turn without depositing the money. When you arrive at yourdestination you simply get off. The ticket is not given to anyone. I am told that periodically there arfe inspectors who ride the buses and who may stop the bus and ask all passengers to display their tickets.

11) Watermelon is served with powdered sugar sprinkled over it. The Russian waiters think that I am a completely crazy American because I order my watermelon plain and then salt it.

12) Any Russian man who wishes to dance with any Russia women (whether she be accompanied by another man or not) has that prerogative. It is considered extremely poor manners on the part of any Russian woman to decline an invitation to dance.

13) The Russian work week is 7 hours a day, 5½ days a week.

14) Most Russian women do not shave their legs. On the other hand most Russian men are clean shaven. Very few mustaches or beards.

15) One of the worst social offenses that can be committed is to whistle as you walk the streets.

16) Modesty of dress is highly stressed (i.e. no low cut blouses no tight skirts or sweaters) until the Russians go swimming. Swimming suits will range from the conventional all to athletic supporters to brassieres and underpants.

Premartial Conferences to Start at Carson

A series of six premarital conferences will be offered as a special Lenten feature at Chapel 2 at 7 p.m. beginning Monday. The talks and discussion periods will be presented by several Catholic chaplains and by Maj. Joseph Intile of Ft. Carson hospital. They are designed for all couples who are contemplating marriage or who have recently married, and will cover the religious, psychological, medical and growth aspects of marriage as well as the responsibilities of parenthood.

A study of Colorado marriages released this week indicates that the state is in the throes of a "divorce epidemic." Judge Sherman G. Finesilver attributes the high divorce rate to youthful marriages and he advocates serious and mature preparation for marriage.

The series of six meetings, concluding on March 23, is open to all prospective married couples. It may be attended by couples or individually.

At the end of the series a certificate of completion will be given to certify to the officiant at the place of marriage that the individuals concerned have conscientiously prepared for matrimony.

Noted Painter To Be Resident At Art Center

One of the nation's most distinguished living painters, Henry Koerner, will be artist in residence during the month of March at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center, Director Fred S. Bartlett announced Sunday.

The famed artist's stay here has been made possible under a special grant from the Ford Foundation, administered through the American Federation of Arts.

The Fine Arts Center included among several art institutions participating in the artist in reisdence program establisheed by the Ford Foundation to bring the arts closer to all people.

While at the Fine Arts Center, Koerner will maintain a studio and give several public talks on his own work and on contemporary art in general. A schedule of his appearances will be announced later.

An exhitition of his recent paintings and drawings will coincide with his visit.

Certainly one of the most interesting, and sometimes controversial artists, Koerner has been an artist of established reputation since his showing of paintings of post war Germany in New York in 1947.

Only a year before he had visited his native Vienna where he saw his boyhood home in ruins and heard the gruesome facts of the death of his parents and brother at the hands of the Nazis. He had left his family and courntry to come to America in 1939.

The horror of this experience and his fantasy-memories began to fuse, and he created a series of canvases which made his first exhibitions in Berlin and New York an instantaneous sensation.

His life in American since then has somewhat changed Koerner's viewpoint, but he is still a faithful exponent of the realism of his day.

ALEXANDER Eliot, art editor of "Time" magazine says, "his new pictures deal, often harshly and always provocatively with the human condition, especially in america. As pictures, they have beauty, but their content is seldom beautiful."

In 1955 he began to draw covers for "Time," and this imposing list includes portraits of John F. Kennedy, as a senator, Ludwig Erhard, Nelson and David Rockefeller, Paul, Tillich Leonard Bernstein, Harry Belafonte, Leontyne Price, Sylvia Porter, Maria Callas, Julie Haris, Henry Moore and others.

Henry Koerner is represented in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, the Museum of Modern Art, Whitney Museum, Springfield Museum, Wichita Museum, The Isaac Delgado Museum. The the private collections of John Hay Whitney, Joshua Logan and others.

Khrushchev Tells Farm Experts Copy Capitalists

By EORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev threatened farm bureaucrats last week with mass dismissal unless they learn to copy Western methods.

"It would be stupid to ignore the achievements of foreign science only because they were made in a capitalist country," he told his Communist party Central Committee. "Vladimir Ilyich Lenin did not consider it a shame to learn from the capitalists."

He spoke at a special meeting of the committee and invited agricultural specialists on Friday.

"If officials do not want to study and apply the new, or are too unreceptive to the achievements of science and practice and continue to obstinately cling to the old, such people must be replaced and others promoted," he said.

Khrushchev's remarks indicated dissatisfaction with the operation of the farm administration apparatus which he reorganized a year ago to devote special attention to farming.

Khrushchev also accused underlings of distorting his personal campaign to introduce mass sowing of corn in the Soviet Union. He recently acknowedged that in many arid areas wheat is a more suitable crop than corn.

Friday he angrily declared: "Distortions must not be tolerated. The most valuable crops for local conditions should be used."

Khrushchev told the plenary meeting that began here last Monday that farm production would double and treble, once the chemical industry starts producing enough fertilizers. But he warned Communist chiefs not to wait for the fertilizers, saying they should start streamlining their operations immediately. At the same time, he said, they must not forget about organic fertilizers.

In the speech, as summarized by the Soviet news agency Tass, Khrushchev also:

—Struck out again at the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency's estimates of a decrease in the Soviet economic growth rate. He said the CIA report showed the capitalists were worried about Russia's "temptestuous" economic growth.

—Proposed to give long-delayed pensions to old and incapacitated collective workers by setting up a fund that probably would be drawn mostly from farm wages.

—Denied Western reports that he was cutting back heavy industry and defense potential to pay for building up his chemical industry.

—Proposed to set up a new agency to study scientific trends in the West, presumably to prevent Russia's getting left behind the West in developing new industries such as chemicals.

—Denounced Communist Chinese leaders as "those newly baked Trotskyites" and accused them of trying to break up the Communist movement.

Stokowski Takes on Beatles

The trick was turned by Maestro Leopold Stokowski and the American Symphony Orchestra in a musical program interlaced with a question-and-answer period on the relative merits of Beatle and symphony music.

Many of the 3,000 young men and women in the audience were carrying Beatle wigs and Beatle fan magazines, and others had transistor radios plugged into their ears listening to recordings of their favorite quartet.

"You — the little blonde over there — why do you like those four boys?" Stokowski asked.

"Well, I like the way they move their heads," came the reply.

"How can you girls say you like the Beatle music when you make so much noise you can't hear them perform?" the maestro asked.

The question-and-answer period ended and Stokowski led the orchestra through several Beethoven selections.

"That wasn't so bad now, was it?" he asked at the close of the program.

criminal acts, are all powerful in all water decisions such as the possibility of receiving kickbacks from contractors. There is no regulatory body like the Public Utilities Commission to examine and to restrict their activities.

"5. It is extremely unlikely that the commissioners themselves will do any work other than "supervise." This means that additional help must be paid for meter reading, bookkeeping, stenographic services, repair supervision, mailing out water bills, making bank deposits, ordering matreails and the like.

"6. Water commissioners do not need any special qualifications. Analysis of commissioners in nearby districts probably would show them to be good politicians on the local level.

"7. It should prove interesting to the Cascade residents to ponder the fact that among the five members of the "steering committee," three of them are delinquent in their water bills as of Feb. 8, 1964, and another is a property owner far beyond any Cascade water extension plans.

"8. As of Feb. 8, 1964, there are 231 water customers in Cascade. Total water receipts for 1963 were $15,097.59; total expenses, $14,371.72 (including salaries of $5,570); net profit, $725.87.

"9. The proposed water district contemplates a bond issue of $250,000, interest rate of 4½ per cent. We estimate the following annual interest amortization, $22,600; annual expenses and overhead, $22,400; total, $45,000. Average water bill as of May 1, 1963, was $60 per year; average water bill for May, 1964, would be $125. Average tax increace for the water levy would be $60, whcih would total $185."

The pamphlet suggested that in the event Cascade water customers declined the water district, they should elect a water board "from its public-minded citizens that will work with us and keep themselves and the community properly informed about water matters."

In explaining the Cascade water supply, the pamphlet said local surface water from creeks and rivers was appropriated, over 50 years ago.

"In the Pikes Peak North Slope area, that water is owned by the Cascade Town Company (.4 second foot) the Broadmoor Hotel Company (.4 second foot) and the balance by the city. Other communities in the area have secondary sources, (wells and stored runoff water).

"Future additional water for Cascade can be realized from secondary sources or from the Colorado Springs share of the Fryingpan-Arkansas Water Project. It is illogical to presume that Colorado Springs will refuse to allot small quantities of such water to its suburban areas when you consider that federal aid made the project possible. The pipeline carrying this water is being engineered thru Cascade; therefore the construction of expensive storage facilities at this time would be a waste of money.

"Expansion of Cascade water facilities in the past has been accomplished to accommodate the community's growth. It cannot have been too poorly engineered when you realize that the only residences subject to a water shortage are those at the extreme ends of pipelines where more than the agreed-upon number of houses were erected. These are situations where new connections were made to a neighbor's service line, not the Cascade Town Company's water main.

"There is not a single water system in the U. S. that is immune to water shutoff or that never experiences occasional water that is muddy, air-entrained, or otherwise abnormal.

"This is especially true in communities with mountainous terrain and very low temperature.

"The quality of Cascade water compares favorably with that of any community in the Pikes Peak Region. It has, and has had much better water than in the Ute Pass towns.

"The Cascade Town Company is not adverse to selling its water system. It has shown a negligible profit in but two years of its 76 years of operation. Its personnel get blamed for their mistakes, nature's mistakes and the mistakes of careless customers.

"And there are some Cascade citizens who pay their water bills with the attitude that they should get free water for the privilege the community is afforded by having them reside there.

"However, the town company is adverse to the prospect of selling its water system to any group that is given the power of property taxation for water purposes. This can mean but one result: maximum water rates; higher taxation; and eventually lower property values.

"The original water district law, passed in 1913, intended to offer relief to adjacent communities that had poor water facilities and little money. In recent years, the formation of water districts appears to have become a political racket instigated by water bond underwriters and by water engineering companies.

"The Cascade Town Company has been solicited by such firms at least 25 times during the past eight years.

"Do you believe that these solicitations have been motivated by the desire to help Cascade, or to make a fast buck?" the pamphlet stated.

late President John F. Kennedy, never had Boy Scout experience. No one ever invested any time or money in helping him when he was a youth, Evans said.

Evans praised the near 1,800 Boy Scout leaders and supporters who attended the dinner telling them that they have done a service by working for scouting.

"Service is the price you pay for the space you occupy on the globe," he said.

He asked the leaders to rededicate themselves to scout work, telling them, "Anyone who proposes to do good must not expect other people to roll stones out of his way."

He added, "The inscription in front of the U.S. Archives Building in Washington reads 'What Is Past Is Prologue,' and that was once translated by a taxi driver as meaning, 'You ain't seen nothin' yet.'"

The local scout leaders of all ranks can look to their own future the same way, he said.

Parties Split Over Property Assessment Bill

actual value. Public utilities would be assessed at 35 per cent of their value, with this decreasing to 30 per cent over a three-year period.

The decrease from 35 to 30 per cent was a Senate amendment to the House version which placed public utilities in a 35 per cent category.

Another Senate amendment inserted the controversial Realty Recording Act into the bill. This act, which was repealed a year ago by the legislature, furnished data used in determining sales ratio which determined the old school aid formula.

Under this provision certificates were filed showing actual price paid for the sale of each piece of property. As used in the school law, counties where the ratio was high got extra state aid; where it was low aid was less.

In its first Saturday meeting of the current session, the Senate heard Majority Leader Ranger Rogers, R - Littleton, urge passage if only to send the bill to a conference committee to iron out differences between the two houses.

"Unless we have a property tax law . . . it is very doubtful that collections of taxes will be on a sound basis," Rogers said.

Sen. Richard F. Hobbs, D-Pueblo, said "never before in all the history of this state has a legislature granted so much relief to a group that can afford to pay taxes and placed such a burden on the little taxpayers."

Utility companies, Hobbs said are healthy and expanding. But he added that the burden of paying the taxes the utilities don't pay will fall on the individual homeowner.

It has been reported that utilities are currently generally assessed at 35 per cent of their value and private homes at 30 per cent. If both are set by law at 30 per cent, individual taxpayers will have to make up the 5 per cent loss in revenue that would result from lower taxes on utilities.

Homeowners in Pueblo, Hobbs said, would have assessments increased by $12 million under the present proposal, while utility assessments would be lowered by about $2 million.

"This is one of the most unreasonable. . . efforts to give it to the big man and take it away from the little man," Hobbs said.

Rogers said that one of the most fundamental rules of law and taxation is that "the same law applies to everybody." The tax on public utilities, he said, "is merely reflected ultimately in your electric bill."

Sen. Robert W. McCulloch, D-Gunnison, called passage of the Senate amended version of the bill "legislation by a conference committee." He said that the interim committee that composed the bill "listened to all sides and did a good job."

He added, "we're better off without any bill than we are with this one."

The property tax revision was called for by a constitutional amendment approved by Colorado voters in November 1962.

When the bill goes before a conference committee these points will particularly be at issue:

Insertion of the Realty Recording Act.

A Senate amendment making sporting equipment and hobby goods — like motorboats—subject to property taxation.

Greece and Turkey and the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities to "refrain from any action which might lead to a worsening of the situation and further bloodshed."

He made the appeal in cables to President Makarios and to Foreign Ministers Christos Xanthopoulos Palamas of Greece and Feridun Cemal Erkin of Turkey.

Cypriot Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou was en route to New York for the council meeting and was expected to be here in a special delegation before the council convened.

Greek Chief Delegate Dimitri S. Bitsios met with Thant after the latter sent out his appeal.

Bitsios told a reporter Greece did not expect Turkey would do anything rash because of a realization of the implications that would have. Both countries belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Delegates involved said that in private talks the council decided 6-5 against meeting Saturday night. They said the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Bolivia, the Ivory Coast and Morocco were for it and the United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China, Norway and finally Brazil were against it.

ADC Jets Will Make Sonic Booms Over Park

The purpose of these sonic booms is to cause controlled avalanches of snow. The shock waves from the sonic booms cause the snow to fall from high, inaccessible areas to the road below, where it can be safely removed without danger to park crews or travelers in the area.

In the last three years approximately 30 sonic booms have been produced. While many of the booms have produced slides, those that have not have settled and stabilized the snow — increasing the safety of the area.

This year F-1018 "Voodoos" of the 19th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Malmstrom Air Force Base near Great Falls, Montana will provide the sonic booms. The F-1018 is a twin engine, all weather, long range interceptor used by the Air Defense Command. The crew is made up of a pilot and a radar observer. In the past Operation Safe Slide has been accomplished by supersonic F-109 aircraft from ADC's 4700 Air Defense Wing at Geiger Field Washington.

In late March, scheduled time for Operation Safe Slide, the jets will break the sound barrier in the vicinity of the sheer Garden Wall which rises above the famous Going - to - the - Sun Road. The planes will proceed to the area at subsonic speed, then make a controlled dash through the area at supersonic speed. The sonic flight is authorized provided accurate positioning is possible and flight safety is not compromised.

Under normal operational conditions the supersonic flight of ADC aircraft is restricted to unpopulated areas and extremely high altitudes. In this manner supersonic training can be carried out with as little inconvenience to the public as possible.

Operation Safe Slide began in 1960 at the request of the National Park Service. The Park Service schedules the sonic booms and is responsible for notifying all area residents prior to the time of the booms. Should the booms cause any damage the Park Service will assume responsibility for it.

of Latin America. The two countries would share costs, exchange information, and co-ordinate their investment programs.

West German officials emphasized in their talks with De Gaulle that the United States strongly desires joint French-West German activity for the benefit of Latin-American countries. As the Americans see it, this would provide a more effective supplement to the U. S. Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Both De Gaulle and West German President Heinrich Luebke are planning trips to Latin America later this year. De Gaulle is going to Mexico next month and to a number of South American countries next fall.

But De Gaulle apparently paid little heed to Erhard's effort to breathe new life into NATO.

West Germany, which depends on a strong NATO for its military protection, fears that the French go-it-alone attitude is undermining the alliance. The Bonn Government is also concerned about a general slackness within NATO, and about various centrifugal tendencies exemplified in the Cyprus crisis.

The West Germans reaffirmed their support for the U. S.-sponsored project for a multinational nuclear force, an idea which De Gaulle opposes and has refused to join. France told Erhard that despite this difference of opinion, France would not object if West Germany sought to join this force.

The Central Committee, the party's top governing body, ised a 19-point list of recommendations for impoving agricultural methods.

Most of the points simply ordered local officials to correct shortcomings exposed at the plenum by various speakers.

The resolution also ordered a "get tough" drive to force agricultural specialists out of the cities and into farm areas.

It directed educational authorities to take steps to transfer all farm specialists schools and research facilities to state farms where students and professors would be forced to engage in practical work.

The plenary meeting in the great Kremlin palace was attended by about 6,000 persons, mostly invited farm specialists and administrators from all over the country.

Oliveira Art Exhibit Opens At Art Center

An exhibition of paintings and prints by the fast-rising young artist Nathan Oliveira opens today at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center for viewing thru the month of March.

The exhibition was organized by the University of California at Los Angeles Art Galleries and is being shown at UCLA, San Francisco Museum of Art, Fort Worth Art Center and the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center.

All of the paintings, drawings, prints, gouaches and watercolors are recent, from 1957 to the present. The painter is only 35; his mature work is therefore recent and its dimension is in intensity rather than in time.

Oliveira calls his figure paintings "confrontations" — the instantaneous moment of recognition of a figure beyone which no further description is necessary.

The anatomy of his figures is therefore sweepingly simplified: it corresponds to an articulated body as scaffolding shadows forth a building that is still to be flushed out.

Oliveira discusses his work: "The figures that come out — I don't quite know what they mean. They are symbols of something. I don't know where this is going to take me. The paintings — the figures — at least admit the tension around... I feel that life is beautiful and that it is there, and we go on living regardless of chances. What we're going through will be leading to something."

The artist was born in 1928 in Oakland, Calif., and studied art under Leon Goldman, Otis Oldfield, Hamilton Wolf and Max Beckman. In 1952 he received a Masters degree in Fine Arts at California College of Arts and Crafts and began exhibiting professionally.

This was interrupted by two years of service in the Army, followed by teaching positions at the California College of Arts and Crafts and the California School of Fine Arts (now the San Francisco Art Institute).

In 1956 he became head of the print department at the California School of Fine Arts and the next year had his first one-man print exhibition. In 1958 Fellowship in print making, for travel and study abroad.

He had his first one-man painting exhibition in 1959 and in 1960 received the Norman Wait Harris bronze medal in painting at the Chicago Art Institute.

Since then he has had one-man exhibitions in Texas, Illinois, Minnesota and California and has participated in group exhibitions in art institutions throughout the country and abroad.

He is presently a lecturer at UCLA.

Three Persons Miss Death in Car-Train Crash

George S. Graham Jr. 21, 32 E. San Rafael St. failed to see a train which was traveling across Fillmore Street early Saturday and crashed headlong into it injuring himself and his two passengers, the state patrol reported.

Graham received chest injuries and face lacerations but Penrose Hospital officials described his condition Saturday night as good.

Carolyn Ewing, 19, of Colorado College was also admitted to the hospital suffering from lacerations to the head and nose. Her condition was described as good.

The third passenger, Diana K. Sandborn, 18, also of the college, had lacerations on both legs and did not go to the hospital. According to the report, the train, a Rock Island Railroad locomotive, was being moved and had already gone 153 feet across. Graham's car was crossing Fillmore Street and the driver did not see the train and hit it head on. Damage was estimated at $250 State Patrolman Ken Shiflet and Sgt. Jake Abendschan said.

CC Receives Summer Science Institute Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded Colorado College a grant of $14,965 to conduct a summer science institute that will enable 28 high school students to work and study alongside some of the leading scientists in the West.

The tuition-free program, which gets under way June 14, will be operated under the supervision of zoology Prof. Richard G. Beidleman, director of the NSF programs at Colorado College.

The eight-week program is one of three summer science institutes to be conducted by the college under NSF grants during the summer.

Prof. Beidleman said applications must be received by April 1. The program is open to high ability high school juniors interested in science and mathematics.

This marks the sixth summer Colorado College has conducted the Science Training Program for High Ability Secondary School Students. It is operated in conjunction with the ninth annual Summer Science Institute for high school teachers.

Prof. Beidleman noted that students selected for the program would spend two months on the campus of the 90-year-old college. He said they would work with high school teachers and college scientists.

The Colorado College professor said the program is designed to provide selected high school students an advanced orientation in the broad area of science and give them specialized academic training in the particular scientific field of their interest.

The students will meet daily from 8 to 10 a.m. during the summer for an informal science seminar under the direction of three Colorado College scientists a physicist, a geologist, and a biologist.

Subjects will include the scientific method, relationships between various scientific disciplines, relationships between science and non-scientific knowledge, the frontiers of science in 1964, and science as a profession.

The high school students will join members of the Summer Science Institute for an informal coffee hour at mid-morning. Three days a week they will attend the Institute's general lecture. They will spend the afternoons working in their particular fields of interest.

Aortic Valve Is Surgically Reparable

Surgical implanation of an artificial aortic valve has been performed successfully in a woman whose valve was torn in an automobile accident, two Houston surgeons reported today.

Drs. Arthur C. Beall Jr. and Albert L. Shirkey said the operation indicates that present techniques of total aortic valve replacement now allow successful surgical correcton of this problem. In only one previous operation under these circumstances has the patient survived, they pointed out.

The injury to the Houston woman led to aortic valve regurgitation and congestive heart failure. Injuries are a rare cause of aortic valve regurgitation, the authors said but with improvements in overall care of patients sustaining nonpenetrating chest injuries, this problem probably will be recognized with increasing frequency.

Physiological improvement of this patient following implanation of a Starr-Edwards artificial valve was "truly impressive," the surgeons commented.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

HOW PRIZES ARE TAXED: Have you won a prize? The prize is taxable if you were required to exert even the slightest effort to earn it. If the prize is other than cash, the amount includable in income is the fair market value of the article received at the time of receipt.

FOLLOWING INCOME NOT REPORTABLE ON FEDERAL RETURN: Dividends from an insurance policy. Social Security and railroad retirement benefits. Payments received under Workmen's Compensation Laws. Gifts and inheritances (but not the income received from such property). Damages awarded by court for personal injuries. Government payments and benefits to veterans and their families except non-disability retirement pay and interest on terminal leave bonds.

SICK PAY EXCLUSION: If you receive from your employer wages or payment in lieu of wages during a period of injury or illness ("sick pay") such amount is excludable from gross income on the federal tax return. This exclusion is limited to a maximum rate of $100.00 per week. In case of sickness, the first week's pay is taxable unless you are hospitalized for at least one day during this period of illness.

ANNUITIES AND LIFE INSURANCE: Life insurance proceeds paid by reason of death can be excluded from income. This exclusion does not apply to interest paid on the proceeds. Where the proceeds are aid in installments, the interest element can be excluded up to $1000 annually by the spouse of the insured. If you have an annuity from life insurance, pension plan, or other source, the law requires a computation which depends on your life expectancy and the amount paid for the annuity. We will furnish actuarial tables upon request to help you figure this out.

TAX RETURN SIGNERS ARE RESPONSIBLE: Taxpayers are reminded that they are responsible under law for all entries and supporting documents in their Federal tax returns, no matter who prepares the return.

The tax advisor, whether he is an Internal Revenue employe or a private practitioner, can rely only upon the information furnished by the taxpayer.

His primary purpose is the transfer of information from the taxpayer to the proper places on the tax form. I suggest that taxpayers seeking professional help should review last year's return and read current instructions before gathering information for the advisor.

Frequently, a deduction or item of income is missed because the advisor was not furnished the necessary information by the taxayer.

Regardless of who prepares the return, the responsibility for filing the return and liability for any underpayment, interest and possible penalties are the taxpayer's.

More Flights To Arab Land

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Three United Arab Airlines executives are exploring increasing the number of flights between this country and the United Arab Republic.

Transport and Aviation Minister R. A. Njoku told the visitors that Nigeria would permit additions to their line's single weekly round-trip flight if traffic volume warranted it.

Managing Director Gamal Afifi said passenger traffic between Lagos and Cairo has steadily increased.

Physical Fitness Winners Awarded Dental Kits

The top five winners in a physical fitness contest at Ft. Carson were awarded electric toothbrushes and the second five winners were awarded dental health kits.

The winners of the tooth brushes were Steve Hodge, Sandrs Staley, Bob Taylor, Mitzi Miller and Belinda Carter.

The contest was based on criteria established by the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The 10 highest scores in the contest were given dental checkups based on five items: the least cavities, the fewest fillings, the least number of missing teeth, the best bite and the best smile. Two of the top five had nearly perfect mouths, with no fillings or cavities.

The awarding of the toothbrushes is significant in that it points out the motive behind the efforts of the Ft. Carson dental staff and its program in conjunction with National Dental Health Week, said Maj. David E. Layman, preventive denistry officer. He presented the awards in behalf of the post dental surgeon Col. James B. Bunnell Jr. to the students of the Ft. Carson Elementary and Junior High School.

"The profession has devoted itself to the increasing public appreciation to dental health as an integal part of total health," Maj. Layman stated. The dental profession has adopted the concept that people must have complete or total physical fitness.

Maj. Layman said he was delighted to find that, generally, the children have gold teeth and good teeth education.

Motorist Has Close Scrapes With Death

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — "It was enough to turn a man's hair gray," said Kustae Malkamaki 58, after two close scrapes with death.

Malkamaki's car skidded into the path of a fast-moving freight train when he tried to stop for the red blinker lights at a railroad crossing Thursday. The impact flipped the auto onto an adjacent track.

Shaken but unhurt, the motorist looked up to see a passenger train bearing down on him. He jumped clear as the train hit, scattering the wreckage a mile down the New York Central's railroad tracks.

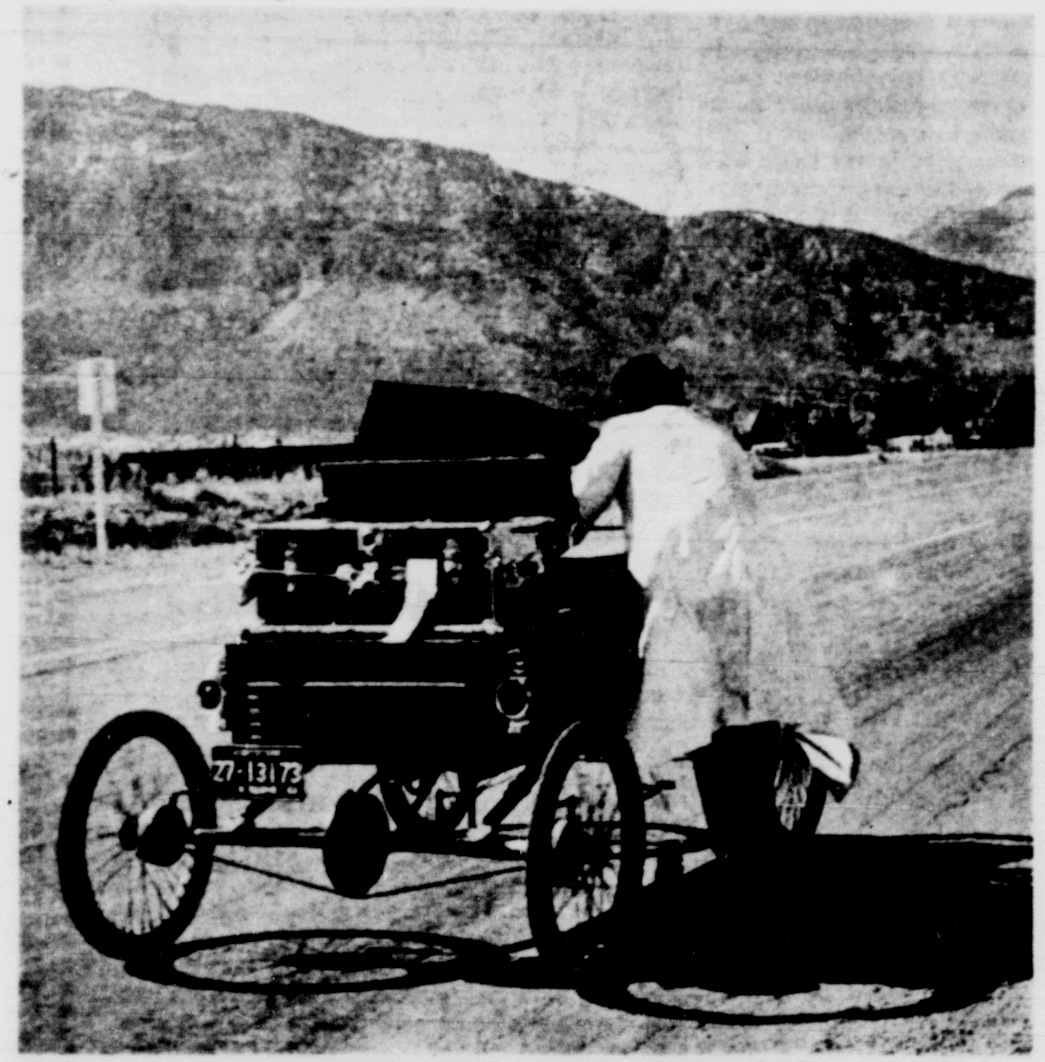
Golden Bee Fits You Like a Comfortable Chair

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1964
SECTION B

BEE BLUE BLAZER — One of the few things that's not golden at the Golden Bee is the Blue Blazer, a special drink prepared for persons celebrating special occasions. The drink is made with Irish Whiskey, set afire and tossed between two cups with the lights out. The bartender uses asbestos gloves while preparing the spectacular cocktail, something that Bee Manager Rick Janusz didn't use this time and he ended up with a burned hand, but the photographer was happy.



GET A HORSE — Ragtime Ray Rose is familiar with all the old expressions such as this one which fits the situation perfectly. Rose used the vintage Oldsmobile to get to the Broadmoor for his current engagement at the ragtime piano.

Fixtures Come From Old English Pub of the 1880's

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

It has a snug intimacy that fits you like a comfortable chair.

Yet its a place where, without announcement, a man might suddenly get up and play the bagpipes for an hour or more; a place where another might do an impromptu tap dance to a ragtime tune.

It is a place where a doctor who may have operated on you several weeks ago might suddenly decide to sit at the piano and just play; a place when a man seated with a group of friends suddenly bursts out singing in a strong Irish tenor, his voice ringing in the room.

This is the Golden Bee at the Broadmoor, certainly the most unique cocktail lounge in the area and one of the most unique in the country.

It is a place where you might run into Liberace, Belefonte or the guy next door.

It is not a large place. If it was, it would defeat its purpose. The Bee is designed as a "good pub", one which "fits around your shoulders."

The fixtures, the bar and accessories, are those of an English pub built in the 1880's and later brought to this country intact and set up in New York. When the Broadmoor decided to build the Bee, it asked W. and J. Sloane and Co. to find it some authentic pub fixtures.

The firm did more than that. It found an entire pub, covered with dust, in a warehouse in the old Chelsea district of New York. The warehouse was located in an area where Clement Moore, author of "T was the Night Before Christmas", once had a farm.

The pub itself had been operated at one time in an area near the old London Terrace section of New York, once one of the fashionable residential districts of the city.

The elaborately carved solid African mahogony fixtures were covered with 15 to 20 coats of varnish; the carved cherubs, birds, fruit clusters and caryatids were hidden by the dirt and thick coats of varnish which completely buried the natural luster of the fine wood.

T. C. Willumsen of Colorado Springs spent eight weeks removing the varnish and bringing the original luster back to the wood.

Other craftsmen were employed to insure that the pub would be authentic: etched glass for the doors, destroyed when the pub was discovered, were reproduced from photographs; the ceiling is the old - fashioned pressed metal type, expecially made for the Bee; the light fixtures are reproduced from fixtures of the era; the chairs come from an old British schooner and the emblem of the bee is incoporated in the flocked golden wallpaper of the room.

"We wanted to make the Bee a place where you could just come and relax, be yourself," Rick Janusz, manager, said.

Tho the room seats only about 60, it is not unusual of an evening to find it crowded beyond capacity. A ragtime piano plays nightly and customers join in the singing.

"We like it informal. We like people to be informal when they come here," Janusz said.

But despite the informality, the Bee has its traditions and is gaining news ones daily.

One of the most popular and most recent, is the "Order of the Pewteer Tankard." This is a club with a closed membership of 200, which has a waiting list of more than 150.

Janusz started the club a little less than four months ago in response to customer demands.

When the Bee first opened its doors in 1960, all beer and ale was served in the pewter tankards, but the customer couldn't resist taking one of the tankards with him when he left.

"They made great souveniers," Janusz said, smiling. "You can't blame them for taking them."

But the cost of replacing the tankards was more than the good will it brought the Bee in return. The practice of using tankards was halted. Customers protested. The tankards were brought out again, but this time were used only to serve ale. Again they disappeared.

Now 200 tankards line shelves behind the bars. On each is the name of its owner, a member of the Order of the Tankard. His name also adorns a gold nameplaque placed around the walls of the Bee and he wears a gold bee in his lapel.

Anyone can purchase one of the tankards with his name enscribed and the Bee will keep it behind the bar for you, Janusz said.

Later this month, the Bee will host a party for Tankard Club members, the first of what Janusz hopes will be annual affair.

Another new innovation is the ragtime piano program which was started at the Bee about two months ago. Janusz has been bringing in some of the top names in the ragtime field and intends to bring them back in the future.

The current star is Ragtime Ray Rose, a jolly, spirited performer with an amazing store house of songs and recitations.

Rose will be at the Bee for another two weeks.

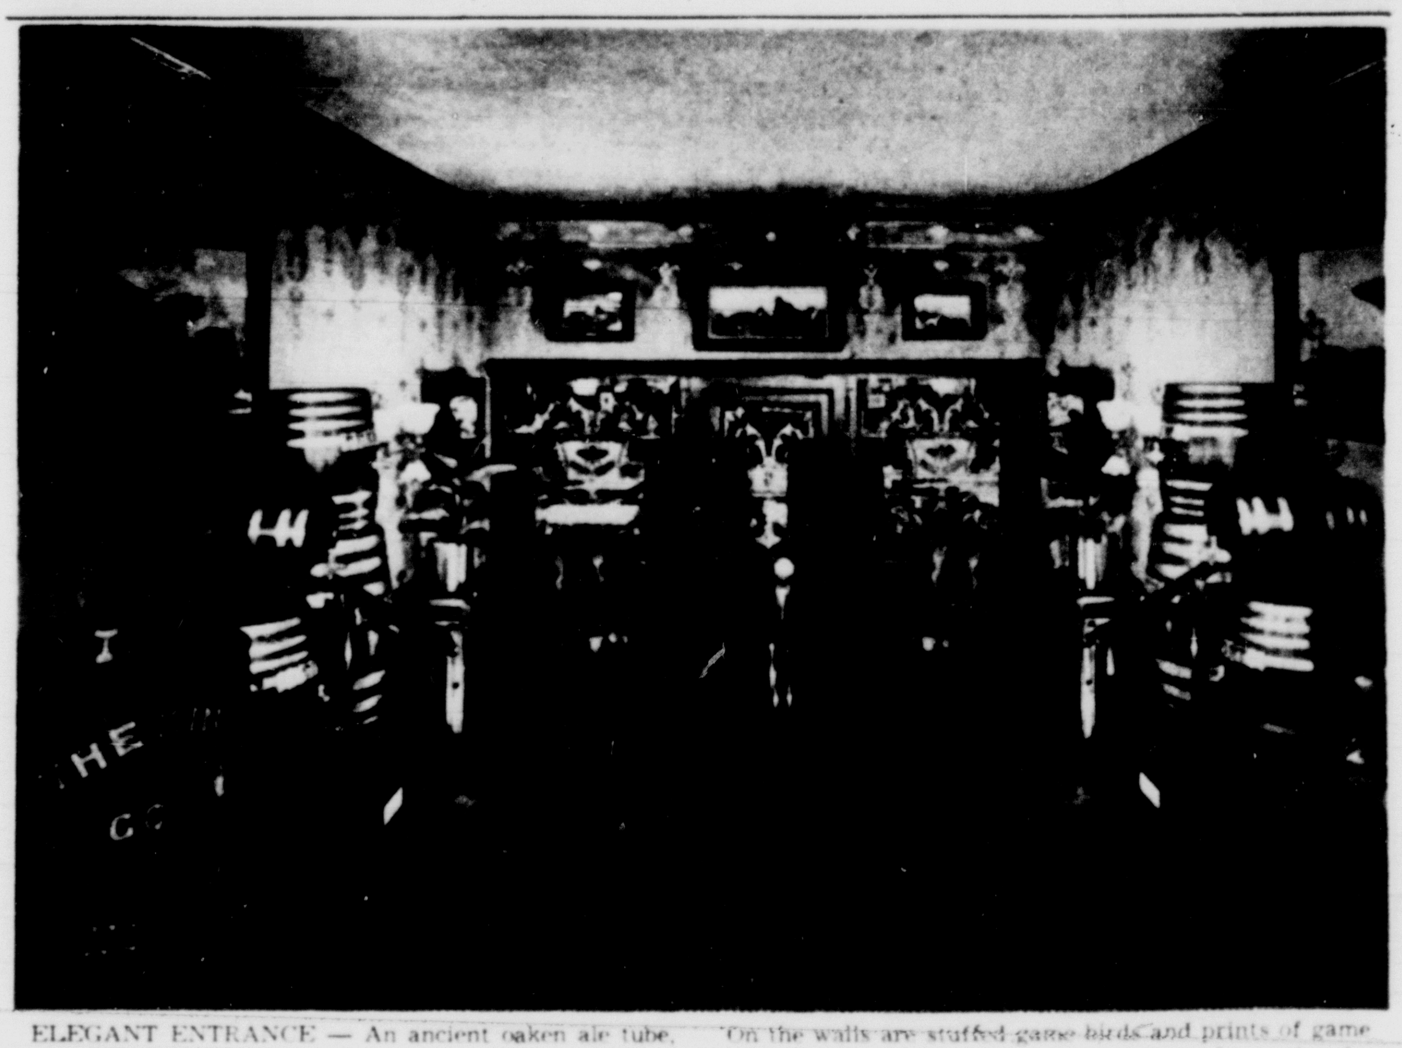
While it is relatively easy for the Bee to get entertainers back, it is not so easy to replace some of the fixtures in the establishment. Just about everything is imported and sometimes it takes weeks to replace a crystal lamp shade.

Even the tankards come from England as do some of the drinks served at the Bee.

A drinking cup which stands behind the bar comes from Russia and was presented to Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor by the Russian Hockey team. Tutt in turn presented it to the Bee to be used when the Russians return here.

The Golden Bee fits perfectly the Englishman's definition of a very special atmosphere that should be present in such an establishment. "You can tell a good pub by the way it fits around your shoulders. It is a blend of warmth and friendliness of dark wood colors and sparkling glass, of foaming tankards and good talk."

The Golden Bee is such a place.



ELEGANT ENTRANCE — An ancient oaken ale tube, left, and old wine barrels grace the entrance to Golden Bee. The authentic barrels and the ale tube fit in tastefully with the elegant chairs and plants in the foyer. On the walls are stuffed game birds and prints of game animals. The wallpaper, as thruout the pub, carries the Golden Bee theme.

DESIGNED FOR RELAXATION — The interior of the Golden Bee is designed for intimacy and relaxation and utilizes the original fixture of an English pub built in the 1880's and later shipped to New York City. The elaborately carved African Mahogany fixtures were discovered in a warehouse in New York and shipped to Colorado Springs where craftsmen restored them. This was the scene at the grand opening of the pub in 1960.

A YARD IN ONE — The term has nothing to do with golf but is an ancient pub tradition for those who like their ale by the yard rather than the glass. The drink is a popular one at the Golden Bee. Helping Fred Brown to balance his yard are, from left, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gray and Mr. and Mrs. John Privett. Record for drinks by the yard is held by a Cascade man who downed eight yards in a four-hour period. Fastest drinking time for a yard is 32.1 seconds.

FT. CARSON
CANON CITY

THE PIANO IS EASIER — At least for Ragtime Ray Rose, the old upright piano is easier to understand than a vintage Oldsmobile which just won't follow the sign. Rose has been using the ancient car while playing an engagement at the Broadmoor.

Carson Future Looks Good Building-Wise

The future of Ft. Carson looks good as, step-by-step, it moves forward with new, permanent construction.

Col. H. V. Middleworth, Ft. Carson and 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) chief of staff, said requests have been submitted for from $60 to $75 millions in construction during the next five years to replace the World War II temporary structures with modern, permanent facilities.

The mountain post expects to be opening bids in July for buildings to make way for the new $15 million barracks complex. The colonel said the 179 buildings are located north of Prussman Blvd. between Barkley and Magrath. Sale of the wooden buildings is slated for July.

Also in the planning stages is a new bowling alley to be built through nonappropriated funds. Authorization for the bowling alley, to be located near the post housing area, is expected later this summer.

Biggest immediate project is the 280 units of housing to be built at a cost of $4 million. Bids will be received for this project later this month.

Currently, the Corps of Engineers, is in the midst of awarding $6,000,000 in contracts for further improvement of Butts Army Airfield, a post chapel, two battalion motor shops, six ammunition igloos and modernization of the sewage treatment plant.

New building in the post area is expected to be of red brick construction. The work currently authorized is expected to be completed within two years.

NEW ROOF LINE — Oldsmobile's new Vista-Cruiser station wagon features a new "panoramic" roof and is built on a 120-inch wheelbase. The new wagon is on display at Money Oldsmobile Co., 18 S. Weber St. Styling of the station wagon is of the F-85 and it is powered by a 330-inch V-8 engine. It is available in four models—standard and custom, two-seat or three.

Panoramic Roof Featured on Olds Wagon

A new station wagon with a "panoramic" roof design and bearing the Oldsmobile name plate is now on display at Money Oldsmobile Co., 18 S. Weber St.

The station wagon, which has been named the Vista Cruiser, has a raised roof beginning about mid-way toward the rear of the vehicle. The roof is raised four inches and a small tinted windshield has been placed over the second seat, with curved glass along the sides of the roof.

The higher roof provides room for a third seat which faces forward. The third seat is optional, however. The higher roof also increases available cargo space.

The Vista Cruiser is on a 120-inch wheelbase, five inches longer than the F-85.

Harvey Money, president of Money Oldsmobile Co., has invited the public to see and drive the Vista Cruiser, newest in the Oldsmobile line.

Allied Leaders Recently Tour Air Academy

Allied military leaders assigned to NATO headquarters at Fontainebleau, France, recently "toured" the Air Force Academy — without leaving their chairs.

A special color slide presentation on the history and development of the Academy was given to top officers from Belgium, Canada, France, Germany, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, and the U.S. by Brig. Gen. Gordon H. Austin, deputy chief of Staff Operation, i.q. Allied Air Forces Central Europe (AIRCENT).

Two Academy "pioneers," now on the AIRCENT staff, assisted with the presentation. Lt. Col. Jack B. Price served as the Academy's first base engineer, and Maj. Joseph J. Bednarski, as first director of the Spanish course.

FAILURE "FIASCO"

Referring to a ridiculous failure as a "fiasco" comes from the Venetian glassblowers. If, in blowing, the slightest flaw was detected, the bottle was turned into a common flask called a fiasco.

New Radio Station, KRYT Open

A-Top Manages Building

A-Top Employment Service, formerly of 709 N. Nevada Ave., has been retained by George Milhoan, new owner of the Colorado Building, as manager of the building.

A-Top has moved its offices to Room 208 in the Colorado Building, which is located at 2400 W. Colorado Ave.

Mrs. V. J. Peifer, secretary-treasurer of the employment agency, said Friday that the firm is interested in small business firms whose owners and managers are interested in having a telephone answering service within the confines of the building.

Such service is offered by A-Top, using a call directory instrument.

There are 55 offices available for leasing in the building. As each office is leased, it will be redecorated, with tenants being invited to select their own colors, and to choose harmonizing carpeting if they desire it, Mrs. Peifer said.

Although the offices are not furnished as a rule, some office furniture is available for those requiring it, she stated.

Room air conditioning is available for those who wish it, and all offices are steam heated. A parking lot on the north side of the building is available for tenants.

A coffee shop is located in the basement of the building which also houses the Pikes Peak National Bank, a Duckwall's store and Western Services, an upholstering firm.

When the Midland Expressway is completed, tenants of the building will have a direct route to all parts of the city and to main traffic arteries leading in all directions. Expressway entrances and exits will be located at 21st and 26th Streets.

Mrs. Peifer has been a resident of Colorado Springs for 19 years. Mrs. M. M. Fairchild is president of the A-Top Employment Service, which has been in business here for two years. The firm specializes in securing jobs for professional people.

Carson Sergeant Recently Made 1st Lieutenant

Robert A. Noble, first sergeant of Ft. Carson's 94th Ordnance Detachment (Explosive Disposal), received a direct commission as first lieutenant recently.

He is attending school at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., before taking command of the 63rd Ordnance Detachment (ED) at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. His family remains at 130 Fordham, Widefield, until June.

The new lieutenant was stationed at Ft. Carson for nearly two years with the 94th, one of two explosive disposal units at Carson. He was well acquainted with law enforcement officials and firemen in the region and on the Western Slope of Colorado from civilian disposal and instruction missions completed by men of the 94th.

Noble is a former paratrooper who entered explosive disposal work in 1959. He has been on active duty for 15 years and comes from Glasgow, Mont.

The explosive disposal units at Ft. Carson serve civilians in several neighboring states in addition to their military mission of policing ranges for unexploded ammunition and related duties.

Anyone with suspicious explosives or war souvenirs not known to be deactivated is urged to call the nearest law enforcement office which will investigate and call the Carson units if necessary.

EMBLEM—On this expansion bracelet has been approved by the American Medical Association as the universal warning symbol to be worn by persons afflicted with hidden medical conditions. The AMA directs that the emblem be on a device that is durable, nonallergic, waterproof and contains up-to-date medical information. Trees of History

In all parts of the United States, there are trees which abound in life stories of people and events which became historical with people who became famous. Thru out all the ages trees, have had an important share in human progress.

Their story is closely interwoven with the march of time and have been a part of war, art and literature. They have stood as silent witnesses to man's achievement and have carried messages of past to generations of the future. Many trees now living have offered shade and protection to three and four generations.

In the redwood forests of California stood the wonderful General Sherman. It was of gigantic growth at the Birth of Christ. It had a diameter of 36 ft. and a height of 280 feet. In the grounds of the White House at Washington, stood a tree that linked the past and present in an unusual manner. This tree was the outgrowth of an acorn brought from Russia, so because of its unique lineage. It is known as the Russo-American Oak. The tree from which the acorn was obtained, stood in Petrograd. In turn that tree grew from an acorn produced by a tree at the tomb of Washington at Mt. Vernon.

The Mt. Vernon acorn was sent to the Czar of Russia by a senator from Massachusetts and planted in the grounds of the Imperial Palace by the Czar himself as symbol of Russo-American friendship. Way back in 1898, the tree which had grown from this acorn was located by the then American ambassador Hitchcock to St. Peterburg. Gathering and planting some acorns from this tree, the ambassador sent a sapling of a new generation to President Theodore Rossevelt for planting Theodore Roosevelt for planting on the White House grounds.

Later, as we know, United States and Russia joined hands with other European countries in the great conflict which led to destruction of old Russia and assassination of the royal family.

The young tree was planted by President Roosevelt himself. George Washington planted a tree that was a priceless momento for many, many years. On Connecticut avenue, the Treaty Oak stood for the reason that under its branches an important treaty with the Indians was signed.

At Salem, New Jersey, stood an oak three whose branches covered almost a quarter of an acre and Washington's army drilled under it.

In various parts of America, there were many trees made famous thru the association with Marquis de Lafayette. When the French General was wounded, he was given first aid under one of the trees and was held famous for years and years.

At Annapolis a reception to Lafayette was held under one of the large trees. One oak was called the Battleground because of its association with the Revolution and the Wesley oak at Georgia where John and Charles Wesley were known to have preached. The Shakespeare memorial oak on the campus of Rochester University, brought from Shakespeare's home.

Under all conditions and in all climes, trees have proved themselves worthy in the hearts of people. Since time began, the tree has been the unfailing friend of the human race.

Sno-White Firm Remodels Laundry Plant, Call Office

Sno-White Laundry and Cleaners is in the process of remodeling its laundry and cleaning plant at 2515 W. Colorado Ave. The remodeling and construction will involve 124 running feet of frontage on West Colorado Avenue at an estimated cost of $20,000.

Initial phase of the remodeling program involved the construction of a new concrete block and stucco call office, located at the west end of the property.

Warren Davis, of Davis & Davis Construction Co., Inc., contractor for the project, employed a novel means of constructing the new call office which permitted him to keep his workers out of the weather.

He erected the entire building within the old one, including the roof, before razing the existing structure. Construction of the new call office has been completed. The new building sits back from the street about five feet further than did the old one.

Legend has it that the razed building once contained three bars, and that Frank James, brother of the famed outlaw Jesse James, once dealt faro in one of the taverns.

One feature of the new and larger call office will be an automatic Consec-U-Veyor, a device which enables call office personnel to return freshly cleaned garments to customers with a minimum of effort and a maximum of efficiency.

The project is scheduled to be completed in 90 days after the starting date. The work has been under way for about four weeks. Architect is Harry M. Pierceall, 324 Independence Building.

Sno-White has branch call offices at 116 S. Cascade Ave., 731 W. Colorado Ave., 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., 1701 S. Tejon St., 1701 N. Tejon St., and 1228 E. Fillmore St.

APPOINTED — Gordon Wegner has been appointed sales representative of the Merchant division of the SCM Corp. Marchant, located in new offices at 101 N. Union Blvd., i sa leader in the field of calculating and adding machines. Wegner, formerly with IBM, is a long-time resident of Colorado Springs. He is an elder in the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Knights of the Round Table service club. He resides at 2114 Constitution Ave.

Stock Market Squeaks Out New Historic Highs

By ED MORSE
AP BUSINESS NEWS WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market averages this week once again squeaked out new historic highs wile the course of the "market" itself remained a question of debtate.

The market was repeating a kind of crab-wise pattern familiar in 1963 when rotating groups of blue chips pushed the list relentlessly higher during most of the year.

Jacques Coe of Cowen & Co. said, "In quantity, 50 per cent of the stocks have not been in a genuine bull market and, in fact, many actually have been in definite bear markets."

The Dow Jones industrials this week rose 2.97 to 794.56, closing a shade below their historic peak of 794.82 made Wednesday.

The rise was confirmed by over-all market statistics which showed that of 1,500 issues traded, 737 rose and 570 fell.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached a record high of 294.7 on Wednesday and ended the week at 294.7, making a gain of 1.2 on the week.

Volume hummed along at 22,026,010 shares compared with 21,359,679 a week ago.

The general background of economic and corporate news remained quite encouraging. For Wall Street, however, the biggest news was the setting of a bargain price of $100 share by American Telephone on its new stock rights subscription.

Since AT&T common closed at $146 on the day the price was set, this was a windfall gift to AT&T's army of 2¼ million shareholders, the greatest stock-owning family in the world.

The AT&T rights were traded on volume of 3,375,900 Wednesday and were quoted at 2⅜ at the close.

Rallies were staged by the savings-and-loan holding companies, cigar manufacturers, airlines and office equipments.

Selected rails also did well, New York Central rising 3½ to 32⅜.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, up ⅜ at 40¾ on 502,600 shares; American Telephone, up 3 at 144⅝ on 358,100 shares; General Dynamics, up 2¼ at 28⅜; Xerox, up 6½ at 82; and Sperry Rand, off ¼ at 19⅜.

The five most active issues this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Syntex, off 5 at 121 on 546,900 shares; Stanrock Uranium, up ½ at 1⅜; Seaboard World Airlines, up ¼ at 6⅛; Data-Control Systems, up 2⅛ at 41¾; and TWA warrants, off ⅞ at 6⅞.

The C.S. Long Lines the American Telephone & Telegraph Company's new cable ship, carries sonar equipment to chart the ocean bottom, an X-ray machine to check splices and a $3-million engine to unreel cable.

Included in the five huge crates are parts for a full-sized reproduction of St. Peter's tomb and a 5th - century Christian sarcophagus.

Michelangelo's Pieta, the most valuable single piece of art to be displayed, will be shipped from Naples probably in April.

Cigarette Sales Drop in New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Cigarette sales in New York State fell off nearly 10 million packages last month, cutting state revenues by about a half-million dollars.

A spokesman for the State Tax Department said today the decline probably was a reaction to the federal government report branding cigarette smoking as a danger to health.

The department reported that cigarette-tax collections for the full month of January totaled $9,710,503, down $480,511 from the $10,191,014 collected in January 1963.

The tax is 5 cents a package.

Child Welfare Therapy Plan

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Kentucky child welfare officials are pleased with the success of a group therapy program for young delinquents.

In the last year, 80 to 90 per cent of the youngsters who received the group treatment stayed out of trouble after their release from state homes.

Under such a program, groups of 10 youngsters meet daily with a leader to discuss how they worked and played together, got along with their supervisors and how their attitude affected this.

Belco Acquires Interest In Local Firm

Arrangements have been completed for Belco Inc. of Oklahoma City, Okla. to acquire majority interest of the Mayfield Engineering Co. of Colorado Springs. Mayfield is a contracting and electrical construction company which was organized here in 1961.

The company has completed several relatively large electrical construction contracts locally including the electrical portion of the construction of Olin Hall, the science building of Colorado College, and the new building now occupied by the Headquarters, Air Defense Com- Headquarters. Air Defense Com-

Currently the company has contracts for the electrical portion of the new Imperial 400 motel on South Nevada Avenue and Central Mortgage and Investment building on North Tejon Street.

Belco Inc. is also an electrical construction company engaged in the construction industry in Oklahoma at present. The acquisition of major interest in the Mayfield Engineering Company will be an expansion of the activities of Belco Inc. into Colorado again.

Several years ago, Belco and a predecessor of Belco completed construction contracts in Colorado including construction at Ft. Carson. The Mayfield Engineering Co. will be maintained and operated as a separate and independent company, however, and will remain in Colorado Springs.

David Harold Ware has been named to be the president of Mayfield. He will move to Colorado Springs shortly from Oklahoma City, and reside here with his wife, Ramona. He has been employed by Belco for several months and earlier by the Thomas Reed and Sons of Joliet, Ill., also an electrical construction company. Ware is a 1959 graduate of Oklahoma State University where he majored in business and accounting.

Metz, France, has renamed its Rue Jeanne d'Arc, Rue J.F. Kennedy.

Corporate Finance Takes Week's Business Spotlight

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The biggest corporate financing program in U.S. history took the business spotlight during the past week.

It was undertaken by American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which turned to its family of 2.25 million stockholders to raise $1,225,000,000.

The company offered its shareholders the opportunity of purchasing 12.25 million shares at $100 each. This was $46 below the market price on the day the offer was made.

Trading began on the New York Stock Exchange on Wednesday with 3,375,000 changing hands.

American Telephone's common stock surged to a new all-time high.

It helped the general stock market, as measured by the averages, reach a new historic peak.

The magnitude of AT&T's money raising undertaking is illustrated by the fact that all common stock financing in 1962 totaled $1.3 billion.

AT&T will use the proceeds of its stock offer to help finance a $3.25-billion growth and modernization program for its telephone system in 1964.

Also in the communications field, the Communications Satellite Corp. reported that six companies had answered its request to submit proposals for designing an international commercial satellite.

AT&T and Radio Corp. of America submitted a joint proposal. Thompson Ramo Wooldridge, Inc.'s proposal included International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. as principal subcontractor. Individual proposals were submitted by Hughes Aircraft Co. and Ford Motor Co.'s Philco Corp. subsidiary.

Business and individuals were encouraged by the progress being made toward enactment of the income tax reduction legislation.

Different versions of the bill have been passed by the House and Senate, and conferees from both bodies are trying to reconcile differences.

The Department of Commerce reported that the U.S. balance of payments improved further in the fourth quarter of 1963. The quarterly deficit was the smallest in years.

For the year as a whole the United States had a deficit of $3.02 billion.

In the second half, the deficit was at an annual rate of $1.6 billion, the lowest since the balance of payments began to be a serious problem in 1958.

Reasons given for the improvement were reduced net purchases of foreign securities and a spurt in exports, particularly agricultural products to both Communist and non-Communist countries.

The Commerce Department also reported that inventories rose only slightly in December from November and that total business sales climbed to a record.

Inventories gained $80 million to a total of $102.75 billion against an increase of $790 million in November.

Sales in December totaled $68.96 billion, up from $67.19 billion in November.

Automobile production dipped during the week to an estimated 164,900 passenger cars from 168,360 the previous week but was well ahead of the 149,392 built a year ago.

Chrysler Corp., last of the Big Three automakers to announce 1963 sales and earnings, joined General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. in reporting a record year.

Chrysler earned $161.6 million, equal to $4.35 a share, compared with $65.4 million, or $1.81 a share. Sales climbed to $3.5 billion from $2.37 billion.

Steel mills turned out during the week 2.22 million tons of ingots, up 3,000 tons from the previous week and the highest weekly level since last June 29.

Indians were the first Americans to frequent the sites of mineral waters. Warring tribes buried their tomahawks at what is now Hot Springs, Ark., so all the braves could benefit from the healthful flow.

SINGLE WALL SAVES

One of the least expensive ways to build a good-looking wall is with the Douglas Fir Plywood Association's Sturd-i-Wall technique. This method involves the application of a single layer of plywood that acts as both sheathing and siding.

Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

How the early pioneers loved these western mountains. Altho it was the lure of the gold in them that first drew men not living among them soon caused the men and later the women to look upon their majesty and friendliness as a part of their daily strength and inspiration. We children of these early settlers who knew no other playgrounds learned to love them too.

My favorite that has stood near me all my life, is grand old Cheyenne Mountain.

He shows his rugged face every sunny morning of the year and when his face is shrouded in clouds or mist, I need not worry for I know that in spite of the veil he is still there, standing firm as the everlasting hills.

I might tell you that I have lived all my life in the shadow of this mountain, but that would not be quite true, since the shadow of that gigantic cliff has never once fallen across my home. You see, Cheyenne Mountain rears its majestic height to the south of our house and even when in the shortest days of winter the sun goes down behind its northernmost end it cannot quite project its shadow across my windows and doors.

It has been said that this mountain is the highest one in the world to lift itself directly from the plain. Not having been all over the world, I cannot say. Our dear Colorado poetess, Helen Hunt Jackson, in her beautiful verses written in admiration of it, says, "as if it had no thought of soaring when it first began."

Many times my friends and I have visited the very tip of that height; on foot, when as young folks we carried our lunch to eat under the big boulders at the summit, then later on horseback, when we feared for the animals' misplaced hooves among the rocks. Many times with a party of friends we made the climb on burros, feeling secure on those wonderfully sure-footed little shaggy fellows, who patiently trod the narrow little paths or stopped to crop the grasses that bent to greet us on our way.

Twice we were picnicking on the very summit when the Thunder Gods let loose their darts and their cannon, causing deafening rolls of thunder that reverberated among the huge boulders and made us feel that if the lightning darts that played on the ground around us did not kill us the noise surely would.

When the auto road was built across the face of this old friend and neighbor, the old timers were full of concern that the mountain should be so scarred. But one day some of us changed our minds. It was when we dashed into the attractive lodge that had been built on the summit, to seek protection from a fierce mountain storm, wondering what might have happened to us had we been without its shelter. And too, Mother Nature is doing her best to heal the big gash and some distant day the mountain will be able to show us a more pleasing front.

Of course we all love the music and the marking of the hours that come down to us from the Will Rogers Shrine, and rejoice, too, that so many visiting and home friends can now so easily make the climb to the summit, when before Mr. Penrose took the big hill over, it was seldom visited.

One autumn day long ago, while my father and several other men were busy in the harvest fields on what was then known as the Myers place, now Broadmoor, they heard a terrific roar on Cheyenne Mountain and looking up saw a large cloud of dust just below the horns of that mountain, as one of those sharp peaks crumpled and fell many hundreds of feet to the valley below, the valley now known as Fisher's Canon. This probably happened in the early 1860s, since I failed to ask my father about the exact date.

Here's hoping that proud old Cheyenne Mountain keeps its remaining four horns for many a day yet, since much of its magnificent beauty surrounds those giant projections.

The pity of it is that no one ever went to the spot to see just how much of the mountain had fallen. They only knew that after that day one of the giant horns was missing and there was nothing to be done about it. Had that happened in these times plenty of our rugged mountain climbers would have set off without delay to look over the grounds and report the incident. In that early day no newspaper was to be had to furnish us with the big headlines. But, even yet, it might be possible to locate the immense "horn" lying at the foot of his fellow members who still point proudly to the skies, if it were not for the fact that the "horn" broke into thousands of pieces and long after when sister Helen and I went to look over the ground no immense boulder was to be seen.

When I was a small child I mixed this report of the fallen horn with one concerning a young man named Dick Sysick, who fell from a ledge in the Glen Eyrie region, breaking his arm. I used to look up and wonder which rock on my mountain had Dick fallen from. Too, I pictured him as going about with only one arm, thinking it must have broken off entirely as my china doll's arm did when it broke.

My older sister said that the broken arm was indeed missing the rest of Dick's ilfe. She said that he was sitting reading a book one Sunday on a rocky ledge when the rock slipped down and with it went the young man. And later, this young man married a woman in Colorado Springs and then not long after his father married the daughter of Dick's wife. There was a lot of speculation in those days as to the exact relationship of the two families. I have figured it out that no matter how mixed it all might be, there was only one mother-in-law.

We should never blame Cheyenne Mountain for the death of those brave soldiers whose plane several years ago crashed while they were trying to fly over its crest and were dashed to death in Fisher's Canon. Man-made war did that, not God's mountain.

I met a man whose home was in Indiana but who was visiting in Colorado Springs. He said quite earnestly, "You people in Colorado Springs should be very good people. You have those beautiful mountains for a daily inspiration." And indeed we are fortunate that we are so often privileged to "lift our eyes unto the hills."

CU Receives $54,100 NSF Science Grants

The Univesrity of Colorado has been awarded $54,100 in National Science Foundation grants for two 1964 School of Education summer institutes for science and mathematics teachers.

They are a "Summer Institute in Mathematics for Key Elementary School Personnel," directed by Asst. Prof. Harold E. Harper, and a "Summer Institute in Curircular Studies for Secondary School Science Supervisors," directed by Assoc. Prof. Harold M. Anderson.

The mathematics institute, which has a $32,100 NSF grant, will be held from July 29 to Aug. 21 for 40 elementary school teachers. Participants will be offered three courses in algebra, geometry and mathematics education. Purpose is to train persons to run in-service mathematics programs in their own school systems, Harper said.

Faculty will include Harper, W. H. Spragens of the University of Louisville and Bruce E Meserve, president-elect of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and a faculty member at Montclair State College (N. J.).

About 25 grade and high school science supervisors will participate in the curricular studies institute under a $22,000 NSF grant. They will spend July 20 to Aug. 14 learning the latest developments in science education at all levels, evaluating national science programs and exchanging ideas.

Directors or associate directors will participate from such national programs as Biological Science Curriculum Study, Phsical Science Study Committee, Chemical Materials Study, Chemical Bond Approach, Earth Science Curriculum Project, School Mathematics Study Group and new programs in elementary and junior high science education.

Participants for both CU institutes will be selected later this spring.

NEW VW HOME—Construction is now under way at 730 N. Circle Dr. on the new automotive enter which will house Phil Winslow Motors, Inc., Volkswagen and Porsche dealer in Colorado Springs. This is an architect's drawing of the new facility which is scheduled for opening in June. Philip E. Winslow is president and general manager of the firm ,and his son, Phil A. Winslow, is vice president and assistant general manager. Present location of the firm, formerly Colorado Springs Motors, Ltd., is 2353 E. Highway 24.

Cure Believed Found for Trichinosis

The first specific cure for trichinosis is believed to have been found by three Texas physicians.

A 34 - year - old woman who contracted trichinosis from eating uncooked pork made a rapid recovery after she was given a new broad spectrum drug to fight intestinal worms, thiabendazole. Drs. Orville J. Stone, Charles T. Stone Jr. , and J. Fred Mullins, Galveston reported in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

The drug, limited to investigational use in human beings had been previously reported to be effective against trichinosis in animals, and the drug had also been used in patients for diseases caused by other intestinal parasistes.

On admission to the hospital, the Galveston patient could not walk unaided and had generalized muscle pain and tenderness, according to the Journal report. Thiabgendazole was administered on the sixth hospital day, and within 48 hours, she showed marked improvement. Seven days after this drug therapy was begun the woman was discharged from the hospital with normal strength and no muscle pain or tenderness. The only side effect was mild, transient dizziness.

"Altho this is but a single case report, the response was sufficiently dramatic to suggest that thiabendazole is highly effective in cases of human trichinosis since such rapid improvement is inconsistent with the normal course of this desease," the authors said.

"We believe that the patient . has been cured. To our knowledge, this is the first reported cure of a proven case of human trichinosis. The use of this drug for cases of trichinosis in humans deserves further study."

Infection is contracted following ingestion of pork containing the encysted larvae of Trichinella spirals. Soon after liberation of the larvae from their cysts, they migrate, multiply, and are distributed throughout the body. The larvae enter skeletal muscle and encyst.

The organism which causes the disease is identical in man and in the experimental animals successfully treated, the physicians explained. In animal work the organism has been killed by thiabendazole, even when encysted, they said. Since repeated biopsies to determine, if the same is true in man are not feasible, they said, the criterion for success must be the patient's condition.

"We have been very favorably impressed by this patient's clinical course," they said. "Whether completely encysted larvae are killed in man is largely an academic question, since they do not contribute to morbidity or mortality."

Trichinosis is common in Europe and North America and uncommon in other parts of the world. In the United States, the incidence is between 15 and 20 per cent, but most infections do not produce symptoms.

Important is controlling the infection is cooking garbage fed to hogs. There is at present no practical method of inspection which will detect trichinous pork. Proper cooking kills the organism.

Volkswagen Dealer Builds New Home on Circle Drive

Construction has been launched and is well underway on the new home of Volkswagen in Colorado Springs. A complete facility to cost more than $300,000, the new modern automotive center will house Phil Winslow Motors, Inc. (formerly Colorado Springs Motors, Ltd.), and is located at 730 N. Circle Dr.

Announcement of the undertaking, which is scheduled for completion in May, came from Philip E. Winslow, president and general manager of the authorized Volkswagen and Porsche dealership. His son, Philip A. Winslow, is vice president and assistant general manager of the Colorado Springs VW outlet.

Until the new facilities are completed, Phil Winslow Motors, Inc. will continue to operate from its present location at 2353 E. Highway 24. Plans now are for a grand opening of the new center in June.

Unique utilization of a spacious area of more than 70,000 square feet contained in the new building site is already in evidence. The new Winslow Motors structure will contain over 16,000 square feet of space, and will highlight outstanding service and sales features.

Among these will be an attractive, modern showroom and offices; a complete parts and accessories department stocking all of VW's 5,008 intregal parts; and a service department and shop facilities that will be the last word in furnishing all the requirements of excellence that have become Volkswagen standards.

Designed for the ultimate in customer convenience and comfort, one feature that indicates ultra-planning in this area are provisions that include infra-red outside heating for service area customers.

The new facilities are alsc planned to insure efficiency by Winslow Motors' personnel, each of whom are factory trained. These VW specialists periodically attend factory schools to maintain the highest standards in all phases of dealership operation as they relate to all sales and service of Volkswagen and Porsches.

Commenting on the dealership's expansion program in Colorado Springs, Phillip E. Winslow stated that not only has the dealership substantially outgrown its present facility constructed less than five years ago but his confidence on several counts also contributed substantially to this major move. These included his confidence in the continued popularity of Volkswagen and Porsche, recognized as the most internationally accepted of all automobiles and his confidence in the continued growth and sound economy of the Colorado Springs area.

The elder Winslow also added that he felt his dealership not only has a responsibility to provide the finest in sales and service facilities and personnel to local residents, but it also has the important responsibility of maintaining the highest standards for Volkswagen and Porsche owners from every state in the union, and many foreign countries, who visit Colorado Springs during the course of every year.

A Colorado Springs contractor, Bruce Hughes, Inc., is the general contractor on the construction project. All sub-contrats work will be handled by several local contractors. Architect is Carlisle B. Guy of Colorado Springs.

There are now more than 700 authorized Volkswagen dealers in the United States, and Phil Winslow Motors, Inc. is the Colorado Springs link in this vast chain of specialized VW sales and service for Americans. These authorized dealerships nationally represent an investment of well over $100 million by independent American businessmen.

Volkswagen's popularity for economy-minded motorists has long been established, but VW's importance to the American economy cannot be overlooked, and is heightened by the fact that VW purchases many millions of dollars worth of sheet steel, coal, hydraulic presses and machine tools from American manufactures each year.

In addition, the Volkswagen organization in this country — importer, distributors and dealers — now spend nearly $8 million a year in the varied advertising media alone carrying the VW story to the general public.

Local Society To Celebrate Engineer Week

The Pikes Peak Chapter of the National Society of Professional Engineers is joining with the other chapters thruout the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, in celebrating national engineers', week starting today the local chapter as do the others, has a membership of regular members who hold a current and valid license issued by the state of Colorado for the practice of engineering; and associate members who can become eligible for regular membership.

The theme for this year's national engineers' week is "creative engineering — design for tomorrow." Various engineering organizations and companies in and around Colorado Springs will present articles to the news media depicting what they are doing in behalf of providing a new and exciting tomorrow.

Two projects in which the Pikes Peak Chapter has participated during the 1963-64 year are as follows:

(1) Under the chairmanship of Col. Joseph R. McCammon, several local engineers presented information including requirements and prospects of an engineering career. To interested students at Wasson, Palmer, and Cheyenne Mountain High Schools. Those engineers participating in this program were: Kenneth R. Kolstad, Fred R. Leffler, Dana D. Sherrill.

(2) The National Society of Professional Engineers assisted in selecting nominees for three different scholarships thru local chapters in each state. Three local engineers contacted 82 high schools in this area covering much of Southeastern Colorado. The three students selected were: Ann Nichols of 208 Pawnee in Manitou Springs for the Armco Scholarship (Civil Engineering); David Bubenick of 614 Alexander Circle in Pueblo for the Gerber Scholarship (Electrical or mechanical engineering); Gary Futoma of 712 Topaz Drive in Colorado Springs for the Monsanto Scholarship (Chemical Engineering) Miss Nichols was narrowly beat out at the state level competition for Colorado's nominee to national competition. Both public and parochial schools were contacted. Everett C. Wallace and Dana D. Sherrill worked under the chairmanship of Donald B. Taylor for selecting the local candidates.

The counseling in high school is very important because the engineering schools have generally raised entrance requirequirements for freshmen in recent years. Some educators have stated that toays engineering school's freshman begins his studies at a level where the freshmen of only a few years ago where at the end of their first college year. The youngster who makes a decision for engineering for a career late in his high school program and who has not taken the necessary background courses in math and science faces a real problem in terms of making up these courses in a way that will satisfy engineering school admittance officers.

The Pikes Peak chapter holds monthly meetings except for the three summer months. The main program for these meetings is usually of a technical nature of interest to all engineers. The officers for the current year are: William E. Temple, president, employed by Don Esch, Inc.; Lisle V. Wilson, vice president, employed by the Air Defense Command; Donald J. Vinson, secretary - treasurer, employed by Colorado Interstate Gas Co.; Leon R. Henry and Dana D. Sherrill, State Board members, both employed by Colorado Interstate Gas Co.

The engineers of the Pikes Peak Region are developing new methods and-or are applying new principals developed by engineers in other areas to provide a brighter and happier to morrow for the citizens of this area.

Quest for Law Flight From Law

If we would understand, words are the cups that carry understanding to us. But words are strange cups. For they do not look the same to the various people who use them.

This fact of common experience was brought into our mind abruptly the other day. A very able man was lecturing on the nature of law in the United States. He stated that from about 1800 until 1930 we had experienced in this nation what he chose to call a "quest for law." Beginning about 1930 until the present time, he charged, there has been a "flight from law."

It wasn't until we were able to question him afterwards that his meaning became clear. What he had intended conveying is that from 1800 until the 1930's there had been a rather constant move toward "justice" in the matter of law. But following the 1930's, legal enactments were very largely flavored with a taste of injustice in that statutory enactments tended to benefit some at the expense of others.

His use of the term "law" was clearly related to natural law or common law, but he did not so specify. And had we been unable to question him afterwards to elicit his real meanning, we would have formed an erroneous opinion of his own evaluation of reality.

There are all kinds of laws. And some of them, obviously, are an attempt to translate into statutory form, natural conditions which do and must bind us all. The rights of man constitute such a body of law. So do the imperatives within the Ten Commandments.

Our problems really begin at the point where obvious natural laws are set upon by the lawmakers as a reason for the institution of statutory law. At this point, the taxpayers are assessed for the purpose of paying for the enforcement of natural law which nature enforces in her own way in her own time. This creates an immediate set of injustices against the taxpayers, forcing them to subsidize man's conception of what nature should have provided.

Tho, in the minds of lawyers and government men generally, this still provides a better situation than the lack of such laws would permit, the fact is that inequities appear virtually at once. And men, being basically fair-minded, now set about trying to enact remedial legislation. In other words, the evils originally caused by trying to embellish nature's enforcement procedures, are ringed about with new enactments seeking to offset the effects of the first enactments.

The net result, of course, is further injustices. But still the lesson is not learned and men continue to strive to enact new measures which will be universally fair and just, fully enforceable, and at the same time capable of compelling all.

This procedure, which is ages old, is neither a quest for law in the meaning of natural or common law, nor a flight from law. It is a thirst and a thrust for power in an effort to "do good things" by the use of power.

Specifically, in our own country, we are today tottering under a burden of enacted law so vast that no one "knows" the law. Yet it is a law that ignorance of the law is "no excuse" for failure to understand and obey the law. This burden of law we have acquired in good times and bad, has been a constant thing. There has been no ebb and flow that can be observed.

Starting in a small way in 1789, the passing of legislation has become a mighty flood, rising to a crescendo that is altogether overwhelming.

Our own view is that Americans have always had a quest for law of this kind. Whether the law was just or unjust has not particularly engrossed them. Whether they could benefit (never mind the cost to others) has engrossed them. We have not yet developed in this time nor at any time in our history a real "flight" from enacted legislation, as such.

But if we are serious, as so many contend, in seeking to reduce the size and power of the state, then a flight from more enacted law seems in order.

All progress and most retrogression occur from the same human desire: the desire to live beyond one's present income.

Government Hurts The General Welfare

According to a story in the National Observer, a presidential proposal to reduce unemployment has been greeted with skepticism by businessmen, and mixed feelings from labor.

President Johnson, in his budget message to Congress, proposed that the federal wage-hour law be amended to increase overtime pay from time-and-a-half to double time. By this thinking, employers then would be reluctant to pay the increased overtime and would instead hire new people at regular pay. This would mean more jobs and less unemployment.

The story continues that a survey of businessmen by the Wall Street Journal finds an overwhelming prediction of failure for the proposal. One U.S. Steel official commented: "I don't think having to pay double time would change anything right now. It would just raise our costs."

Other businessmen not only resent the charge implicit in the proposal that the only reason they work employes overtime is because it's cheaper than hiring new workers, but they also predict that such a governmental action would cut production and delay the filling of orders.

Indeed, it is hard to comprehend how government action in business operations can promote the general welfare in any respect. How can something that has nothing and creates nothing, and is not even an entity but only an agent for the creators of wealth, promote the general welfare?

Wealth, and of course thereby employment, is created by individuals who make it possible for a higher standard of living to occur. It is these individuals (businessmen) who have learned how to nourish the tree of economic life by applying the laws of nature to economics. By example and by stimulating others to follow their example, they promote the general welfare of all mankind.

Henry David Thoreau expressed exactly how the government can help, by contending that the only way it can aid the general welfare is the rapidity with which it gets out of the road of the creators of wealth.

And it is because the government has impeded the general welfare by interfering with creative energy that total production and the general welfare are reduced.

It should be simple to understand that the Johnson proposal is simply taking from one individual in an attempt to benefit another. If you take X dollars from one and give them to another, there is no increase of wealth. It is just a transfer, and it hurts the person being robbed, while at the same time weakening the self-reliance of the person receiving the stolen goods. Of course the word stolen in this case relates to the regular worker and the employer who would both be plundered by such a government action.

No, it seems impossible for government, whether it be city, county, board of education, state, federal or United Nations, to promote the general welfare by taking away the freedom of individuals voluntarily cooperating with each other.

Of course, union members are placed on the fence by the Johnson proposal. Some want the additional jobs that would be left vacant under the proposal; others would like to continue getting the fat checks from the overtime.

In any case, the employers are in a squeeze because unions would demand pay increases in basic pay to make up for the overtime loss if the government put the proposal into effect.

It might be well at this point to review that part of the Delaration of Independence which states: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happines — that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed — that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it."

Government in this case is certainly attempting to destroy the liberty of the businessmen and the economy as well.

Conference That Didn't Pay Off

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — President Johnson resorted to a suave end-run to line up powerful bipartisan congressional support for his controversial plan to give the Pentagon control of his proposed $1 billion foreign military aid budget — but was thrown for a heavy loss.

Most of the legislative leaders bluntly assailed the proposal, and made it ominously clear they would fight it to the end if he goes thru with it.

Some went so far as to warn it would jeopardize the whole foreign aid program.

Apparently on the theory that a bountiful and appetizing meal would soften them up, the President gave a dinner for members of the Senate and House foreign affairs committees, and Senator Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and Representative Otto Passman, D-La., head of the House Appropriations subcommittee that handles the foreign aid budget.

Also present at this unpublicized affair were Defense Secretary McNamara, Undersecretary of State George Ball, and David Bell, foreign aid administrator.

McNamara and Ball opened the proceedings with carefully prepared expositions in favor of the military aid shift to the Pentagon. Their arguments were an old story to the lawmakers. Then the President called on Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who also urged the proposal.

Up to this point, the well-greased proceedings were obviously prearranged. But what happened next clearly was not — and was a most painful surprise to the President and his lieutenants.

Representative Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and usually a down-the-line administration backer, unexpectedly kicked over the traces. Pleasantly but firmly, he declared the President's proposal was unacceptable and he wanted no part of it.

"I can tell you right now that neither my committee nor the House will stand for it," said Morgan. "I know that a majority of my committee is strongly against such a scheme, and I'm certain a big majority of the House is, too. In fact, if you should be so unwise as to try to put this over, that might very well lead to defeat of the whole foreign aid program."

With this bombshell still reverberating, the President called on Representative Wayne Hays, D-O., who was even more scathing. The acid - tongued midwesterner took a lusty swipe at both the President's plan and Senator Fulbright.

"The distinguished chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee," said Hays, "has to run only every six years, while we members of the House have to go to the electorate every two years. That makes a big difference, especially when the voters of Arkansas are not much interested in foreign affairs. But I can tell you that the people of Ohio are intensely interested and well informed, particularly regarding foreign aid.

"I have no intention of running on a record that calls for turning over a major part of foreign aid to the military. Aside from all other factors against that, to do so would be political suicide."

By this time, the atmosphere of the White House dining room was icy and taut, and the next speaker made it even more so.

Representative Passman, long-time militant critic of large-scale foreign aid spending, ran true to form despite the President's hospitality. Passman announced he was unalterably opposed to the President's proposal, and would do everything in his power to defeat it.

"This makes me more determined than ever before to minutely scrutinize every item of the foreign aid budget," declared Passman. "Last year we did our utmost to do that, and we're going to redouble our efforts this year. This proposition is wholly unacceptable. Congress will not approve it, and you will be making a very serious mistake if you try to put it thru."

When Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who led the long Senate battle last year that slashed $500 million from the foreign aid program, rose, the President and his lieutenants were stony-faced. They knew they were in for a rough time, and Morse didn't disappoint them.

"This plan is untenable for three basic reasons," the militant Oregonian said. "First, military aid is an integral part of foreign policy; in some parts of the world it is our foreign policy. I am unalterably opposed to turning foreign policy over to the military.

"Second, splitting up of foreign aid and turning a large part of it over to the Pentagon would be a distinct blow to the constitutional authority of Congress for an equal voice in the conduct of foreign affairs thru the appropriation of funds. That would be a grave infringement on the powers of Congress.

"Third, turning $1 billion of foreign military aid over to the Pentagon would raise very great questions regarding the efficiency and reliability of the administration of foreign aid. Congress would know very little about how this money was spent and what for. Congress would be shockingly derelict in its duty to permit that, and I am certain it won't.

"I am always glad to be of service to you, Mr. President, and in this instance the best way I can serve you is to tell you bluntly that I am opposed to this plan, and will do everything I can to prevent its enactment. As has been stated here, if it is submitted to Congress, it will not only be strenuously opposed, but might well jeopardize your whole foreign aid program."

SURPRISES

To the unvoiced surprise of the congressional leaders, the President did not call on Senator Russell.

In addition to being an old and close friend, the astute Georgian is also chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee and second in rank on the equally potent Appropriations Committee. But inexplicably, his influential views were not sought. The reason was learned later.

Getting wind of what the President contemplated, Russell had warned him that, if asked to speak, he would flatly oppose the plan. So the President played it safe.

He proposed a toast to "my old and cherished friend, Dick Russell." The latter cordially returned the compliment with a toast, "To the President."

Another surprise of this eventful gathering was the support given the President by four Republican leaders — Senators Karl Mundt, S.D., of the Foreign Relations Committee; John Sherman Cooper, Ky., of the Rules Committee; Gordon Allott, Colo., of the Appropriations Committee; and Representative Gerald Ford, Mich., of the Appropriations Committee.

Senator Stuart Symington, D-Mo., also sided with the President.

The dinner, which began around 8 p.m., concluded at midnight — after the President had taken his guests on a personally conducted tour of the upstairs living quarters of the White House and the mural-decorated swimming pool in the basement.

Note: Senator George Aiken, Vt., senior Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, wryly divides government spending into three categories, as follows:

"First, expenditures to meet the essential costs of the government. Two, expenditures for investments, such as loans and other outlays that are repaid with interest. Three, money that is poured down rat-holes, chiefly in foreign countries thruout the world."

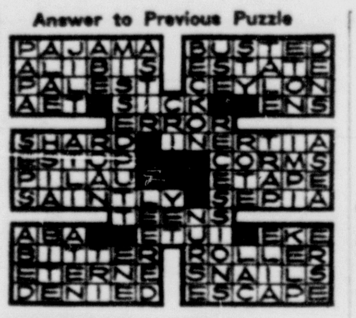
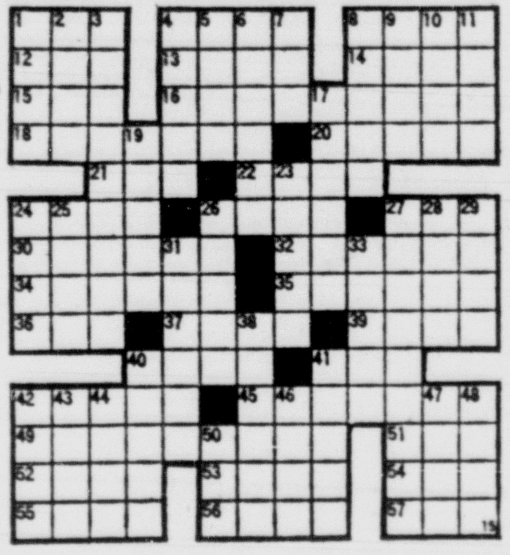
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Question Box

QUESTION No. 440: "Could there be a definite, mathematical, limited government or association or agency that did not interfere with the ownership and control of private property? If so, on what basis would it operate?"

ANSWER: Most everyone believes, in this country, that they believe in limited government. However, very few people have any definite idea of what a limited government should mean.

We believe that there could be definite, limited governments that could be mathematically defined so that they would not interfere with the ownership and management of private property.

As to how such a government would operate, it would be supported on a voluntary basis. People would pay for that part of government they wanted to use and not pay for that part of the government they did not want to use. If they did not want to pay any taxes at all, they would not have to pay for them. Nor would they receive any services from them. Those who wanted to have a government and pay taxes to support it would be free to do so.

Of course, there has never been, to our knowledge, any such government. But because we have never had such a government is no reason why it could not exist. We first must have the ideal image of such approach coming into existence.

It would seem that history shows that to the degree that we approach such a government we will develop morally, intellectually, and materially.

John W. Burgess wrote a book in 1915, two years after the graduated income tax, in which he pointed out that the United States more nearly reconciled liberty with government between 1865, after we had freed the slaves, and 1913, when we passed the graduated income tax, than any other time in our history. Of course, we more nearly reconciled liberty with government than any other nation in history.

The late Everett Dean Martin said the Declaration of Independence was the first time in all history that there was ever an attempt in a large way to have a government that was in harmony with the Sermon on the Mount, and that respected private property.

Of course, the Declaration of Independence has never been put into practice and when they wrote the Constitution they gave the state the power to tax which is anything but a "government with the consent of the governed" or a limited government. The Declaration of Independence said, "Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed." No one can give another individual's consent. Then each man would be the judge of what the just powers of a government should be. That is approaching a free market idea of society.

Yes, we believe there could be a definite limited government if we could get people to be self-reliant and responsible and realize that each man must live by the sweat of his brow or so live that someone would want to help him when he gets into trouble. To the degree that we have that kind of a government would that society, that nation, be strong and improve the well-being of mankind on this earth. We would also set a good example for the rest of the world.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Rusty Zipper

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

The post office department dreamed up a childish thing called a zip code, left it out in the rain and now it has rusted until the zipper refuses to zip. Recognizing the childishness of its effort, the post office has turned loose an all - out effort designed to appeal to children in hopes that the children will force parents into using the zip code. The post office hogwash has even insisted that use of the zip code will cause mail to be delivered more quickly. This is an absolute falsification and the post office department knows it. The entire idiocy will fall flat on its face unless the post office department cares to create a double standard for first-class mail and adjusts its rates accordingly.

Let's put it another way. When I pay first-class postage, I expect first-class treatment of my mail. If my mail is to receive less than first-class treatment unless I spend more time adding more digits to the address, then the post office department should create two classes of mail and charge accordingly.

Oh yes, I have checked this out from time to time. I have addressed envelopes without the ancient and equally ridiculous zone numbers and the mail has been delivered as quickly as when the zone numbers were included. I have done the same thing with the zip code and discovered that the post office department is just as likely to missend mail with or without the zip code.

The post office department, of its own volition, stated that the zip code would not result in any reduction in the number of employees or in a reduction in cost. The post office department stated that the new zip code system would enable the post office to continue to operate at the same level of efficiency as presently exists. I can't imagine a more uninviting sales pitch since the post office department's level of efficiency is right down to the bottom of the barrel.

Lately, the post office department has decided to include us in. Publicity insists that YOU must help YOUR postmaster and YOUR post office handle mail efficiently. I'll tell you what I am willing to do with the postmaster and the post office; I will sell my interest in the postmaster and the post office for one badly bent F.D.R. dime. As a matter of fact, I refuse to accept any responsibility for the operation of the post office, just as I refuse to accept responsibility for the operation of any bureau of government at any level.

That's one of the nice things about turning your back upon political action. You are no longer responsible for the system as long as you refuse to sanction any part of the system. Now, don't jump out of the balcony, Buster. Paying an excessive price for the carrying of your mail, does NOT sanction the system. It only acknowledges a monopoly which could not exist without the horrible power of government.

One of the funniest things I've seen involved a mail order house which has bought the zip code thing with unthinking zeal. It sent us a small package, complete with zip code, and it received the normal treatment of many packages; it was missent to Bullhead City, Arizona.

I am greatly encouraged by the fact that less than 10 per cent of my correspondents use the rusty zipper code on their return addresses. Of course this may be because they are not sure if our box number ZERO is for real. On the other hand, I like to think that people who read my columns are individualists who are not easily suckered into obedience to government, just for the sake of being obedient.

Did you ever think about the idea of government PROVING its merit? It would be so simple. Government could withdraw its prohibition against competition in the business of carrying the mail and the market place could prove its mettie in direct competition with government, but don't hold your breath. Only government knows how inefficient it is.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

These Days

The 'Air Traveler's Friend'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The trouble with big government is that when everything and everyone gets organized, things seem to cancel out in a welter of stultifying cross-purposes. There could be a change, however.

For example, we have President Lyndon Johnson naming Assistant Secretary of Labor Esther Peterson to serve as his special assistant for consumer affairs, with at least theoretical authority to break up log jams. This could be good news to a personal young crusader named David C. Quinn, a lawyer and former assistant attorney general of the State of New York who is president of the Airways Club. Mr. Quinn helped organize this group in 1960 to serve as "consumer spokesman" for air line passengers, hoping at the time that he might do for travel by air what the American Automobile Association has done for travel on the nation's highways. But Mr. Quinn, who is a licensed Naval Reserve pilot who flies DC-4s in his spare time, says he has found it difficult to get the air travel consumer's point of view across to the Federal Aviation Agency, which is supposed to have the traveler's interests at heart. He is now hoping that the appointment of Mrs. Peterson will enable him to put a clamp on the FAA, but, knowing the cross purposes of government when agency is piled on agency, he still retains some skepticism.

WAIT

In his battle to represent the air traveler, Mr. Quinn has discovered the truth of that old saying, "the best is the enemy of the good." The FAA, he says, is organized to wait forever for "perfection." Mr. Quinn is quite prepared to champion air travel as it is now constituted as being much safer than automobile travel or rail travel. But the airlines have been victimized, he says, by something that has outpaced their ability to do good detective work at the airports. Every so often a murderer or a subversive character or someone bent on suicide succeeds in smuggling a bomb aboard a plane, and innocent people are killed.

According to Mr. Quinn, it would be possible, for an expenditure of $10,000 at each big commercial airport, to build detonation chambers thru which each piece of luggage could be passed on its way to being stowed aboard a plane. An electromagnetic radiation field would penetrate the baggage and set off the electric detonator of any kind of bomb. No damage would be done to suitcases and bundles if they did not contain a detonator.

What bothers Mr. Quinn is that every time he brings the detonator chamber proposition to the attention of the Federal Aviation Agency, he is told about a "better idea." The "better" proposition is to pass a law compelling every manufacturer of dynamite in the country to put radioactive powder into their explosives. Then a man with a Geiger counter could test every piece of luggage before it went aboard a plane at an airport.

DRAWBACK

The drawback to this, as Mr. Quinn sees it, is that even if the FAA could get Congress to act it would force the government to police every factory manufacturing explosives. Furthermore, it would mean that workers in all the dynamite plants would be exposed to the hazards of radiation. And even if there could be 100 per cent inspection in every U.S. explosive company, there would still be a possibility that some madman or subversive, intent upon putting a bomb aboard a plane, might smuggle in some non-radioactive dynamite from overseas.

The arguments between the FAA and Mr. Quinn's Airways Club go on and on, and nobody apparently has the power to break the deadlock. And so Mr. Quinn is casting a hopeful eye in Mrs. Esther Peterson's direction.

In a second crusade Mr. Quinn's organization is calling for a study of jet aviation fuels. One of the club's members, Brigadier General J. M. Kenderdine, a deputy director of supply operations for the U.S. Department of Defense, thinks the recent crash of a 707 near Elkton, Md., may have been caused by using so-called Type B fuel, which, under certain fueling conditions, can store static electricity. In a thunder storm this static electricity can be released by lightning, and can ignite vapors in the fuel tank. For safety's sake, General Kenderdine recommends Type A jet fuel, which has no vapor pressure.

To The Point

Disaster Is Imminent

By RUSSELL KIRK

Military and political matters are going very well in South Viet Nam — for the Communists. Several years ago, Mao Tse-tung outlined in detail strategy for the total Communist conquest of Southeast Asia. The American - sponsored overthrow of the Diem government — with the consequent murder of the most dedicated anti-Communist in that quarter of the world, President Diem — has helped dear Mao a great deal.

A gentleman very much in the know, whose anonymity I preserve here, sends me a summary of the perilous situation. The Viet Cong Communists, he says, are close to victory:

"Item: The Viet Cong has now moved decisively from Phase I to Phase II of Mao's plan; and in about half of Viet Nam, they have moved to Phase III. The battles there are no longer skirmishes between guerrillas and government troops. They are pitched battles of battalion and regiment size. Guerrillas according to Mao, do not engage in such battles unless they are almost ready for the final blow. In Viet Nam, they are ready.

"Item: The orders of all officers scheduled to depart from such American depots as Ft. Lewis, Washington, to Viet Nam have been cancelled. We are pulling men out of South Viet Nam, but replacements are not only not being sent — those scheduled to go are staying home. This is absolutely reliable information.

"Item: The Pathet Lao (Communists of Laos) are negotiating to get control of the only east-west road in Laos. They will have it soon. Then it no longer will be feasible to cut off Viet Nam from China (an American military possibility in the Southeast Asia fight) by cutting Laos—not without a real fight.

"If Viet Nam is lost, Thailand goes. And now we hear talk about neutralizing South Viet Nam, only if North Viet Nam is also neutralized. I suppose Mr. Harriman will go to negotiate this 'trade.' But that also means death for every South Viet Nam administrator who has opposed the Communists—and the fall of all Southeast Asia.

"And if, after all the assurances we have given South Viet Nam, we pull out — why, the Philippines will not trust us; nor Pakistan. Peshawar airfield would mean much for our SAC boys, if the big war started."

This authority on strategy and weapons of war is scared, he says — with much reason. More and more, in the phrase of the late Whittaker Chambers, America's cause seems "the losing side" — not for lack of the sinews of war, but for lack of imagination and backbone.

Our proconsul in South Viet Nam, Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, obviously is much interested in the Republican presidential nomination: he will make a good showing in the New Hampshire primary. But perhaps he ought to be more interested in the approach of catastrophe in Southeast Asia — if only because even Republicans (who can be wondrously stupid) will decline to nominate an architect of defeat, on whose shoulders Democrats might pile the blame for the loss of a vast portion of the remaining "free world."

In the inner circles of the Johnson administration, and in the hierarchy of the State Department, are important people who want to pull American troops out of Viet Nam and force the present anti-Communist Khanh military regime in Saigon to surrender, in effect, to our common enemies — just what those same people did in Laos. Does Ambassador Lodge have the intelligence and the courage to demand a different course?

CRISES

To the Editor:

It seems as if, or it is an established fact, that this country, the once great United States, is facing crisis after crisis created by the Communists and after each crisis we face, our Washington officials seem to have the audacity to try to make the American people feel as if we have won a victory.

Why should we be faced with these crises when we are the only country in the world who has been pouring money down the rat holes in the very same countries in which these crises occur?

The Cuban water cut-off is our latest crisis. The latest propaganda concerning this crisis appeared in the Gazette Telegraph February 10 on page one, headlined, "U.S. to Fire Cuban Civilians at Guantanamo Naval Base," sounded good but when this item was analyzed, it calmed down as an example. A special Navy survey group returned from a flying visit to Guantanamo and submitted its recommendations to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

If a paragraph is skipped in this article, it will be found that a Pentagon spokesman said he did not know yet how many of the 3,000 Cuban nationals working on the base would be fired, or exactly when this would happen.

Several paragraphs later, on page four, column five, you may read, "The Defense spokesman said he was unable to say yet what would be done to replace the Cuban workers who are to be fired." The following paragraph: "These workers perform many jobs vital to the smooth running of the base." Pure unadulterated hogwash.

In my opinion, the Pentagon official who made that statement, or statements, should be kicked, not relieved, from further duty, off the federal payroll without the benefit of any type of severance pay.

Why not fire all the Cubans on the Guantanamo payroll? This writer witnessed and endured numerous rough times in the jungles during World War II and it must be said that we made out okay, without paying a fabulous salary to natives wherever we went in order to have a base run smooth. The American serviceman will get along any place in the world if given the opportunity to prove his worth.

Ten will get you one if over 500 of the Cuban workers are fired. It is doubtful that any get fired, and if they do, they will be given leave with pay until the Cuban fishermen are released in order to appease his honor, Fidel Castro. The water will then be turned on again with honorable victory for both the U.S. and Cuba. Ha!

Ten will get you one that the Cuban fishermen will be found not guilty, or some other more technical term will be used to free them on some sort of concocted condition that the same act will not be committed again by the same Cubans. These are my predictions, so let's see what takes place.

At present, this crisis is in the hands of the Organization of American States. This organization includes some South American countries who have collected large sums of foreign aid from this country but are now being dominated by Communist influence. It is time we wonder as to how much support the U.S. will get from the OAS. In all probability, not much, if any. Hope I am wrong.

The Kremlin hoodlums have made their gains thru false promises, lies, treason and propaganda. One hundred per cent of their lying, treasonous propaganda has been directed at the United States, the only country who has poured foreign aid funds down the rat holes of the countries who are under communism, or Communist influenced, and would do everything in their power to cut our throats. U.S. taxpaying suckers seem to love this treatment.

Us stupid taxpayers furnish foreign aid money to gain friends. The Kremlin hoodlums use propaganda to ridicule us as being capitalist hoodlums with only one thing in mind and that is to subjugate them into our capitalistic form of slavery. This is the last thing the non-communist taxpayers would care to see happen. In fact, the non-communist taxpayer, in my opinion, would fight to prevent it happening. I know this one would.

Here's a point all American taxpaying citizens of this country should realize: there's lots of Communist taxpayers in this country who pay taxes to remain citizens of this country, but at the same time, they are dedicated to overthrow our form of government by force, if necessary, to gain their cause, "communism." Why? They only are able to answer "Why."

Ten will also get you one that if they had a choice of being exported to Russia, or any country and give up their United States citizenship, or remain in this country and dedicate their lives to the true cause of the U.S., they would select to remain in this country, but I venture to say they would bear watching. In plain speaking English, they could not be trusted.

The words "by force," as the trend goes, or has been going for the past 20 to 40 years, could be stricken from their dedicated cause (the Communist cause, I mean). If the trend continues for the next 10 years, they will have us completely surrounded and when that happens, there will be nothing for us to do but surrender without honor. The facts are before us. Let's face them.

Failure of a Socialist Dream In Education

By TOSHIO MURATA
Kanto Gakuin University
Yokohama

More than 15 years ago, one local education board in Japan, for the first time, introduced an equalitarian system into public senior high schools. Quite contrary to a great expectation on the part of Marxism-oriented teachers who had enthusiastically supported the experiment, it ended up with a complete failure. Here is an analysis of the bitter lesson.

The drastic change was brought about by a superintendent of educational affairs who had been elected to his office thru systematic mobilization of the members of the Japan Teachers' Union in his election campaign.

"From now on, we will admit all students to public senior high schools without entrance examinations." When this was announced by the superintendent, quite a few parents naively welcomed the news with applause. Especially rejoicing were those parents who had been worrying about the bare possibility of their children with poor records passing entrance examinations. According to the statement by the superintendent, the object of the new plan was to give all the students equal opportunity for senior high school education. He promised to see to it that more schools would be built to meet the future increase of applicants.

Advocates of the new scheme also hoped that it would remove inferiority complex from students who might have otherwise failed in the entrance examinations. It is true that those students no longer felt such humiliation, but a new inferiority complex entered by the back door.

Some of them did not have scholarship enough to follow lessons on a senior high school level. For them a new school life meant merely a crown of thorns. They wanted to drop out, but they feared that people might regard them as expelled students from free-pass public high schools. Instead they tried to find "better 'oles" where they might satisfy their ego. It was thru such a process that they appealed to smoking, drinking, stealing, political demonstrations, violence and immorality, in order to feel themselves great. It is no exaggeration to say that the equalitarian system was a cause of juvenile delinquency. Socialist teachers defended these delinquents when honest teachers proposed to expel them from school. Accordingly, some schools turned into "blackboard jungles."

The work of the best students was formerly recognized thru prizes, but the stimulus was now rejected on account of its possibly giving inferiority complex to the other students.

Under such unfavorable circumstances and lessened pressure to do good work, students lost the habit of working hard. Only a few bright students could barely pass exams for good colleges. Quite a few of the advocates of the socialist plan sent their own children, on the sly, to private high schools that they might not become victims of the plan. Many parents followed them, and private high schools enjoyed a very high standard of education. On the other hand, a public high school was virtually turned into "a home for backward students."

When the Ministry of Education tried to investigate the scholarship of high school students on a national scale, socialist teachers strongly protested against it. They even went so far as to instigate their students to boycott the test. After several years' struggle, the Ministry succeeded in getting substantial information. As expected, the socialist plan showed lowest efficiency of all the education boards in Japan.

Originally, the socialist plan was to give good education with nominal tuition to children of the poor families. As a matter of fact, the system worked inversely. Only private high schools can give high standard of education, and students have to pay expensive tuitions and large donations to private high schools.

On the other hand, the local government could no longer bear the heavy burden of building more and more schools in order to honor the commitments by the socialist superintendent who had been dismissed.

It was not until last year that the education board finally succeeded in returning to the traditional entrance examinations to select only qualified students.

The consequences of the socialist dream have not yet been redressed. It will probably take them another decade to bring education back to its normal condition.

The ex-superintendent ran for a gubernatorial election under the Japan Socialist Party. He was also indorsed by the Communist Party. His former right-hand man, an ex-chief of the school affairs section of the education board ran for election to the House of Representatives under the Japan Communist Party. Judging from this we might say that this was a Communist conspiracy to lower educational level of Japanese students to discourage gifted younger people, and to spread juvenile delinquency.

Most socialists are too much obsessed with inferiority complex, which is another name for jealousy. However, it can never be removed by merely leveling down our outer conditions. The only answer is faith in the love of Jesus Christ Who died on the cross to save the least of us all and gives a new strength and meaning of existence to any one who accepts Him as his Savior.

We must not forget the fundamental fact that God created us free and unequal. Instead of striving to equalize different talents, we should develop them to the fullest extent.

Our spiritual and material well-being can be promoted only by voluntary cooperation in the free market among different members with different endowments. This is what the failure of the socialist dream teaches us.

Hockstrasser Named Wildlife Week Chairman

Herb Hockstrasser of Fort Morgan, has been named state chairman to direct the 1964 national Wildlife Week observance in Colorado from March 15 to March 21. Hockstrasser is vice-president of the Colorado Wildlife Federation which joins with the National Wildlife Federation in sponsoring the annual conservation education project this year.

National Wildlife Week is held each year during the week in which the first day of spring occurs. It was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938. Since that time Wildlife Week has served as an important function to focus public attention on the importance of natural resource conservation and highlights specific conservation issues.

According to Hockstrasser, the theme this year will be "America Needs Outdoor Recreation—Act Now To Provide For The Future." The theme will highlight positive steps which can be taken by citizens and government agencies on the local, state and national level to plan for the establishment of adequate outdoor recreation facilities for the future.

Work Begins In Spring for Frying Pan-Ark

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, (AP)—The U.S. Reclamation Bureau will open an office in Glenwood Springs April 1 to supervise construction of Western Slope units of the $170 million Fryingpan-Arkansas Project.

A construction engineer will be appointed later to head the office under supervision of J. L. Ogilvie, manager of the project at Pueblo.

Work will begin this spring on the first feature of the project, the Ruedi Dam and Reservoir near Basalt. This will provide replacement storage for average annual diversions of 69,200 acre-feet of water to be channeled by the western slope collection system into a tunnel piercing the Continental Divide.

The diverted water will supplement the irrigation supply for 280,000 acres of project lands in the Arkansas River Valley. It also will provide water for municipal and industrial use by Pueblo, Colorado Springs and other cities in the Arkansas basin.

When completed the Fryingpan project will generate 123,900 kilowatts of commercial power which will help repay federal costs.

Sirius, also known as the Dog Star, is the brightest star in the heavens. It is visible in the winter months of the northern hemisphere.

CC Receives Unrestricted Gulf Oil Grant

Colorado College has announced receipt of an unrestricted grant of $1,381 from the Gulf Oil Corporation.

A check for the amount was presented to Dr. Lloyd E. Worner, president of Colorado College, by W. M. Garvey, Gulf sales manager in Denver, and Harlan Ochs, Gulf distributor in Colorado Springs.

This was the largest grant Colorado College has received from Gulf since the corporation has been making unrestricted gifts to the college.

Gulf said colleges and universities eligible for direct grants are those which are privately operated and controlled, and which obtain a major portion of their financial support from non-tax sources.

Direct grants, such as the one awarded to Colorado College, are calculated by Gulf on the basis of a formula which takes into account the quality of the institution's curriculum, the effectiveness of its program, and the amount of financial support provided by the alumni.

The contribution is eligible for matching by the Ford Foundation as part of the current challenge program which requires the college to raise $5,500,000 by June 1965 in order to receive $2,200,000 of Ford funds.

Leukemia Is Blamed On X-Rays Sometimes

LONDON (AP) — The British Medical Journal said today it was almost generally accepted that low doses of X-ray radiation causes leukemia in unborn children but possible effects of radiation after birth are inconclusive.

The Journal, in an editorial, said if it could be understood why heavy doses of radiation produce leukemia, it might also be possible to decide which other circumstances of exposure carried a risk and which did not.

Conclusive evidence, the Journal said, could only come from the studies of many thousands of subjects.

Britain Asks For UN Action

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain asked Saturday that the U.N. Security Council hold an early meeting to take steps to resolve a "dangerous situation" in Cyprus.

Sir Patrick Dean, British chief delegate, handed the written request to Carlos Alfredo Bernardes of Brazil, council president for February. The British delegation made the request public.

Dean wrote Bernardes that Britain and her allies had failed to get Cypriot agreement to arrangements for an expanded international peace-keeping force on the island.

Smaldone Fails In Parole Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Parole Board has rejected an application of Eugene Louis Smaldone, Denver, for release from a federal prison, it was announced Friday. He is serving an 18 - month term on racketeering charges.

A spokesman said the parole board also is considering revocation of probation for Smaldone's father and uncle, Eugene and Clyde Smaldone.

The younger Smaldone is serving time for interstate travel for racketeering purposes. He was eligible for parole last Dec. 20 but the board turned him down last Tuesday.

The board gave no reason for rejecting Smaldone's bid. He will be eligible for release Sept. 3, if nothing mars his prison record before then.

The elder Smaldones were released from federal prison in November, 1962, after serving terms for jury fixing. They were kept on probation after their release.

Caught in the wake of an arctic blizzard, three members of the 744th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, were severly frost - bitten while they huddled together in a stranded Air Force vehicle near Murphy Dome, Alaska, for 8 hours last winter.

Thanks to Capt. Robert J. Burns, a fromer member of the 744th, now assigned to Headquarters, Air Defense Command at Ent Air Force Base, this type of tragedy should not occur again.

Capt. Burns received a total of $85 in cash awards from the Air Force Suggestion Program, and the satisfaction of contributing to the safety of Air Force personnel by designing a modified arctic survival kit, and suggesting all remote site vehicles carry one.

With purchase of a 95 cent knife, and the use of items from a salvage center, he assembled a kit 18x12 inches in size that fits under the seats of vehicles operating on remote Alaskan sites.

The kit contains three parachute panels, a blanket, two light candles, two 24-hour heat candles, one day - night flare, water - proof matches, a set of snow goggles, three boxes of "C" rations, an entrenching tool, and an Air Force survival manual.

Col. Albert D. Aberson, director and chief of ADC Operations, Environment Division, presented Capt. Burns with a check for placing second in the December 1963 monthly contest, and one for $50 as third prize in the Air Force quarterly competition. The Captain is a staff officer in the Weapons Division of ADC Operations.

Capt. Burns lives with his wife, the former Patricia Sparling of Ste. St. Marie, Michigan, and his children: Ellen, 6 years old; Billy, 4; and Laurie 2, at 618 N. Foote Ave.

Teen-Age Girls Get Sentences

BOULDER (AP) — Four teenage girls who admitted attacking two University of Colorado female students were given indeterminate sentences Friday at the Mountain View Girls School.

County Judge Horace B. Holmes suspended the sentences for two of the girls, both 16 years of age, and put them on two years' probation. The other two, both 17, already were on probation from Juvenile Court.

A Boulder County juvenile officer, John Hargedine, said the girls told him they were looking for a fight last Sunday night and two boys let them out of their car at the edge of the campus when they saw the college girls. They said they ran behind the pair and kicked and shoved them, finally provoking one to turn and defend herself. The other victim got help from a motorist, who drove the two to their sorority house.

Neither victim was seriously hurt.

The four told Hargedine they threatened another girl earlier Sunday in downtown Boulder but she held them off with a razor.

Ethiopia, Somalia Fight For Little Strip of Land

By DENNIS NEELD

TUG WAJALI, Ethiopia (AP) —A dry river bed divides this war-damaged village and marks the turbulent frontier between Ethiopia and Somalia.

Six hundred Ethiopian infantrymen with mortars and American-built tanks are dug in on a desert slope overlooking the shabby little town.

Many of the troops are veterans of the Congo fighting as members of the U.N. truce force. Their rifles and machine guns are sighted on Somali positions in sandbagged buildings across the border.

Both sides have maintained an uneasy truce since a savage pitched battle at the weekend.

Ethiopia claims 310 Somali troops died in the two-day clash. Somalia claims 350 Ethiopians were killed.

Tug Wajali lies in the center of disputed Ogaden, a barren desert region inside Ethiopia claimed by Somalia on the ground its 10,000 inhabitants are mostly Somalis.

Huts of mud walls and thatched roofs crowd up to the river bed frontier from both sides.

A neat shell hole lets daylight into the Ethiopian police station. A clinic is in ruins. Many homes were burned down or damaged.

The carcass of a horse still lies on the roadside. Stray goats and cows wander among the deserted buildings.

"Emperor Haile Selassie has given specific orders that we are not to fire unless attacked," said an Ethiopian commander.

The Ethopians say that seven civilians were killed in their sector of Tug Wajali. Other civilians were evacuated along a desert track to the provincial capital, Jigjigga.

They quickly overran the village, which was garrisoned only by 25 Ethiopian police. The police took refuge in a well.

A company of Ethiopian soldiers camped five miles away quickly moved up and checked the Somali invasion. Then the 10th Brigade moved up from Jigjigga and counterattacked. The attack carried the Ethiopians eight miles across the frontier before they were ordered to withdraw.

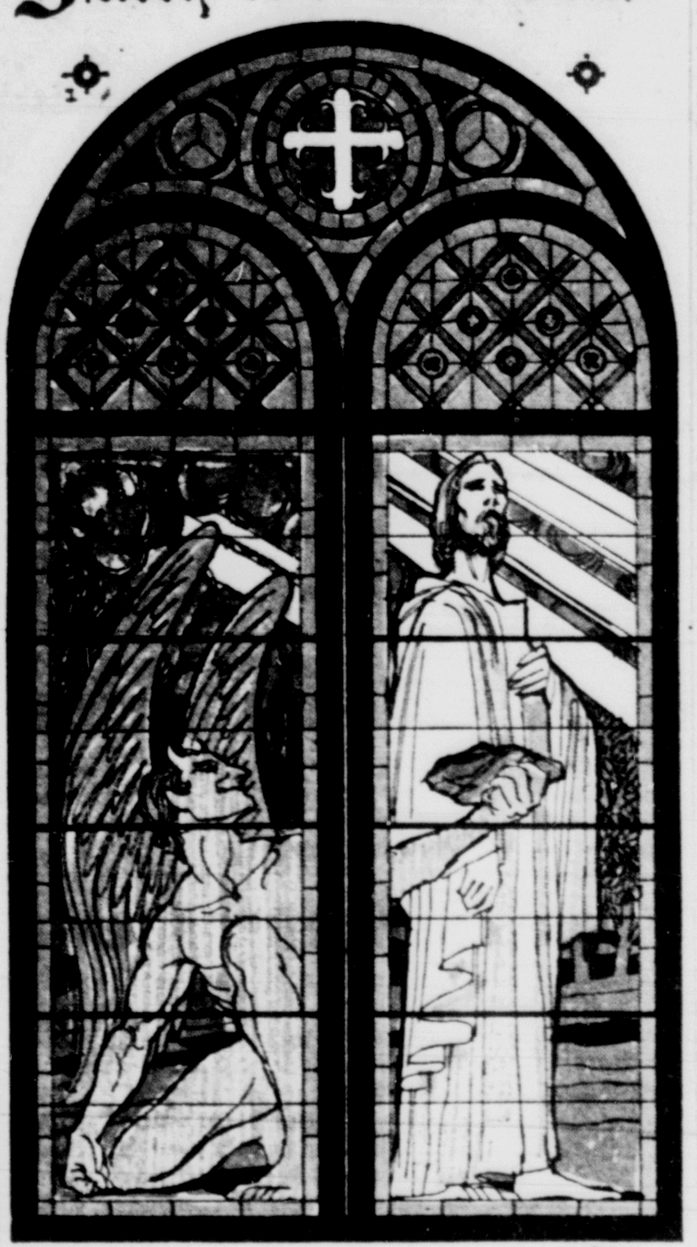
Faith for Our Time



And Jesus being full of the Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the spirit into the wilderness, being forty days tempted of the devil. And in those days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterward hungered. And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread. And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.

Luke 4:1-4

The word of God tends to make large-minded, noble-minded men.

—Henry Ward Beecher

On this earth all is temptation . . . Our life is a continual combat, but one in which Jesus Christ fights for us.

Harrison High News

By GWEN ROSE

Harrison's newly formed creative writing class has selected the short stories, sketches, and poems to be included in a book which will be published in March. The various selections have been chosen for all of the work done by the class. Class members were asked to submit a minimum of two examples of their work for consideration. Each selection will be followed by a brief biography of its author.

Jim Watson and Mrs. Treva French, the class teacher, have been deciding on the correct length of the selections to be included. From several choices, the class recently selected "Shades and Shadows" to be the name of their first publication.

Recently the art club held a meeting to discuss decorations for Valentines Day. Hopes are rising for a field trip during the early Spring to a museum or art center. Invitations may be sent out to non-members who might be interested.

Many members will be entering projects in the "Spring Art Exhibit." All members are encouraged to enter a project.

The Senior Class is now involved with three projects-working on the P.T.A. Handbook, choosing and cordering graduating announcements, and planning the senior trip. Seniors have also been asked to assist with the Heart Fund Drive, and quite a few of them have nonated time to the cause.

On Feb. 3, a vocational study began in all Freshmen Social Studies classes. At the end of February, freshmen counseling will begin. The half hour session will be to determine the next year's courses and future high school years.

The Future Secretaries Association held its second meeting of the year to discuss plans for installing new members into the Pikes Peak Chapter of F. S. A.

The meeting was held at Harrison. Members present were: Diana Beaver; president, Bobby Jo Taylor; vice president, Kathy Travis; secretary, Louise Twaddle; treasurer, and Sherry Benefield. Members of the National Secretaries Association, who sponsor F. S. A., were also present.

After a successful year of selling sweat shirts, magazines, and lightbulbs, the Junior class has turned from money making projects to the planning of this year's Junior-Senior Prom.

A few themes have been suggested and refreshment, invitation, entertainment, decoration, and clean-up committees have been formed. The junior class, being the richest of any previous class; hopes to put on a prom that the Seniors will long remember.

Denver Asks for Word in Hearing

DENVER (AP)—Denver will seek permission to intervene in a Civil Aeronautics Board case involving flights between Dallas and Miami, Mayor Tom Currigan said last week.

The board will open hearings March 11 to determine whether Braniff Airways or Eastern Airlines will provide the service. Braniff seeks to provide daily service from Denver to Miami with the only stop at Dallas. The return flight would have stops at New Orleans and Dallas.

Currigan said the Braniff plan "would solve part of the service problem between Denver and the southeast section of the U.S."

Connections between here and Miami now are through Houston or Chicago.

THREE PERFECT SHOTS

BOSTON (AP) — Dean Prentice, veteran left winger of the Boston Bruins, says he will always remember the 11-0 trouncing his teammates gave the Maple Leafs in Toronto on Jan. 18. Prentice took three shots and each one found the netting.

Another oddity of the game was that all goals were scored while both teams were at full strength.

AARON IS CONSISTENT

MILWAUKE (AP) — Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves may never hit .400, a figure once predicted for him and which he agreed was possible. But the outfielder certainly is a consistent man at driving in runs.

In the last five years he has averaged 125 runs batted in per season. He led the National League with 130 last year and has raised his career total to 1,121.

One-Hoss Shay Remembered

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The Robert Emmons family will long remember the day the family auto went on the blink umpteen times.

Coming home one evening the family battled snow drifts. The battery ran down and the car was running hot.

A city snow plow pushed them to a filling station where the battery was charged. Then a clamp came off the water hose and all the antifreeze was gone.

They drove home where the car ran out of gas. After they obtained fuel, they discovered a flat tire. Emmons drove to the filling station to have the tire fixed. On his way home he got stuck, the fan belt broke and the clamp on the water hose broke.

Hemorrhoids Listed as Common Health Problem

Hemorrhoids, or piles, are one of the most common health problems encountered today. Hemorrhoids are enlarged veins inside or just outside the rectum, somewhat like varicose veins in the legs. A frequent cause is constipation that results in straining, but there can be other causes as well. Anything that interferes with flow of blood thru the rectal veins can cause hemorrhoids.

Hemorrhoids themselves seldom are dangerous to life, but the condition that causes them can be serious and should be corrected. They also can cause considerable discomfort, and even pain. Hemorrhoids do not turn into cancer, but rectal symptoms that appear to be hemorrhoids may actually be caused by cancer.

Many cases of hemorrhoids are caused by constipation, they can be made worse by self-treatment, especially if you use laxatives regularly.

If you have the symptoms of hemorrhoids — aching discomfort, pain, itching, bleeding, protruding veins — see your doctor or go to a hospital clinic. Continued bleeding often causes anemia. If a blood clot forms in a protruding vein, piles can be extremely painful. If untreated, they can break and hemorrhage.

Hemorrhoids are common among women during pregnancy. Every expectant mother should see her doctor early in pregnancy. Prevention of hemor rhoids is one of the things he will discuss with her.

Even tho you have no apparent symptoms of piles, your doctor will usually make a rectal examination each time you report for a physical checkup. Only in this way can beginning cases of medical problems of the rectum be discovered early.

NEW PARK PLAY PIECES—Stuart Richter, director of the City Parks and Recreation Department, is shown here pointing to some models of new play apparatus which is to be constructed and placed in Dorchester Park. The pencil points to a silo or tower while the other larger piece under his left hand is symbolic of a barn. Within the egg shaped play area is also a cow, complete with horns and a curly tail. Miss Helen Thomas, another department employe, is holding one of the play pieces which will be used in either the merry-go-round or swings. An anonymous donor has given the department a sizeable amount of money to purchase the play sculpture material, for which the department is "greatly appreciative," Richter said.

Dorchester Park To Get New Look Soon

Dorchester Park in south Colorado Springs will be decorated with new play apparatus this spring, it was announced Friday by Stuart Richter, director of the City Parks and Recreation Department.

Thanks to an anonymous doner who gave a sizeable amount of money, the park will get play pieces that will give imaginative youngsters the illusion they are playing in a farm or ranch yard.

Dorchester Park will be the fourth city park to get such unusual play pieces. The other three are Boulder Crescent, Bott and Conejos Parks.

In brief, Richter said, the play pieces will represent a barn and a silo. In addition, there will be a merry go round with chickens and turkeys for seats. A turkey dove or guinea hen will be used as seats for the swing.

Richter said the money contributed by the anonymous donor will be used mainly to purchase materials for the play sculpture. The department will supply the labor and machinery to build the play pieces and install them.

The two main play pieces will be contained within an egg-shaped area about 12 feet wide and about 18 feet long. There will be a concrete curb for the rim of the egg and there will be a concrete base covered with 8 to 12 inches of wood chip.

Outside of this area will be a square concrete section with red wood trim for the merry go round and the swings.

Maximum height of the play pieces will be about nine feet. They will be made of reinforcing bar covered with a two to four inch layer of concrete with a special finish and waxed where there are sliding surfaces. The base color will be suede green. The play pieces will be manufactured in the park shop, up to the point where the concrete is to be applied.

Near the two main play pieces will be a cow with a curled tail — curled so that youngsters can step on the tail and get on top of the animal.

Richter said the play pieces should satisfy such play urges as climbing, hanging, hiding, running, sliding and swinging.

The silo, or perhaps it could be called a tower, will be a maximum of nine feet tall. Children will be able to climb to the top both from inside and out, and then slide down. The barn reflects an open end of a loft and features slots of harness pegs for climbing.

Richter said he felt certain that imaginative youngsters will be able to visualize lots of things about the play pieces, just as they have about the play sculpture in the three other city parks.

The play pieces were designed by Herbert C. Schumacher, 1011 Parkview Blvd., a former art teacher in School District No. 11 but who is now teaching art at Colorado State College of Education at Greeley.

The play apparatus will replace the conventional slide, swing and merry go round now in Dorchester Park.

Richter said construction of the play pieces will start next week in order that the apparatus can be ready for use in the late spring or early summer.

RETURN RITUAL

When a mate returns to the nest, storks enact a strange greeting ritual. The waiting bird noisily rattles its big red bill, throws it head forward in a stiff, formal bow and the returning stork clatters its bill. The ritual is climaxed by the duet's bowing, head throwing, tail shaking and pirouetting with half-open wings.

State Park Fee System Undecided

DENVER (AP) — The Governor's Third Annual Conference on Parks and Recreation adjourned Friday without acting on Gov. John Love's proposal to charge user fees at state parks.

Love recommended the fees—in a talk to the conference Thursday. The State Senate condemned the fees in a resolution passed last month.

Dr. Robert L. Stearns, former president of the University of Colorado, in a summary of idaes advanced at the conference said a bond issue or legislative appropriation could finance the park system.

Commenting on the fee proposal, State Democatic Chairman Robert Maytag issued statement from party headquarters.

"We Democrats," he said, "feel that the present park system is not worth an admission charge and that all people should be encouraged to make use of these facilities, not discouraged."

Carson Men To Drop Military Housing

Ft. Carson officials announced today they have been directed by Department of the Army to terminate their government leased housing program prior to April 30, 1964.

This is pursuant to the Military Construction Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1964, dated Nov. 7, 1963, which is Public Law 88-174. This law reduced the overall Department of Defense Family Housing Leasing Program from 7,500 to 5,000 units. . .

Every effort is being made to minimize the impact on the approximately 200 military families affected and the property owners concerned.

Some of the families affected will be moved into government quarters at Fort Carson as vacancies occur.

It is hoped that many others may be able to negotiate directly with owners for continuing occupancy of their present housing and arrive at an equitable agreement.

This should minimize displacement problems to the military families and property owners concerned and to the community.

It was also indicated that this law has no appreciable impact on the leased housing program of the other military activities in the Colorado Springs area.

The meeting, open to the public without charge, is sponsored by the Friends of the Library, an organization devoted to promoting the interests of library facilities in the Pikes Peak region.

A report of the nominating committee will be given by the chairman, Dr. Frank Forman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Robert Spurgeon and Mrs. George Lum.

Battle of Cells Seen In Transplant Attempts

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Scientists may have seen close-up the many, tiny battles between cells that seem to block the practical transplanting of organs.

This close look may provide them with a better clue as to how to subdue those battles and insure a longer life for transplants between similar animals.

When organs are transplanted from one dog to another, for instance, the host or recipient tends to treat the grafted or borrowed organ as a foreign invader and musters forces to reject it.

Now in research at Stanford University and the Medical School of London, doctors have seen through the microscope the rejection mechanism operating at the level of cells.

In kidney transplants between dogs, this research has given them a better warning of when to inject drugs to suppress the rejection mechanism.

The work was reported Thursday by Dr. Samuel Kountz of Stanford at the 13th annual meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

When a kidney was transplanted from one dog to another, the researchers watched the canine patients carefully.

After the first unsettled day, as the shock of the operation wears off, the blood supply to the kidney should become normal. Instead, there is a gradual but constant decline in the blood supply.

Looking for a reason, doctors put kidney tissue under the microscope, and were able to spot the aggressors—immature plasma cells from the blood of the host animal.

These immature blood cells had closed in and attacked the cells lining the small blood vessels of the borrowed kidney. After contact, the lining cells appeared to curl up and become isolated. Soon the blood vessels of the kidney were blocked by a mass of different sorts of blood cells and debris from the cellular war, choking off the blood supply.

With dogs, Dr. Kountz and his associates have been able to watch through regular blood tests for the fall in the kidney blood supply. This is a signal that the rejection mechanism is taking effect.

At this point they can inject drugs which suppress the rejection mechanism. This is a more accurate way of controlling the dosage of the powerful drugs used, and a method which some day may be useful in human transplants, Dr. Kountz said.

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director was presented with an award for "distinctive contributions to the moral and spiritual development" of American Youth by Young Life Campaign as the first act marking the 25th anniversary of the non-denominational Christian movement among high school students.

The FBI chief was the unanimous choice of the 22-member national board of directors of Young Life for the first award ever made during the quarter century the Christian organization for teenagers has existed. Headquarters for Young Life is in Colorado Springs.

Teens Play Half-Safe

FULTON, Ky. (AP) — Every year a civic club presents an award for safe driving to a teenager in both Fulton, Ky., and South Fulton, Tenn.

The police chief in one of the two communities was slow in sending in his nomination and was asked why.

"We've got one picked out," he explained, "but we can't give you his name. He ain't got a driver's license."

Wing Chief Named All Star Trap Shooter

Lt. Col. Harry Copsey, 4600th Air Base Wing Chief of Maintenance, was notified Feb. 13 that he is the top selection in this year's edition of the Pacific International All-star Trapshooting Team.

Sports writers and trapshoot officials in the states covered by the Pacific International Trapshooting Association (all states West of Kansas) named Copsey to head the ten-man team.

This is the fourth consecutive year that the Ent AFB marksman has been named to this all-star aggregation. However, it is the first time Copsey has ever been the number one selectee. Positions on the team are based on 1963 trapshoot records compiled in the Pacific International area.

This honor considerably boosts Copsey's stock in the race for All-America team honors. The deadeye colonel is a five-time All-American and is currently working a string of three consecutive years in that national honor.

Penrose Grange Members Recently Honored

Two long-time members of the Beaver Park Grange of Penrose were recently honored by its members on the 38th anniversary celebration of the organization.

Recognized for their long and faithful service were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Blades.

Mrs. Blades has served as secretary to the Grange chapter for the past 20 years, while her husband has been chapter treasurer for 19 years.

The program which honored the couple was based on "This is Your Life" and was under the supervision of Mrs. Jeannette Stebbins, Grange lecturer.

Mrs. Blades was presented with a corsage and her husband with a boutonnaire.

Born and reared near Rockwell, Ia., Mrs. Blades became an excellent horsewoman in her youth and later moved to Creede, Colo., with her parents where she entered numerous horserace events in the San Luis Valley. In 1901 she was married to August Born, who later died in 1927.

Oscar and Mrs. Blades were married in 1928 and have resided in the Penrose area since that period.

Blades is a native of Del Norte and moved to the Beaver Park area in 1917. During World War I he served with the AEF in Europe as a member of the 354th infantry, 89th division. After being discharged in 1918, Blades returned to Penrose to farm. He has remained active in community functions including both the Grange and the American Legion chapter in Florence.

Florence Police Chief John Camerlo has announced that the annual spring Dog Clinic will be held in Florence Feb. 24-March 9.

Two clinics will be staged. The first clinic has been set Feb. 24 and the second on March 9. Both clinics will be held at the Florence city hall from 6 to 8 p.m.

Under provisions of Ordinance No. 460, all dogs must be inoculated and licensed by March 15.

Dog owners are urged to take advantage in the clinics again this year. However, Camerlo warned that dogs brought to the clinic by their owners must be kept on leash or brought in the arms of the owners.

A licensed veterinarian will be on hand to inoculate the animals. License fees are $3 for males and spaded female dogs, and $5 for unspaded female dogs. The inoculations are $2 per animal.

District 11 Schools Start UF Drive

The Students United Fund Committee is now conducting its second semester drive for funds in all District 11 schools. The drive will continue thru Friday.

Money collected in the two annual fund-raisings campaigns goes to the Pikes Peak United Fund and other welfare organizations. This year the SUF Committee has pledged $3367 or 50 per cent of its total contributions, depending upon which is larger, to the United Fund.

Since its organization in 1956, District 11 school children have given nearly $35,000 through the SUF to help worthy local and national organizations.

The SUF was organized to consolidate the fund-raising drives in the schools. A committee composed of representatives of all school groups and headed by students organizes the campaigns and allocates the funds.

Charles Day, District 11 administrative assistant, says that in addition to raising money for worthy causes, the SUF drives help children assume responsibility for their community obligations.

Rapid Re-Warming Key To Frostbite Treatment

By The Colorado Medical Society

Most frostbite victims receive some treatment before they reach a doctor's care.

In the majority of cases, this well-meaning treatment has been the wrong treatment and has resulted in additional damage to the frozen tissues. Often the treatment has made it impossible for the doctor to salvage the tissues.

Two of the biggest hazards in first-aid treatment of frostbite are slow warming and rough treatment, by massage of exercise, aimed at restoration of circulation.

But circulation cannot be restored in frozen tissue merely by friction or exercise of the part, and one of the great fallacies about frostbite is that some warming is better than none.

The plain fact is that slow warming causes more damage than a longer period of freezing, even if the period extends into hours.

A person can walk a considerable distance on frozen feet. In Alaska there have been cases in which men have walked for 3 or 4 days on solidly frozen feet. The major tissue damage occurs when the walking is done on partially frozen or partially thawed feet.

Rapid re-warming to normal body temperature, absolute bed rest and protection of the damaged tissues are the proper treatments for frostbite. Fortunately, human tissue will survive freezing far beyond expectations if it is given gentle and protective care. This is one of the reasons why amputations are delayed as long as possible.

A frostbite victim should be hospitalized immediately. The greater the delay, and the more home treatment he receives, the greater will be the tissue damage. And, thus, the greater the danger that toes, fingers, feet or hands will be lost.

If there is any possibility that the victim can reach a doctor or hospital within a reasonable length of time — even up to several hours — the best first aid treatment for frostbite is no treatment at all. Other than gentle handling and protection of the frozen part.

But many frostbite cases occur at some distance from doctors and hospitals, and any person who is a winter outdoorsman, for work or recreation, should learn to recognize frostbite and now what to do to minimize its damage.

A blanching of the skin so that it is pale but not solidly white usually indicates frostnip, a lesser degree of frostbite. Frostnip, often observed as a pale white nose, is very common among skiers and represents a flirting with true frostbite.

In true frostbite, the frozen part becomes solidly white, hard to the touch and devoid of feeling. You don't feel frostbite. Frostnip is felt as a tingling, burning sensation.

As with frostbite, rapid warming is the proper treatment for frostnip. Get out of the cold. Warm the nipped part as quickly as possible. But don't rub. Quite often, pressure of the nipped part against the body's warmth will do the job: a warm hand over nose or ears, the nipped fingers placed in the armpits or groin, nipped toes pressed against the abdomen of a friend.

Old Doc Experience offers the following advice on treatment of true frostbite — for use only when professional medical care is unavailable:

1. Begin rapid re-warming as soon as possible, but only when there will be no further chilling. If feasible, obtain insructions and guidance from a doctor by telephone.

2. Warm the frozen part, and the victim's entire body, if possible, in hot water in a large container. A bathtub is ideal. Use water at 104 to 107 degrees F. Water hotter than 107 will be damaging. Use a thermometer in the tub. If the water falls below 104 you will not be obtaining the advantages of rapid re-warming.

3. Watch the temperature of the water carefully. The patient's body will be cooling it like a large ice cube. Add more hot water as needed to maintain the proper heat range.

4. Keep the frozen part immersed for about 20 minutes. Don't allow it to touch the hot container. Extra time beyond that in the water will bring no added benefit.

5. Don't rub, massage or exercise the frozen part before, during or after the rewarming. This is of utmost importance. Rubbing a frozen part with snow or cold water is about like putting a burned hand into a hot oven.

6. If a hot tub treatment is not possible, second best is hot wet towels constantly changed and placed on the frozen part with gentleness and no rubbing. An electric blanket can be used to raise body heat, or, lacking all other facilities, the patient can be placed in a sleeping bag with another warm person.

7. Dry heat re-warming before a fire or stove is dangerous. The degree of heat cannot be controlled accurately for optimal benefit.

8. Give the victim hot liquids to drink. Alcoholic drinks — which would have been an added danger to him while he was still in freezing conditions—now are permissable.

9. Give aspirin to relieve pain.

10. Put the patient to bed. He must remain there until all swelling is gone and all sores healed. This may require weeks or months.

11. Wash the frozen part gently with warm water and soap. Do not use alcohol, which is cooling. Now treat the injury as you would treat a severe burn. A loose dressing or, better still, none at all. No salve or grease. Protect the area against further injury and friction. Even the weight of sheets can cause damage.

12. During the long recovery period, care must be gentle and protective. Do not open blisters. Cotton pads may be needed between toes or fingers. The patient must stay in bed. He especially must not walk on or otherwise exercise frozen feet or lower limbs.

13. Cleanliness is important during the recovery phase because the injured tissues are more vulnerable to infection. In hospitals, frostbiten patients often are placed in isolation to minimize the infection threat.

Insects Imported To Dine on Devasting Weeds

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Accusations have been flying thick and fast between people who do or do not feel that spraying is done to rid us of billions of insects.

The argument has been waged over the dangers of spraying. Few have thought to speak up for the insects that protect our crops and prevent the loss of billions of dollars each year. University laboratories and the United States Department of Agriculture have been importing insects that will wipe out more virulent pests and save our crops.

One of the most recent importations was a group of four insects to destroy Klamath weed that blighted more than two million acres in Northern California, and over three million acres in adjoining states.

Known as St. John's Wort in its native Europe, Klamath weed first made its way into California in the early 1900's. It flourished, crowded out valuable animal forage plants and covered grazing lands with poisonous yellow flowers that poisoned sheep and cattle.

Within two decades Klamath weed brought major disaster—ranchers went bankrupt, chemical attacks against it were too costly.

The problem intrigued James K. Holloway, USDA entomologist, who is also on the staff of the University of California in Berkeley. Together with the late Dr. Harry Smith of U. C. Holloway investigated the possibilities of insects known to attack Klamath weed, some of which were already at work against the weed in Australia.

Such a program involves the location of the weed's original home, the identification of insects that feed on the weed, and the testing of the proper insect or insects on the weed. Sometimes it takes real detective work to track down the exact point of the plant's origin.

One trek by Agriculture entomologists took them from the Apennines of Italy to the foot of the Maritime Alps, through Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey and all the way over into Iran in the region of Mt. Ararat.

Location of the source of Klamath weed was not so difficult. In Australia, one point of origin, the scientists found two leaf eating beetles. The bugs were tested, colonized, and tested on Klamath weed in 1940. Later, a root borer and a gall-fly from France were also released.

One caution is heeded: will the insect destroy other plants as well as the one specific plant which is a pest? The four insects were tried on enclosed areas of many kinds of plants. growing wild in the Northwest. They ate and killed only Klamath weed. More than five years of testing was carried out before entomologists were certain that the insects could destroy Klamath weed.

With help from desperate ranchers, the insects were rapidly distributed thru the Klamath weed infested area. The four insects went to work, multiplied themselves, killed some of the weeds and weakened others, so that useful range plants could replace them. The infestation receded year after year. Today, the once-dreaded Klamath weed is little more than a memory for most Western ranchers.

Klamath week is only one of many pests destroying millions of dollars of crops and animal industries each year. Today scientists are attempting to use insects to regulate no fewer than 22 different species of seeds which threaten millions of acres of potentially rich grazing lands, timber tracts and food producing areas.

These are not the same weeds that crowd the flowers in our backyard gardens, they are the explosively growing plants that still cause an estimated four billion dollars in damage to American agriculture annually.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

This Month's Bum

Probably the most logical explanation, or excuse, for the championship fight coming up a week from this Tuesday in Miami Beach is that must be a sign of our times.

The squeeze put on area clubs by first bi-weekly, then weekly, and soon-to-be defunct bouts on television has cut the supply line of new talent to the sport so that the field is now so limited that promoters must take what they can get.

CASSIUS CLAY
To the Bitter End

And then this has brought on the "get rich quick" attitude of everyone in the game, realizing big fights are few and far between. They must push for every penny possible and thus some of our greatest fiction writers must be employed to dream up the propaganda that's being dished out to arouse interest in a fight that probably shouldn't even come to be.

We should be getting used to this sort of thing after the era of Floyd Patterson and his coddling manager, Cus D'Amanto.

They accused Joe Louis of having his own "bum of the month" club but in his case he was taking on just about anybody available and there happened to be an acute shortage of genuine challengers. But in Patterson's time it was more a matter of D'Amato dodging anyone he thought might take his meal-ticket away from him, and substituting has-beens and amateurs and building even these hobos into paying fighters with some fantastic publicity.

Such was certainly the case with the alligator fighter from Cut-N-Shoot, Tex., Roy Harris; the guy who took a crack at the world's title in his first professional fight, Pete Rademacher; and even ancient Archie Moore, who was so out of condition and so far over the hill at that time that he couldn't have seen his old self with a periscope.

I seriously doubt that Sonny Liston will ever stoop so low as to go out looking for stumblebums just to preserve his championship — he doesn't have to.

But as mentioned before, circumstances have put boxing on its last leg and there just isn't any talent coming up thru the ranks. Because of that, he'll have to take on those who really don't deserve a crack at the title.

This is the case week after next when Liston will enter the ring against Cassius Marcellus Clay the Second. He is just over 22 years old and has been fighting for money less than three years.

He, too, is a product of our times since in years gone by he could never have worked into the top ranking of the ring in that short time. But because of the shortage of competent fighters in the game, he has been able to wade thru a handful of pretenders to get this early shot.

It may be the mistake of his life.

Altho in association with the Black Muslims he has shown illogical planning, there may have been a future for him with proper preparation. In contrast to Patterson, he is a true heavyweight whose natural size is well over 200 pounds, and he seems to have the strength and speed to develop into a fine fighter.

But one time around with this Liston, this early in his career, could be the beginning of the end. Seldom does anyone want to get into the ring with him again, and usually the shell-shock leaves them jumpy against anyone else.

Again, this fight is a sign of our times.

For anyone to suggest that this is a prize fight between evenly-matched boxers is flirting with the ridiculous. Despite all his boasts and poetry, the gabby Cassius should not be so stupid to stand toe-to-toe with this massive champion who now calls Denver his home.

If any of the lip service between these two has been on the level, it could be suicide. They have at least pretended to be deadly enemies with their cross-taunts and name-calling, and for Clay that's about like teasing a short-tempered gorilla before climbing in next to him to clean his cage.

It should be pretty obvious by now that the majority of this prattle has been staged for the benefit of gate build-up. You don't turn out a 10 million take by pairing a couple of unknowns and against the opposition Clay has faced in his brief career as a pro, there had to be something done to make him out as more than a joke to the sporting world.

And when they're putting a tab of $250 per seat for ringside and a C-note for even the upper balcony in the Miami

Tigers Sweep Minnesota Series

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Fighting off a furious finish by the Gophers from the University of Minnesota, Colorado College swept its Western Collegiate Hockey Association series with a second straight victory at the Broadmoor World Arena, 7-6, Saturday night before a crowd of 2,300.

Sophomore Steve Ebert, a 165-pound winger from Grand Forks, N.D., put together back-to-back goals in the second period to pace the victory, while Minnesota's Doug Woog, another first-year performer in the WCHA, equalled the twin goals for the Gophers.

The game was rough and somewhat ragged from start to finish, but no one bargained for the frantic finale that had the entire crowd standing at the last buzzer. Training by 7-4 with five minutes left in the game, Minnesota put on a late rush that came within one of sending the contest into overtime.

The Gophers two scores came within 12 seconds of each other and then Coach John Mariucci called on all the wit of his long experience in hockey to try and pull out the victory. He pulled his goalie with 2:20 on the clock and then when CC received a penalty with 1:27 to go he put the tender back in the nets.

The Tigers had to play all the way out shorthanded, but just managed to stave off the on-charging Gophers.

It was the second straight over Minnesota for Coach Bob Johnson's Bengals and gave them a 3-7 league record and 11-10 overall mark. Minnesota, which came into the series leading the WCHA, slipped into third place with a 7-3 league ledger and the Gophs now stand at 11-8 for the season.

In other action around the loop, Michigan University extended its league lead with a 7-2 win over Michigan State. The Wolverines now have a 7-1 record. North Dakota avenged Friday night's 2-1 loss to Michigan Tech with a Saturday night 4-1 victory to go back into fourth place.

Saturday's game was replete with a little of everything for the fans — but proved dangerous for a couple. Two in the stands were hit with flying pucks as first the penalty box time keeper, Col. Charles Miller, received a big gash on the forehead and later a lady in the east stands caught another stray disc just above the eye. To top things off in this wild and wooly game, one of the glass panels that surrounds the rink fell to the ice after three players banged hard against the boards right by the pane.

The game featured five goals that were scored while one team was shorthanded by penalty. Four of these, including Ebert's second, were authored by Colorado College, and they proved the difference in the two squads.

With leftovers showing from Friday night's game, the action was on the tepid side for both teams as the game started and tempers grew warmer as the game wore on. Still the play was fast and there was just enough rattling of the boards to make it interesting for the crowd, which included a good sized delegation of Minnesota grads in the region.

Johnny Simus, who had turned in one of the two three-goal hat tricks in Friday's contest, led off for the Tigers to give them the initial lead. It came with the Gophers a man short via penalty as he took a pass from Warren Fordyce from behind the MU net and bounced it in for the score.

Tom Brindley, getting his third tally of the season, upped the margin to two goals exactly three minutes later with his slap shot from just inside the blue line skimming the ice and zipping right under goalie John Lothrop's pads.

But Minnesota also proved they could take advantage of a penalty shortage and it took only six seconds for them to score after CC's first infraction. Center Dick Haigh made it to the cords on a deflect in front of the net off Frank Zywiec's slap from 45 feet.

It remained at 2-1 into the first intermission, but the Tigers pushed ahead to a two-goal lead on Ebert's first goal of the night. It was the best play of the game as CC came down ice with a three-on-two break and Ebert took the pass across ice and shot it right back into the far corner as the goalie was still trying to reverse himself.

Ebert scored again three minutes later with Minnesota again short by penalty, and this one also just nicked the corner of the net to light the active goal lamp.

The Gophers still weren't about to give up despite the three goal lead, and they charged back with two quick tallies to again make it a tight game.

The first of this flurry was a rebound off the stick of Woog, his first of the night, as goalie Art Warwick was unable to recover and the Minnesota sophomore easily hit the open net.

Then exactly two minutes later, at the 13:04 mark, Craig Falkman pulled his team to within one goal to the Tigers on another that Warwick simply didn't handle. He was ridden to the side by the CC defense, but backhanded the puck and it sailed right past the Colorado goalie.

Wayne McAlpine, the other Tiger who scored the hat trick on Friday, gave CC at least slight breathing room as the teams left the ice again at the end of the second period. Again McAlpine neatly skated around Minnesota was caught short with a man in the sin bin, and McAlpine neatly skated around the net and poked it in from the corner.

That was quickly trimmed again to one goal, at 5-4, with little over a minute gone in the third period with Woog getting his second of the game for the Gophers. He left the sleepy CC defense standing flat on their skates as he held the puck behind the Tigers' net, then merly stepped to the net post and pushed it past Warwick.

Terrors Clip Junction, 64-54

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Fluid-moving Walt Hylton dropped a 24 point bomb on Grand Junction's Tigers Saturday night to guide Palmer out of the South Central League cellar as the hot-shooting Terrors dumped the Western Slope club 64-54 at the Palmer Gymnasium.

The victory, which snapped a five game losing streak for the Tribe, elevated the local quintet to seventh place in the SCL, leaving the once high-flying Tigers alone in the conterence basement. Junction opened the campaign with two straight wins but since has tumbled to eight straight defeats.

The big news around the league Saturday night was written in Trinidad, however, where Pueblo Central's previously unbeaten Wildcats saw their long string of 14 successive triumphs come to an end. Trinidad kept alive its slim hopes for a repeat title with a 72-66 conquest of the Pueblo team, a feat that prevented the Wildcats from clinching the 1964 crown.

Hylton was zeroed in from the opening minutes at the Palmer Gym Saturday and he finished the night with a sparkling 10 for 15 shooting performance from the field. The 24 points was the top individual performance of the season for a Terror.

Hylton's floating jump shots did the primary damage but the entire Palmer team enjoyed an outstanding evening of accuracy. The Terrors hit 26 of 43 attempts from the field for a sizzling 60.5 percentage, a factor which had the Tigers scrambling to overcome a sizeable deficit most of the night.

Also contributing heavily to the Palmer cause was 6-4 center, Bobby Joe Williams, whose kangaroo-like antics around the goal provided the Tribe with the edge in rebounding. Williams yanked off 14 caroms and added 13 points to claim runner-up honors in the scoring department. Bill McCalvy added nine but all eight of the key players employed by Coach Gerry Schroeder had a hand in the point-making.

The victory avenged an earlier defeat at Grand Junction where the Tribe was downed 56-46 in its second conference start of the winter. Palmer is now 3-7 in league play and 5-9 overall.

The action was slow-paced in the early minutes and it took Palmer nearly half the opening period to begin to shake the Junction club. Hylton pumped the locals into the lead with a jump shot 40 seconds into the contest but the Tigers got a quick tie on Gene Garcia's drive up the middle.

Frank Wilson then sank a free shot to send Palmer out front to stay with 5:48 left in the quarter but it was a pair of goals by Bill McCalvy and Hylton that sprung the Tribe to its first comfortable margin at 9-4 with 4:12 to go. From there Palmer breezed to a 21-13 advantage at the end of the period, despite a rash of free throw shooting by the Tigers.

Williams, who had not had an especially effective first quarter, suddenly began to sweep the backboards clean in the second stanza and he and Hylton made the main contributions to a steady wave of baskets that saw the Tribe gradually erect a comfortable cushion. Their biggest lead of the first half came at 38-21 with 1:52 to go but it was still well padded at 42-27 heading into the third quarter.

Junction had a pair of brief rallies in the second half but neither turned out to be serious. The Tigers ran in five straight points at the start of the third period to cut the lead to 10 points but another spurt by Hylton quickly shot the Terrors back to a near 20 point margin.

Over five minutes had gone by in the final quarter before Palmer got its first bucket but with the Tigers trailing just 58-48 it was Hylton again who shoved the Terrors safely out front with a pair of goals.

Palmer is now idle until Friday night when the Tribe hosts Centennial and follows that effort by meeting rival Wasson Saturday.

Trinidad Defeats Wildcats

TRINIDAD — Jim Toupal and Mike Vecchio combined in a tremendous 49 point scoring splurge here Saturday night as Trinidad's Miners wiped out the final undefeated AAA team in Colorado by dumping Pueblo Central, 72-66.

The victory prolonged the South Central League title race at least one more weekend. The Miners pulled to within two games of front-running Central and widened their lead over third place Centennial to one full game. Central would have clinched the crown with a triumph.

Toupal poured in 26 points and Vecchio 23 as the Miners dominated the contest from the start. The winners also hung a defensive net around the Wildcats' two great scoring aces, C. D. Bodam and Rick Shelton. Bodam picked up 15 points but Shelton had only five and did not score in the first half.

Trinidad jumped off to a 15-7 lead at the end of the first period and had expanded it to 33-22 at halftime. The Wildcats pulled within 50-42 at the end of the third quarter and had closed the gap to 60-58 at one point in the last period when Louis Guigli came off the bench to hit six straight points for the Miners.

Central had won 14 straight games going into the Saturday night battle.

Air Force Teams Post Victories

Air Force rifle, pistol and swimming teams all posted victories Saturday. The rifle team topped contenders from Kansas State University, Arizona State and Hardin-Simmons with a score 1,434. The pistol team edged out Arlington State College of Texas, 1,404 to 1,311, and the Falcon tankers won a dual meet with Nebraska, 700-25.

Miss Margaret Thompson scored 291 out of a possible 300, resulting in Kansas State's threatening 1422 score, which was just 12 short of the Academy's 1434 score. Arizona State scored 1409 points and Hardin-Simmons collected 1337.

Not so lucky as the other Falcon squads were the freshman cagers, as they were downed by Trinidad Junior College, 76-71.

Leadville Snaps Losing Skein

Torrid-Shooting AFA Falcons Rout Marquette, 78-62

MILWAUKEE, (AP) — Air Force connected for 20 straight points in a six-minute stretch during the second half and routed Marquette 78-62 Saturday night in handing the hapless Warriors their ninth straight defeat.

The Falcons offset a height advantage with blazing speed that opened up alleys for driving layups that shocked the Warriors in the big surge.

Trailing 35-32 at halftime after frittering away a 12-point lead built up in the first 10 minutes, Air Force started slowly after the intermission before suddenly catching fire.

Pavich, held to four points in the first half, captured individual scoring honors with 24 as the Falcons boosted their season record to 10-8. Capt. John Judd hit for 18 and Scott Etnyre 13.

Kingsley topped his mates in scoring with 19 points, all but four in the first half, as the Warriors suffered their 15th defeat in 19 games.

With its amazing second half, Air Force had a shooting mark of 52.3 per cent with 34 field goals on 65 attempts. Marquette hit 26 of 65 for 40 per cent.

Colorado Protects Lead With Nebraska Victory

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Colorado protected its share of the Big Eight Conference basketball lead with a 60-52 victory over Nebraska in a slow game before 7,000 Saturday night.

The Buffs, now 6-2 in the league, fashioned the winning margin when Nebraska went five minutes without a field goal from 7:33 to 2:33 in the second half.

Nebraska overcame a 28-34 halftime deficit and took the lead at 41-40 when Harold Cebrun canned a jump shot with 10:38 to play.

Wasson Wins District Swim Meet

By DICK FOSTER

Wasson's Thunderbird Tankers copped first place in the Sixth Annual District High School Swimming and Diving Championship Meet, held at Colorado College's new Schlessman Pool Saturday. The 'Birds placed first in eight of the 11 events held, and took seconds in two of the remaining three to collect 111 total points. Every meet record was left broken in the wake of the stiff local competition.

Palmer followed in second place with 70 points, most of which came on second places, and Cheyenne Mountain was third with 27. The two local schools, Palmer and Wasson renewed their keen rivalry and all other competitors had to make way.

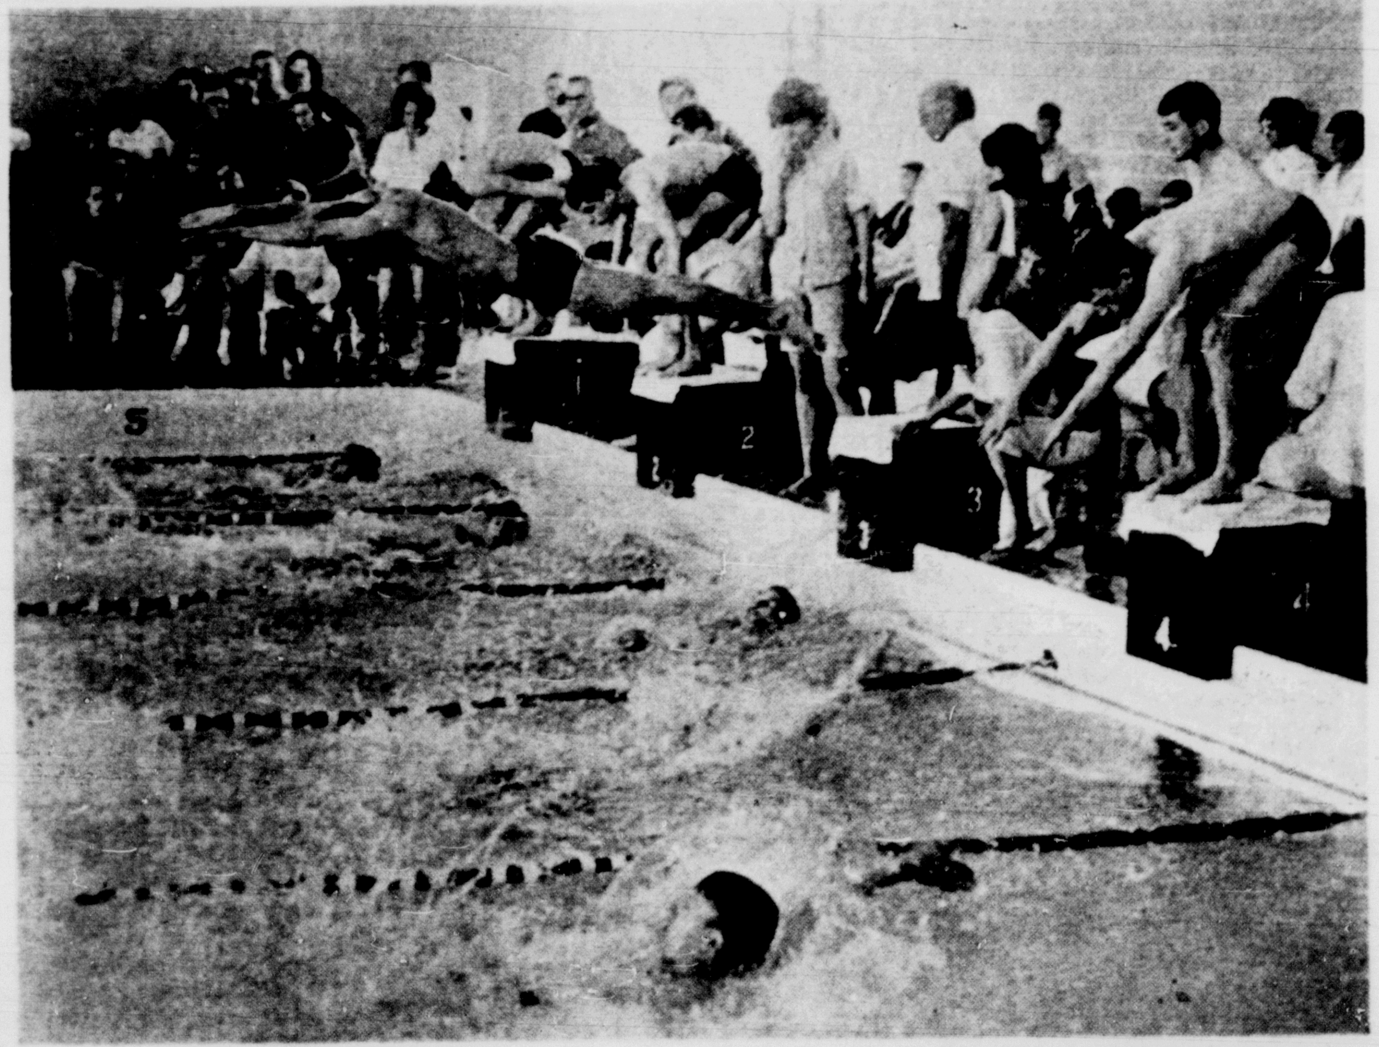
The district meet winners, which were the first three teams in relay events and the first five contestants in individual competition, will advance to the State Finals, which will be held in Adams City next Saturday.

Wasson's first included the 200 yard medley relay, the 50, 100, 200, and 400 yard freestyles, the 100 yard breaststroke, and the 200 yard freestyle relay. Palmer had two firsts, one in the diving and the other in the 100 yard backstroke. Englewood had the one remaining first place, the 100 yard butterfly.

Nine records were broken in the preliminaries, held Saturday morning, and six of those, along with two other records, were broken in the afternoon finals. Wasson set six records in the morning session, and broke four of them in the afternoon finals.

Palmer, Cheyenne Mountain, and Englewood broke one record apiece during preliminaries. In the finals, Palmer's Don setting 1:05.6, made in preliminaries, with a 1:04.0. Englewood's Mike Wallace broke Cheyenne's Bill Kinner's preliminary record in the 100 yard butterfly by a second, 1:03.7 to 1:04.7.

Bruce Teschner was the meet's leading swimmer. The Wasson tanker set two records in preliminary action in the 50 and 100 yard freestyles, and he captured firsts in the same two events during the afternoon finals. Harry Seaman's outstanding performances on the springboard netted him first place with 344.45 points, 54 more than Wasson's second place Marshall Griffith.



TAKE OVER, I'M POOPED—The initial member of Wasson's 200 yard medley gets a replacement after 50 yards of backstroking. Wasson's team seems to hold an early edge as their second member hits the water before all others. The T-Bird tankers went on to win the race and the meet with an overall 111 points. Jacky Cupit Leads Tucson Golf Tourney

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Dimple-chinned Jacky Cupit went five under par on the last five holes Saturday to shoot a 66 and take the third round lead of the Tucson Golf Open golf tournament with a 54-hole score of 203 — 13 under par for the distance.

The stocky Texan, now playing out of Corona, Calif., moved into a three-shot lead over Tommy Aaron, who had a 206 total.

Friday's co-leaders, Bruce Devlin of Australia and Rex Baxter, were tied at 207 with tour rookies George Archer of San Francisco and Chuck Courtney of San Diego.

Cupit, moving along one under par after 13 holes, finally caught on fire on the 14th to shoot five consecutive threes, including one eagle.

On the 14th the former Houston University star knocked in a 13-foot putt for his bird. On the 15th, a 550-yard par five, he knocked his three iron approach 14 feet above the pin. The curling, downhill putt dropped into the cup for an eagle.

He followed this with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th and a three-footer on the 17th that was set up when he hit a 150-yard eight iron hook shot to within three feet of the hole. He finished the round with a par three after missing a birdie putt by inches.

He had nines of 35-31 and now has rounds of 69-68-66.

Cupit's wild finish in the brilliant sun at the 49er Country Club overshadowed a course record round of 64 set by Al Johnston of Montreal, Canada. Johnston had nines of 32-32 and now is tied at 210 with Al Geiberger and Joe Taylor.

Johnston hit 17 greens and had nine birdies against a single bogey. He chipped into the cup from 40 feet for one bird and had other birdie putts from 20, 15 and 10 feet among others.

Finley Wants To Sell

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — A banker disclosed Saturday that Charles O. Finley has offered to sell him the Kansas City Athletics for $7 million.

The banker, Alexander J. Barket, said Finley made the proposal three weeks ago while the two men were flying together from Dallas, Tex., to Kansas City. Finley was en route here for another of his fruitless negotiating sessions with city officials over a new lease for Municipal Stadium.

"He was dead serious about it," said Barket, a personal friend of Finley's. "He even offered to take a note for as much as $3 million of the sale price, with 2 per cent interest.

"And I know that if I wrote him a check for the amount today, he would take it without hesitation."

Barket, chairman of the board of the Civic Plaza National Bank and president of a construction company, expressed interest in purchasing the American League club last January. But he said he would not consider buying at the price Finley asked.

"I would have to do a lot of liquidating to raise $7 million," he said. "And besides, the Athletics aren't worth over $3.5 million, or $4 million at the most.

"I would buy in a hurry if I could get the club for $3.5 million."

Finley paid approximately $3.5 million for the Athletics when he purchased the franchise three years ago from the estate of the late Arnold Johnson.

SMU Downs Texas Christian At Free Throws

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Southern Methodist took advantage of 40 trips to the charity line Saturday and beat Texas Christian 85-75 in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

Southern Methodist, who led at halftime 51-34 and by as much as 20 points in the first half, saw their lead dwindle in the closing minutes. But the closest TCU came was within six points, 77-71, with 3:52 left in the game. The Ponies did not hit a field goal in the last eight minutes of play.

Arena, something has to be created to draw 'em in. So far, it's been a real pro job of building up a show that could easily last only a few seconds.

As for the fight itself, just about everybody has been offering advise to Clay on how to keep from getting killed the night of Feb. 25. Even that slick-sheeted albatross of sporting publications, Sports Illustrated, devoted several pages to techniques of 10 years ago which only enabled a few fighters to dodge the lethal punch of Liston.

The only chance I can see for Clay is to keep up the gibberish to the bitter end, and perhaps trade his regular sneakers for a pair of track shoes.

The last fighter to go the distance with Liston was Eddie Machen in September of 1960. In that bout it was obvious that Machen had no intention of winning, but he managed to stay far enough away from the "Big Bear" as to come out still on his feet.

In the process of running, Machen managed to infuriate the champ to the extent that he lost a great deal of his poise and thus was forgetting much of the classic style which has made him unbeatable. When that mad, Liston is more animal than man and he not only fails to cover up with those massive 16-inch fists, but also swings wildly in an effort to nail his darting target.

Whether Clay has the strength to more than pester the seemingly indestructible Liston is another matter. But if he plays it smart enough, and the syndicate behind him probably will make sure he follows instructions, there is at least a slim chance of upset by decision.

At any rate, I look for quite a show in this fight. That's not to say it will be even a good battle for it's a mis-match in that sense. But if the ring plan is carried off nearly as well as the pre-fight buildup, it could be the best comedy in years.

Keep in mind, tho, that this all could backfire into tragedy. Should Clay succeed in actually getting Liston mad enough to lose his temper and self-control, there's the danger he might get caught with one of those haymakers.

Liston has admitted he has never hit a man with all his force. He's never dared. But there's a first for everything.

DU's Rounds Wins Downhill Event at Vail

VAIL (AP) — Chris Rounds, University of Denver skier from Lake Placid, N.Y., zipped down a two mile course in 2:30 Saturday to win the downhill event of the annual Vail Trophy races.

The spectacular course dropped 2400 feet vertically and included turns and bumps that some skiers said made it the most competitive run they've encountered all season.

Jerry Rinaldi of Kimberly, British Columbia, was second in 2:30.8 followed by Sandy Limon, Pound Ridge, N.Y., member of the University of Colorado ski team, in 2:31.9.

Tammy Dix of Spokane, Wash., who competes for the Sun Valley, Idaho team, captured the women's downhill in 1:55.4. The women's course covered 1½ miles and dropped 1500 feet.

Karen Korfanta, Salt Lake City, was second in 1:55.5 and Wendy Chamberlain, Hanover, N.H., ran third in 1:57.

Four girls cracked up on the downhill but only one, Mrs. Sharon Dillingham, formerly Sharon Pecjak of Aspen, suffered more than minor injuries. She suffered a severe knee wrench but the extent of the injury was not immediately determined.

NCAA Asks No Friday Broadcasts

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association went on record Saturday against television of professional football games on Friday nights during the 1964 season.

The organization sent a telegram to all members of the Judiciary Committee of the U.S. Senate to check whether the intention of the National Football League to televise five or six Friday night games was a violation of the federal antitrust law passed in 1961.

If the plan is not a violation, the wire said, then the NCAA asked that the committee consider broadening the act to prevent Friday night telecasts by the pros.

The NCAA action put it in full support of the position taken by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations in opposition to the professional TV plan. The telegrams to the members of the senate committee were authorized by the NCAA's Legislative and Television Committee.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said when the antitrust act of 1961 was passed the general philosophy "was that professional football should confine its telecasts to Sunday and not infringe upon college games on Saturday and, in turn, college football should confine its telecasts to Saturday and not infringe on high schools games Friday night."

"Since that time," he continued," the NCAA football television plan which governs the television activities of the 613 NCAA members, has specified that member colleges may not arrange for simultaneous televising of their games on Friday nights in areas where such telecasts would conflict with high school games being played locally."

The American Broadcasting Co. has insisted the five games slated to be telecast are not covered by the 1961 act because the games are being negotiated with individual clubs and not the National League.

The network has signed an agreement with the Ford Motor Co. for sponsoring the games between Sept. 25 and Oct. 23. Any such announcement, the NFL maintains, would be premature because the league has not made up its schedule.

In Chicago, Clifford Fagan, executive secretary of the high school group, urged a vigorous, coordinated protest to the NFL by the association's 20,111 members.

AL President Says Statement Due Monday

BOSTON (AP) — American League President Joe Cronin said Kansas City owner Charles Finley faced no automatic expulsion if he failed to sign a lease by the Saturday midnight deadline.

With the clock quickly running down to zero hour and no possible settlement in sight, Cronin assured The Associated Press:

1. No statement would be forthcoming at midnight or at any time until Monday unless an 11th-hour agreement is reached by the Athletics owner and Kansas City officials.

"If anything should develop tonight you will hear from us," Cronin said. "Otherwise, we'll talk to you Monday.

"You can go to bed and rest easy tonight. Nothing is going to happen. I'd like to get some sleep tonight myself."

After seven meetings with Kansas City officials, Finley had failed to come to terms concerning the signing of a lease. Finley said he would sign for no more than two years. The city wanted at least a four-year lease.

City fathers said they stood ready at a moment's notice to meet if a new proposal was made.

Finley remained silent.

The deadline signaled the end of a first extension granted Finley by the league after the board of directors turned down his request to move the franchise to Louisville.

Originally, Finley was to have come to terms by Feb. 1 or face possible loss of the franchise—a move, which, if undertaken would be unprecedented in league history.

Finley threatened to take the AL to court if an attempt was made to disenfranchise him.

Cronin was asked what would be the next step in the standoff between the club owner and unyielding league.

"Let's wait," Cronin replied. "Let's see what happens. Don't jump to any conclusions.

"We'll talk to you Monday."

Cronin was asked if he would attempt to contact Finley over the weekend if the club owner did not make the first move.

Again Cronin repeated he would have something to say Monday.

"Will Finley have his franchise taken from him as of midnight if he has not obtained the lease?" Cronin was asked.

"Definitely not," he replied. "That would require meetings and an agreement by the board of directors.

John Chapman and Casper Martinex led Sacred Heart's squad with 10 and 9 points respectively.

The league is composed of the four parochial grade schools, and is divided into two divisions, the fifth and sixth grade division and the seventh and eighth grade division.

Michigan Posts Big Ten Win Over Indian

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Third-ranked Michigan pushed Indiana even deeper into the Big Ten basketball conference cellar Saturday afternoon with a resounding 99-87 victory before a packed house at Yost Fieldhouse.

Michigan, now 17-2 overall and 8-1, in the Big Ten, won on the strength of their superior rebounding power.

Indiana's famous Van Arsdale twins collected 46 points together. Dick had 21 and brother Tom was the high point for the game with 25. Cazzie Russell and Bill Buntin tied for the Wolverine's scoring honors, both with 23 points.

Late in the first half, the Hoosiers pulled to within five points of Michigan as the Van Arsdale brothers poured in basket after basket from outcourt.

But the Wolverines' awesome power took over again and the half ended with Michigan leading, 49-37.

Liston 5-1 Favorite Over Clay

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—For more than a year the ballyhoo has raged. On Feb. 25, at Miami Beach Convention Hall, comes the climax:

Is this a fight, or only a promotion?

Will the fans pay out an estimated $7 million (the promoters' estimate) to witness one of the most carefully built-up matches in ring history?

The oddsmakers indicate it's a mismatch by the 5-1 odds. Most experts figure that Liston, one of the most terrifying champions the ring has known, will catch up with the Louisville Lip and chop him down in an early round.

A few think that if Clay, a self-glorified youth with only 19 pro fights under his belt, can stay away from Liston for five rounds he might go all the way—even win it. One who holds this belief is Eddie Machen, the only one of Liston's last 12 opponents to finish in control of his senses.

"Liston is a one-armed fighter—all left hand," Machen says. "It was easy to slide inside or under his jab. I did it round after round. And he never changed. He kept making the same mistakes."

Clay, who has given himself a greater buildup than any fighter has received since Primo Carnera, boasts that his speed and ring moves will offset Liston's power and "that ugly old bear will fall in five."

The 22-year-old challenger insists that the hard-hitting Liston has been overrated on the strength of his two one-round knockouts of Floyd Patterson.

Liston predicts that he will knock out the precocious Clay inside of five rounds and has offered to back that up by placing the fight on a winner-take-all basis—a challenge that Cassius isn't about to accept.

If, as Intercontinental Promotions, Inc., has estimated, the fight draws $6 million from theater television and other ancillary rights, and another million from the live gate, Clay will gross $1 million and Liston $2 million.

Records Turned Down

LONDON (AP) — John Pennel's 17-foot, ¾-inch pole vault and Bob Hayes' 9.1-second 100-yard dash were not accepted as world track records Saturday when the International Amateur Athletic Federation approved a number of recent records.

A spokesman for the federation said the performances of Pennel and Hayes would be considered at the next conference of the IAAF to be held in October at Tokyo during the Olympics. He said they were not recognized because they were set on asphalt instead of the conventional cinder track.

Pennel's vault of 16-10, made at London, Aug. 5 was given official approval. The vaulter from Northeast Louisiana State cleared 17-¾ Aug. 24 at Miami.

Nicklaus Could Reign Over PGA Circuit

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI (UPI) — Arnold Palmer has dominated pro golf the past few years because he is playing to 99 per cent of his potential, little Bob Toski said today, and if Jack Nicklaus can get that much from his game it will be "strictly no contest."

"It isn't a question of what may happen to Palmer," Toski explained as he looked ahead to the big tournaments of 1964. "It is just that Nicklaus isn't getting his full potential despite the fact that he is much stronger player than Arnold."

And, he insists, if Nicklaus does "catch on" he will dominate the professional fairways "for at least the next 10 years."

Belaboring his fellow professionals for letting "color" evaporate from their slice of the spring scene, Toski asserted that the only pitfalls which menace Nicklaus might be lack of desire and self discipline.

"Jack could go on indefinitely, and certainly for 10 years or more," said the little man with the piano key smile. "But he has to discipline himself more than most because, and it's no secret, he has a definite weight problem. Personally, I feel he'll be great for many years to come."

"As a golfer," Toski added, "Nicklaus has no weakness. He knocks it farther off the tee than Palmer or almost anybody else, and he has a fluid swing which should hold up as long as he has the desire."

Concerning his fellow pros on the tour, Toski believes that they hold themselves too aloof from the galleries, fail to dress to their station and are guilty of "insecure thinking" which prevents their personalities for coming through.

"There's no question but what color has almost completely left the game," he said. "One reason is that the large purses have created an attitude of such introverted seriousness, and insecure thinking, that the players almost completely ignore the gallery."

He points to Walter Hagen as the "greatest entertainer" of them all, as well as one of the greatest winners in golf history, and insists that the touring pros should realize that they are the show window of the game.

"These days they don't even dress to it," argued Toski. "They might as well be wearing a uniform of blue coveralls. It's about time they studied the successful pros, analyzed what the game needs and realize that as professionals they are on display every time they step onto the course. Instead they act like poker-faced automatons."

What they should understand, he holds, is that actually it would relax them in the big divot dollar events if they effected a cameraderie with the gallery.

The right attitude is helped by proper plumage, Toski insisted, "because if you don't have your shoes shined you have to feel like an ex-caddy." And even with everything going for them, he predicted, "they're going to have a tough enough time collaring Nicklaus in the days ahead."

Bauer Says Team Needs Bigger Bats

By HANK BAUER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If we are going to move up in the league next season, we are going to need some bigger bats than we had in 1963.

We've made a few trades and cash deals over the winter which I think will help us. However, our basic need is for guys like Brooks Robinson, Jerry Adair and Jack Brandt to come back with good years after slipping quite a bit in '63.

As far as I'm concerned, there's no reason why they shouldn't because they are all good ball players. When you consider that Jim Gentile and Al Smith, since traded, also had bad years at the plate, you can understand why we didn't finish higher than fourth.

We did have a couple of weaknesses that I think we have shored up. Last year we had an abundance of right-handed hitters and really could bomb left-handed pitchers. But when the other clubs got wise, we saw nothing but right-handed pitchers and we didn't do much with them.

We traded Gentile to get Norm Siebern in order to improve our hitting consistency and to increase our speed. We got Willie Kirkland for Al Smith to get a left-handed hitter and also to improve our outfield defense and we drafted outfielder Lou Jackson from Toronto, again to add left-handed power. We also have picked up Harvey Haddix to fill a need for a left-handed reliever in the bullpen.

Our best looking rookie appears to be Sam Bowens, up from Rochester. Bowens, who hit .285 with 22 homers, will be given the chance to play every day in right field. If he doesn't hit right-handers too well, we can platoon him with Kirkland or Jackson. I have a feeling, though, that Bowens is going to be tough to get out of there.

We have some rookie pitchers, four of them, who could make it but chances are we will go pretty much with what we had last year. We have Steve Barber, Milt Pappas and Robin Roberts as starters along with young Dave McNally and Mike McCormick. I look for the last two to have good years. They both came fast late last season.

We'd get a real shot in the arm if Chuck Estrada could snap back following his operation (right elbow for spur calcium deposits) last September. We aren't counting on him yet, but we hope to be pleasantly surprised. Our bullpen is one of the best around. We have Stu Miller, Dick Hall and Wes Stock as right-handers and the lefty Haddix which should be a formidable crew.

Jean Saubert Wins Ladies' SLALOM

GARMISCH - Partenkirchen, Germany (AP)—Olympic skiing star Jean Saubert of Lakeview, Ore., captured the ladies' special slalom championship at the international Kandahar races Saturday.

The spunky Oregon State coed flashed down the 340-meter course with 39 gates twice in 32.98 and 35.99 second for a 68.97 total. Her time for the first was the best of the field and she was runner-up in the second heat.

Jean-Claude Killy of France won the men's giant slalom as many favorities tumbled out of contention. Jimmy Heuga, Olympic slalom bronze medalist from Tahoe, City, Calif., was second; Billy Kidd, the youngster from Stowe, Vt., who won the Olympic slalom silver medal, was sixth; and Buddy Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., was eighth in the field of 110.

Miss Saubert, 21-year-old winner of Olympic silver and bronze medals at the Winter Games at Innsbruck this month, beat out Olympic gold medalist Marielle Goitschel in the women's race.

The 18-year-old member of France's celebrated sister skiing team was second in the opening run in 34.50 and first in the other in 35.09 for a 69.59 total. Marielle won the combined title for ladies, with her runner-up placing in Saturday's slalom and Friday's giant slalom. Miss Saubert, eighth in the giant slalom, took second in the combined standings.

Barbie Henneberger of Germany was third in the special slalom in 35.30-38.29—73.95. Two other stars, Christine Goitschel and Edith Zimmerman of Austria, lost their chances for victory in dramatic falls.

Miss Zimmerman, winner of the giant slalom here, missed a gate on her second run and skidded off the track. Mis Goitschel missed two gates in a downhill plunge.

The 20-year-old Killy, who called his victory the "surprise of my life," twisted down the long, sharply dropping 2,850-meter run in 3 minutes, 1.97 seconds.

Heuga's time was 3:02.53; Gerhard Nenning of Austria was third in 3:03.29; Kidd was clocked at 3:05.83 and Werner at 3:06.70.

Four top competitors — Karl Schranz and Egon Zimmermann of Austria, Wolfgang Bartels of Germany and Joos Minsch of Switzerland—all fell on No. 38 of the 67 gates.

"We had quite a meeting up there," cracked Schranz.

Ken Hubbs, Cubs Infielder, Killed in Plane Crash

PROVO, Utah (UPI) —Slender Ken Hubbs, who burst into baseball stardom two seasons ago as a rookie with the Chicago Cubs, was found dead Saturday along with a companion in the wreckage of a light plane in nearby Utah Lake.

Sandy-haired Hubbs, a tall, quiet fellow with big, sure hands that gave him prowess on the playing field, and Dennis E. Doyle were killed instantly in the crash two days ago, according to searchers who found the bodies. They were on a return flight from Provo Airport to Morrow Field near their hometown of Colton, Calif.

Seconds after takeoff Thursday morning from the field five miles from the lake, Hubbs' new red-and-white, single-engine Cessna 172 apparently nosedived into the water. The plane smashed into an ice-covered section of the lake 200 yards south of desolate Bird Island.

The motor and fuselage plunged to the bottom of the lake and the remainder of the craft was scattered over the ice. The water was an estimated 10 to 20 feet deep.

Hubbs and Doyle, both 22, had taken off as a snowstorm spread over the area. Utah Aeronautics Director Harlon Bement described the weather as "very unfavorable for flying."

They were not reported missing until late Friday when Doyle failed to show up for work as scheduled. A widespread search over parts of Utah, Nevada and California was organized and an armada of light planes took off at dawn.

Myron Jense, Provo Airport manager, and Bement spotted the wreckage near the island at mid-morning. Jense said there was "no chance they could have survived because the water froze into the wreckage and then was covered by a new snowfall.

Hubbs, National League rookie of the year in 1962, attended Brigham Young University at Provo briefly before signing a bonus contract with the Cubs. Previously, he was all-state and all-conference prep star and student body president at Colton High School.

His first year in the majors was a sizzler. He not only broke Al (Red) Schoendienst's National League field mark but also Bobby Doerr's major league record for second basemen of 73 games without an error. Hubbs went for 78 consecutive games without an error.

Liston, Clay In Final Training

By JACK CUDDY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Champion Sonny Liston and challenger Cassius Clay enter the final week of training Sunday for the richest heavyweight title fight in history.

For their 15-rounder Feb. 25 at the Miami Beach Convention Hall, the all-sources financial target now is $7.24 million.

That's the "projected" total which Americans and foreigners will pay for the live gate, theater-television, radio and movie privileges of finding out whether challenger Clay's fists are as mighty as his mouth.

That's the figure given today by Jack Nilon of Chester, Pa., advisor to the champion and a most alert watchdog for all of Sonny's earnings — since Jack gets 50 per cent of those earnings after training expenses (probably about $100,000) have been deducted.

Twenty-two-year-old Cassius of Louisville, Ky. — the poetic prognosticator — predicts an eight-round knockout over the 30-year-old champion, now living in Denver, Colo. In his latest fight with Henry Cooper at London last June 18, Cassius forecast a fifth-round kayo and achieved it, after climbing off the canvas. That was his 19th straight victory and 15th kayo as a professional.

Nevertheless, champion Sonny is a prohibitive 7-1 favorite in the betting because he required only a total of six minutes and 14 seconds to score first-round kayoes in his three latest fights — two with ex-champion Floyd Patterson and one with Albert Westphal of Germany.

"I hit that Westphal the hardest of anybody I fought," Liston explains. "I didn't mean to put him away so quick." The time was 1:58 of the first round. Patterson went out in 2:06 and 2:10.

The betting is even money that Cassius doesn't answer the bell for the sixth round and at 8-5 that he doesn't come out for the 11th frame.

Ortiz TKO's Flash Elorde In 14th to Defend Title

MANILA (UPI) — Carlos Ortiz of New York successfully defended his world lightweight title Saturday night by scoring a technical knockout in the 14th round over world junior lightweight champion Flash Elorde of the Philippines and setting up a title defense against Kenny Lane in April.

Ortiz, hardly ever in trouble against Elorde, won the bout when referee James Wilson stepped in and called a halt after one minute and 44 seconds of the 14th round. Ortiz, 27, was hitting Elorde, who never has been knocked off his feet in 92 professional bouts, almost at will when Wilson decided the Filipino had had enough.

According to conditions of the bout, the winner must meet Lane, the top-ranked lightweight, in a title bout at Puerto Rico on April 4. Ortiz, who once held the junior lightweight title, already has beaten Lane twice.

Saturday night's victory was Ortiz' 42nd against only four losses. He started slowly, stepped up the pace after the 10th round and then went to work on Elorde in the 14th round.

Elorde, who has won 71 fights and now lost 20 with two draws, started the 13th as if he knew he needed a knockout to win. He made a strong showing in the first minute of the round when he rocked Ortiz with a flurry of body punches, but before the session was over, Ortiz had the Filipino in trouble.

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has declared an amnesty for an unknown number of political prisoners, including at least three one-time followers sentenced to life improisonment for p lotting against his regime, informed sources said Thursday.

The amnesty was declared on the eve of Bairam holidays which end the Moslem holy month of Ramadan.

The Egyptian government never has disclosed how many political prisoners now are in jail, though they are known to include several hundred Communists.

Information Act To Effect Game And Fish Group

A. J. Christiansen, president of the Colorado Wildlife Federation, has tagged the Information Coordination Act, HB 1043, as having "far reaching" effects on the state Game, Fish and Parks Department. Christiansen, one of the leading conservationists in the state, said the bill might place some measure of control over the Game, Fish and Parks Department in the hands of a single man, Richard Eckles, State Coordinator of Natural Resources.

The House bill, currently tied up in the Senate State Affairs Committee, provides for coordination of information issued by all state agencies. It is aimed at saving the state up to $65,000 in agency publications.

However, Christiansen pointed out that it could be harmful to the operation of the state wildlife department. Under one section of the bill, control of all Game, Fish and Parks Department publications, up to and including the annual big game hunting regulations and fishing regulations, passes into the hands of the natural resources coordinator.

Christiansen said there is cause to think that the bill would damage content of the state outdoor magazine, "Colorado Outdoors," which has proven extremely popular with non-resident sportsmen.

In a letter to Senator Roy McVickers of Wheatridge, opposing the bill, the CWF president pointed out the Game, Fish and Parks Department is "self-supporting from license money" and that this "might just be another way to try and get some Game and Fish monies."

Operation of the Game, Fish and Parks Department is financed by fishing and hunting license sales and does not involve any tax funds.

OSCAR WINNER ED BEGLEY AFTER FATHER OF YEAR

HOLLYWOOD — Ed Begley won an Oscar and now he's going out for the father of the year award. The 62-year-old actor and his bride of 38 become parents this fall. Between them they already have five children ranging in age from 19 to 12. Ed must be out to break Bing Crosby's record.

The time to quit is when you are ahead, and that's what Dick Wesson, producer of Petticoat Junction, has in mind. He's retirmg from the top-rated TV show in June to branch out with his own company in TV and movies. He has a service comedy series and a screen comedy called "Do You Take This Man?" Dick, once an actor, has worked with Paul Henning on the Bob Cummings and Jackie Cooper shows, and took over Petticoat so Henning could devote himself to the Beverly Hillbillies.

James B. Harris, producer of "Lolita," can be seen at the Losers Club in Los Angeles never on Sunday but only on Monday nights, playing the drum. He joins the Corky Hale quartet as a regular until filming starts on his "Bedford Incident." It will come as a shock to most of his pals that he's a fine jazz drummer. Only Tuesday he renewed his membership in the musicians' union.

Dick Van Dyke is saddened that he isn't able to do another Danny Kaye show this year, but flattered at the invitation. He said: "I never learned so much before. Working with Danny was the experience of my life."

My friend, Chris Fox, of El Paso, Tex., sent me "The Pioneers," a magazine of stories about his neck of the woods. One about Wyatt Earp says the highly-touted gunman of the west visited El Paso only once. In a space of two minutes he saw two men shot down in a gunfight left El Paso shortly after never to return. The place was too tough for Earp. When Hugh O'Brian returns from Acapulso, I must ask him how he got so much mileage out of a fraidy cat like that. ¼

When Red Skelton goes to work, Liberace's set to play a sheriff on his show. He'll be the first sequined sheriff on record.

Jane Fonda's back in New York and about to begin a tour in behalf of "Sunday in New York," which ends here March 12. Then she'll start Blake Edwards' "The Great Race" with Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis. Everett Freeman has one he wants her for — "Perils of Paula."

At the preview of "Molly Brown" the fans said Harve Presnell was the star. Now Metro's looking for a starring role for him. He'd like the story of Lucky Baldwin, bought years ago for Clark Gable and never made. Presnell knew the Baldwin family well; in fact, he worked for them.

Mickey Rooney has written a satirical comedy called "Love and Let Love" for him and Judy Garland. He's also scripted "Five Leaf Clover" which he'll do with Pat O'Brien in Ireland in May. Wants the Abbey Players as supporting actors. Claims he'll do four pictures in the next 18 months without studio money or cooperation.

Buddy Ebsen guests with Danny Kaye on the 26th, but no one's telling what will happen. Will Danny go hillbilly?

That cute Robert Morse goes into "Quick Before It Melts." No, it doesn't refer to ice cream. He's sent on an expedition to the South Pole as a reporter.

John Gavin's Destry opened Friday night on TV.

Jim Garner goes to London for the command performance. His picture, "Move Over, Darling," is being run but neither the queen nor her sister will attend.

APOSTLES

The twelve apostles of Jesus Christ were Andrew, Bartholomew (or Nathanael), James, James the son of Zebedee, John, Judas Iscariot, Matthew, Peter, Philip, Simon, Thaddeus and Thomas.

Pikes Peak Curriculum Group To Meet at CC

The Pikes Peak Area Curriculum Group will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, 7:30 a.m., Rastall Center, Colorado College. Dr. Frank Krutzka, English department chairman and chairman of the Colorado College Teacher Education Committee will be the spekaer and discussion leader. Dr. Krutzka will discuss the findings of the committee on trends in teacher education.

The Area Curriculum Group holds meetings on the third Tuesday of every month at Colorado College. Educators attending represent all of the area public secondary school districts, and include the USAF Academy, Colorado Southern College, and Colorado College.

John Asbury, principal of the Air Academy Junior-Senior High School has announced that next week, Monday thru Friday has been designated as "Open House Week" at the school. According to Asbury, "The purpose of our visitation week is to encourage parents, patrons, and friends of Air Academy High School to visit with us and become better acquainted with the faculty and curriculum."

Parents are invited to visit at any time between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Members of the Board of Education for School District No. 20, USAF Academy, met Wednesday evening for a dinner meeting with elementary teacher representatives from the district's four elementary schools.

This meeting was a part of a program to interpret the district instructional program to the board of education. Teachers represented the Black Forest, Woodmen Valley, Pine Valley and Douglass Valley elementary schools.

Substations Now Under Construction

Two new electric substations are under construction and will be placed in service this year by the electric division of the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities.

One is in Crystal Hills in Manitou Springs and the other at the Manitou hydro plant, according to R. D. Nixon, director of Utilities.

Scheduled to go into service in July is a new substation on East Pikes Peak Avenue south of U.S. Highway 24 and a mile east of the 115 KV interconnection.

Also scheduled this year is a new substation at the Martin Drake power plant, replacing the switch gear inside the plant which was extensively damaged by fire Dec. 3.

This new station will provide adequate facilities fur future growth and will include two units, each with 12 megawatt transformers and four circuits in the switchgear.

The December fire caused switchgear and structural damage estimated at $50,000. A cracked bushing in a network transformer at the rear of the J. C. Penny building and failure of a bus tie breaker to open at the plant were principal factors in dumping the generating system's load into the 13,800 switchgear. Extreme heat generated in the copper bus bars ignited insulation and virtually melted equipment in the switchgear and breaker units.

Nixon also reported that north substation transformers will be changed this year, one to be rewound and one new one to be added.

They're something special at SAFEWAY

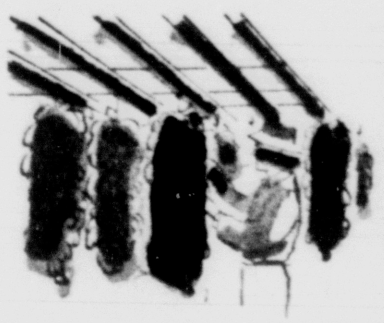
Bananas

When you talk with our banana experts, you know they really enjoy eating the golden fruit. Perhaps that's one reason these men take such extra special care with the bananas we sell at Safeway. They start by selecting the plumpest, most perfect, fully-mature green bananas that come from Bananaland. Gently, they place this fruit into Safeway's own temperature-controlled ripening rooms. There it stays for the exact time necessary to slowly ripen "from inside out" for peak flavor and for the perfect color which says "Now's the time."



With tender care, the delicate, fully-ripened bananas are packed for their smooth ride to our store near your home. Just the amount the store expects to sell right away is included in each delivery. At Safeway, you'll find bananas are always "something special."

Personalines

For the fourth successive year, a Colorado Springs woman has been given the regional Golden Hat Award by the Millinery Institute of America, of New York City. This year's award for 1963 went to Mrs. Peter Labowskie of Broadmoor.

Last year Mrs. George Bancroft received the award, and in 1961 and 1962, Mrs. Harry Francis received the designation.

The Millinary Institute gives the national Golden Hat awards to a small number of celebrities each year, plus about 150 regional awards, and of these, Mrs. Labowskie's was given for the Pikes Peak Region.

Prof. Amanda Ellis of Colorado College announces that her Twentieth Century Literature and Prose - Fiction students, inspired by the picture of the proposed Center of Performing Arts in a recent issue of Life Magazine, sent a generous contribution for the Center.

Miss Ellis explains that efforts have been made for some time to create a Center, such as many other countries already have: Congress donated a tract of land facing the Potomac for the building and the late President Kennedy secured an archiect whose drawing for a 31 million dollar edifice was included in the Life Magazine article. Congress has already appropriated more than half the amount needed, provided the remaining thirteen million is raised by private subscription.

Mrs. Kennedy has been one of the prime movers of the project and the building would be named for the late President.

Miss Ellis states that Italy has already offered to donate the marble for the edifice.

Miss Mary E. Anderson was the inspiration for a bridal shower given last week by Mrs. J. Fred Gordon, 115 Chamberlin Ave., and Mrs. Clinton H. Woodruff, at the Gordon home.

Miss Anderson became the bride of Capt. John N. Smith Saturday, Feb. 15.

Guests were Mrs. H.C. Duffield, grandmother of the honoree; Mrs. D. Anderson, her mother; Mrs. Sally McGinley, Mrs. Ben Stewart, Mrs. Edward Patrick, Mrs. Emil Roper, Mrs. J.E. McCormick, Mrs. Larry Tuling, Mrs. Frank Raechio, Mrs. Stan LaShelle, Miss Suzie Allanson, Miss Charlene Hager, Miss Sheryl Davis, Miss Betty Young and Miss J. McCool.

Jack H. Smith, manager of Walgreen's, was in Pocatello, Idaho, last week to attend the golden anniversary celebration of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Smith.

They were the guests of honor at an open house given by their children on Feb. 8. The couple has eight children, 19 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. They were married Feb. 13, 1914 in the Latter Day Saints Temple in Salt Lake City.

Miss Portia Melton and Miss Charlotte Wear were recently pledged to Delta Xi sorority at Colorado State College, Greeley.

Miss Melton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Melton, and Miss Wear is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. John F. Wear, all of Colorado Springs.

They are: Sharon Lucille Colby, Timothy Aldridge Jaynes, Thomas Arthur Wind and Millicnet Noel Roberts.

A Colorado Springs student at Western State College, Gunnison, Neomi Olsen, will have the lead role of Juliet Moulsworth in the comedy, "Romanoff and Juliet," by Peter Ustinov, on Feb. 26 and 27.

Miss Phyllis Posnar, a freshman at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan., is on the Dean's list for the first semester. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Selig Posner of 1015 Venus Dr.

Two 1962 graduates of Palmer High School have been tapped for membership in the University of Colorado chapter of Sigma Epsilon Sigma, sophomore girls' honorary.

They are Pamela Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Peterson fo 428 E. Jefferson St.; and Penelope Sabol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Sabol of 1335 N. El Paso St.

Miss Mary Ann Bishop of 18 E. Bijou St. has been named to the Dean's List at Colorado College here for outstanding academic achievement during the fall semester. A junior, she had a 3.72 grade point average out of a possible 4. Miss Bishop is the daughter of Mrs. William Bishop of 18 E. Bijou.

Mr. and Mrs. William French, formerly of Colorado Springs, now of Leadville, will be the guests of honor at an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. today at the home of Mr. French's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Avery French of 823 E. Boulder St., on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The party is being given by their three children, Sally, Carol Ann and Rell.

He is the son of Mrs. Ottabell W. Haigler, now of Santa Monica, Calif., and the late Winfred Haigler; and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Haigler of 1814 N. Cascade Ave. An April wedding is planned, after which the couple will live in California.

Spectacular Flower and Garden Show To Be Largest Ever Staged in Springs

Mrs. Morris Esmiol, general chairman in charge of the stupendous task of producing a Flower and Garden Spectacular at the City Auditorium in June, announces that an elaborate and comprehensive floor plan has already been made by E. S. Richter, director of the Colorado Springs Parks and Recreation Dept. and Delmar Doty, assistant planning consultant.

The asymmetrical arrangements are cleverly placed to give ample aisle space for easy flow of traffic from one display to another. Already many spaces are allotted to the various garden clubs, nurserymen, florists, horticultural groups and individuals who will participate. Mrs. Al Hill of Dallas and Colorado Springs is one of those planning a display. Garden groups of the various military wives' organizations are also planning to participate. Valuable awards will be made.

The project is sponsored by the Broadmoor Garden Club, of which Mrs. Esmiol is a member. She is basing plans for the delightful show on ideas gleaned from many similar shows she has attended and judged in large cities, including New York and Chicago.

In addition to the show in the main auditorium, Mrs. Esmiol states that there will be an educational Section in the Little Theatre and the adjoining Little Lounge, where Mrs. Eugene Lilly will be in charge of exhibits, demonstrations, moving pictures and programs. There will be a snack bar-chuck wagon in the West Lounge, so that flower lovers may spend as much time as they wish enjoying the show.

There are few women whose training, experience and background would qualify them to undertake such a gigantic task as Mrs. Esmiol is doing. But she has spent much time in study and activity, as well as travel, and judging.

Mrs. Esmiol became a Federated Judge about ten or twelve years ago, and in 1958 became a Garden Club of America Judge. She completed five courses in Denver, over a period of five years, which included judging and exhibiting, in order to become a Federated Judge. Her designation as a Garden Club of America Judge was by selection and invitation.

Mrs. Esmiol attended a post graduate symposium of the Federated Garden Clubs in 1955, and another post graduate symposium held by the Garden Club of America in 1957, both at the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts in New York City.

In order to keep abreast of the newest trends, Mrs. Esmiol attended a special conference on flower show schedules and judging at Lake Forest in 1958, and the same year attended a symposium sponsored by the Winnetka Garden Club of America at the Palmer House in Chicago.

In 1960, Mrs. Esmiol studied at the Segetsu School of Flower Arranging, both in Honolulu and Tokyo, Japan. Over the years, she has conducted many classes in Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs.

Her work as a Federated Judge has taken her all over Colorado for many years, and in the last four years, by invitation of the Garden Club of America, she has judged at the International Flower Show in New York City, The World Flower Show in Chicago, and in Philadelphia. She has exhibited and won three ribbons in New York, and one first in Chicago. She won first place in the Judges' Class in the last state federated show held at Elitches Gardens in 1955, and won the sweepstakes on entries for the most points from any club.

After judging at the New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston shows in 1962, Mrs. Esmiol and her husband left for Europe in April, where they found spring in full bloom, from the Mediterranean to the Scandinavian countries. They enjoyed roses in Madrid, and tulips in Holland, in the Trade Mart, in the fields, and in the Kukenhoff Gardens. They visited the Carl Miller Gardens in Stockholm and the Vegelands Gardens in Oslo. In London they saw the Kew and Kensington Gardens, as well as famous gardens in France, Italy, and most important, the big Chelsea flower show. In Portugal, Greece and Scotland, they enjoyed particularly the wonderful wildflowers.

"Needless to say," said Mrs. Esmiol, "after such a full exposure to flowers, gardens and shows, I declared a 'Sabbatical' upon my return home, from which I am only now emerging, to help the Broadmoor Garden Club stage the first big flower show Colorado Springs has ever had."

A. Earl Bryson Weds Mrs. Dorothy Printup Wing

The marriage of Mrs. Dorothy Printup Wing and Mr. A. Earl Bryson, both of Colorado Springs, was solemnized at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 15 in St. Stephen's Chapel of Grace Episcopal Church. The Rev. John C. Mott performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

Miss Mitchell attended the Kent School for Girls in Denver and was graduated from Dominican School in San Rafael, Calif., in 1960. She will be graduated this spring from the University of Colorado where her sorority is Pi Beta Phi. "New talent discovery. It's a girl. Folk Singer. She's just opened at the Green Spider. Name Is Kay Knox. She's 20 and didn't even begin folk singing until last spring.

"She's unfinished, is Kay. That is, her newness still shows. But it's the vocal quality you come to listen to. That and the earnest way she tries to tell a song. Kind of grabs you."

Girls Scout Troop to Enter 'Tournament of Tables'

"My, but its exciting to be doing something big just like Real People do," said one Girl Scout after her troop voted to enter the Symphony Guild-sponsored Tournament of Tables in which women's clubs of the city will compete for prizes in a artistic table-setting contest.

When the girls of Troop 289 heard of the Tournament of Tables it impressed them as an excellent fund-raising plan and they anxiously inquired if the invitation to "all womens organizations" in the city included Girl Scouts.

Reassured that it did, the girls eagerly began planning their table. Admitting that it is "a little scarey" to compete with such adult organizations as ARADCOM Officers Wives, the Junior League and the DAR, the girls still felt that the challenge of doing something big "Like real people" offset their possible disadvantage in age and experience.

The Tournament will be held April 22 and 23 in the Terrace Room of the Antlers Hotel when each club competing will have on display a table set for six persons unsing any decor desired. Tickets to view the display will be sold to the public with a proportionate share of the profits going to each competing club and in addition two $100 prizes will be awarded to the best tables.

Cathy Dover, patrol leader of Troop 289 will be chairman of the project for her group and will be assisted by Barbara Mendenhall, Jan McClintock and Cathy Cox. Troop 289 is composed of 40 senior scouts who are ninth graders with Mrs. Don Taylor, advisor, and Mrs. Robert Pepin, program consultant. The troop is in Yucca Neighborhood of Wildflower district and meets at East Methodist church.

Entries to date in the Symphony Guild project include Women's Board of St. Francis Hospital, Skyway Garden Club, Ent Officers' Wives Garden Club, Junior League, Air Force Academy Officers Wives Club, B 'nai Israel Sisterhood, Ft. Carson Officers' Wives Club, Altrusa Club, Kinnikinnik Chapter DAR, Ent Officers Wives Club, Soroptimist Club, ARADCOM Officers' Wives Club and Girl Scout Troop 289. A non-competive display table with Japanese motif will also be provided by the Sister-City committee.

Closing date for entries in the tournament is March 1 and further information may be obtained from Mrs. Robert Barry 635-0814; Mrs. Samuel H Brown 634-4574 or Mrs. Cortland Coll 634-3468.

Double Duty Furniture Helps

CHICAGO (UPI) — If you're worried about furnishing a small room, or small house or apartment, take a tip from the world of commercial design. Look for furniture that will do more than one thing.

Morton Textiles and Furniture, a Chicago - based firm which has furnished more than 120,000 hotel and motel rooms, says double - duty furniture is just as useful in homes as in commercial rooms, which often serve more than one function.

—A small dining table which doubles as a game table and fits living room decor.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It's Inherited!

DEAR ABBY: I made what I thought was a good suggestion and it started a whole family fight. My daughter recently got a diamond ring and plans to be married this summer. My sister's daughter announced her engagement New Year's Eve, and she plans to be married this summer, too. When I mentioned to the other members of my family that I thought it would be a good idea if the kids got together and had a double wedding, they said if they had to buy TWO wedding presents they expected to go to TWO weddings. And when I explained to my sister that we could save on flowers, music, food, drinks, etc., she said they could afford to put on their own wedding as they weren't in the poorhouse yet. What's wrong with my family? Or is it me? Next time I open my big mouth, I wish somebody would kick me hard. —MEANT WELL

DEAR MEANT: Your suggestion was motivated by your desire to get as much mileage out of a dollar as possible. So was their reaction. It must run in your family.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a wonderful man. He is a European and his first name is difficult, but not impossible, to pronounce. When I introduced him to my mother for the first time she didn't even attempt to pronounce his name. She simply said, "I shall call you John." He smiled, good - humoredly, thinking she was joking but she has been calling him "John" ever since. I know he feels hurt, and I don't blame him. I think it's insulting. Don't you think my mother should learn to pronounce my future husband's name? It has bothered me for several months. —BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: Why the silent burn? Teach your mother to pronounce your fiance's name, and insist that she address him as such. (P.S. Why doesn't John speak for himself?)

DEAR ABBY: You should have told the Mason's wife, who felt left out because her husband wouldn't share the secrets of the lodge with her, that she and her husband should join the Order of the Eastern Star. It's not ALL secret.

Sincerely,
A MASON IN

HEART FUND

APPRECIATES POSTER — Mary Beth Freddes, a healthy example of what the Heart Drive can do. In this case, the chief value of the diagnosis was to relieve anxiety and to allow Mary Beth to live a more normal life. (Stewart's Photo)

Heart Fund Workers Will Open Door-to-Door Drive

Hundreds of Heart Sunday volunteers will start a careful canvass of homes in and around Colorado Springs Monday. These workers will be easily identified by the envelopes they carry and the badges they wear.

"Altho this drive is usually thought of as the 'Women's Canvass', don't be surprised if the neighbor who knocks at your door is a man, for many men will be helping where they are needed. There will also be over 350 young people from the areas high schools canvassing for funds to support heart health," rpeorted Mrs. Murray Weiner, Heart Sunday Chairman.

Why is the interest so keen when it comes to helping the projects of Heart Month? One grateful mother Mrs. Francis Freddes, pinpointed her reasons when she said. "Our worries were lessened thru the first 10 years of our daughter's life because the preventative treatment of the Low Cost Penicillin Program kept Mary Beths chances of strep throat and rheumatic fever at a minimum. She was born with a severe heart murmur and we were constantly concerned that she couldn't have survived a bout with rheumatic fever."

Last Spring, our doctors requested that Mary Beth go thru the tests at the rheumatic Fever Diagnostic Clinic. It was only then that we learned the true cause and effect of the congenital heart murmur that had plagued Mary Beth all her life.

Mrs. Francis Freddes will be canvassing 10 blocks for the Heart Sunday Drive. This is five times as much as the average worker is asked to do. But Mrs. Freddes wants to do this much, even tho she is a busy mother of six children, for she knows the relief and assurance that can come from Heart aid supported by drives such as the one starting Monday.

"The cost of medical diagnosing such as Mary Beth had could have been staggering. However, thanks to the Heart Funds, the Freddes family was not charged at all. Mrs. Freddes is taking her own way of repaying the Colorado Heart Assn. Mrs. Murray Wiener said.

There are many stories such as the Freddes story, and we hope that this week's Parade of Dollars will enable many, many other people, young and old, to be helped as Mary Beth was helped."

Expert Urges Book Boosting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A California sociologist feels that books are assuming a diminishing role in the education of contemporary children.

Dr. William Dienstein, of Fresno State College told a recent conference of librarians that "a child gets three-quarters of his education from radio, television and conversation."

The result is that today's youth sees little need for heavy reading.

"If a child doesn't think reading is important," Dr. Dienstein said, "then we have to teach him its importance.

"Libraries must provide people with the opportunity to develop their ability to cope with reality."

Wine Rules Help Hostess Serve Properly

CHICAGO (UPI) — Serving wine properly has an etiquette of its own. One company (Mogen David Wine Corporation) offers these tips:

—Know your wine glass. Stemmed glassware is ideal for enhancing the beauty of wine. The goblet should be clear, without ornamentation to distract from the wine. The stem serves as a handle and prevents the heat of your hand from warming the wine. The bowl of the wine glass should have a 3-4 ounce capacity.

—Placement of the wine glass. In a formal table setting, the wine goblet is always placed to the right of the water glass, above the dinner knife.

—To chill or not to chill. Depending on the wine type and your preference, wine may or may not be chilled. If chilled, refrigerate for an hour.

—To serve wine. Pour a few drops into our own glass first. Taste it and tests its aroma and flavor. Starting at your right, begin serving your guests in order. Twist the bottle slightly after each glass is poured to prevent "drip." Fill glasses only half full. Then, place the bottle on the table within easy reach for guests to help themselves to additional servings.

What wine with what foods? Personal taste and trial are guides to your individual wine preferences. Generally, appetizer wines and white dinner wines are particularly good with seafoods and fowl; red dinner wines are perfect for steaks, roasts or chops; dessert wines, which are usually sweet, go with any desserts; and rose and sparklink wines can be enjoyed with any type of food.

Atomizer War Rocks Industry Fragrant Way

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) —To better please the proboscis, the perfume industry is having its own atomic war—over atomizers.

The man who first proved you could sell the most expensive fragrances to the housewife along Mainsville, U.S.A., started the way be developing a new mechanical atomizer.

Arrayed now against battling Edouard Cournand are proponents or aerosol atomizers using a freon propellant — which Cournand himself had used until recently.

They claim the aerosol is superior. He claims it's inferior.

"The rubber bulb atomizer which was the standby for spraying perfumes and toilet waters for years always had its deficiencies," said Cournand, head of Lanvin Perfums Inc.

"The oils in the perfume sooner or later attacked the rubber and made the bulb leak. Besides it didn't work too well unless it was held absolutely level. Most women like to spray at various angles."

Older plunger atomizers leaked so they couldn't be carried in a bag.

"The development of aerosol propellant provided a fine leakproof spray, but it has three serious drawbacks," Cournand said. His aerosol-backing foes don't agree.

"First," he said, "the propellant changes the fragrance noticeably. Second, the propellant is explosive. If a woman uses it while she or someone close to her is smoking, it could be dangerous.

"Third, because it is explosive, you can use it only in a metal or strong opaque plastic container. One cannot see how much is left in the vial."

Pondering the problem, Cournand said he remembered that the fountain pen people had problems in the early days of high altitude airline travel. Pens leaked as air pressure rose. But somehow the problem was solved.

So Cournand took his problem of making better perfume atomizers to an engineer for a fountain pen company and to a surgical supply house engineer.

"Between them," he said, "they came up with natural spray. It is purely mechanical: it does not leak. It makes a fine spray such as surgeons use in the operating room, and the fragrance is not diluted. No explosive propellant is added."

Public Aid Outlay Compared In the County

The government has just released, in the first report of the kind it has ever issued, data on the amount of money being spent in El Paso County for public aid.

The number of people receiving such assistance, as well as the amount they get each month, are detailed for the local area and for every other part of the country.

The report, entitled "Public Assistance in the Counties of the United States," is from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It shows, for the country as a whole, that the declining rural areas are the ones with the greatest proportion of people requiring assistance. However, the average payments are lowest in those very areas, it finds. The highest are to families and individuals in the far west, the west north central region and the industrial northeast.

In proportion to population, there are fewer residents of El Paso County receiving old-age assistance, which is a major type of aid, than in many sections of the country.

Recipients of such relief, which goes to needy persons over age 65, number 2,731 locally. It is at the rate of 252 per 1,000 men and women in that age group. This compares with the Colorado rate of 319 per 1,000.

The average amount they receive per month is $102 locally.

Assistance is also provided to needy families with dependent children under the age of 18. Of the 52,591 children under 18 in El Paso County, aid is required for 894 of them.

An average of $37 a month is provided for each dependent.

The remaining category covered in the report relates to permanently and totally disabled people in the 18 to 65 group.

Of the 80,312 people locally in that age span, only 201 are receiving aid, the average payment being $81 per month.

The government points out in the report that there is a wide range, as between one area and another, in the amount of aid granted thru these Federally-assisted programs.

It states that it is dependent upon local economic and social conditions.

Judge Asks For Effort to Reduce Divorces

Judge Sherman G. Finesilver of Denver's District Court has called upon members of the legal profession to assume greater leadership in an effort to reduce the alarming rise in the number of divorce cases in the State of Colorado.

Speaking before an institute for lawyers entitled "Legal Problems of Colorado Families" in Colorado Springs Saturday, he stated:

"The legal profession — steeped in its tradition of service to society — should be an integral and moving force to increase family stability.

"Divorce should not be the only answer that the legal profession is prepared to offer in cases of marital discord.

"Colorado law clearly states that the policy of the state is:

"'To discourage divorce and foster the marriage relationship and the reconciliation of estranged spouses, and to take reasonable measures to preserve marriages, especially where minor children are involved.'"

He further stated:

"Every community resource leading to reconciliation should be exhausted before a divorce case is filed. Proper divorce counselling by attorneys, together with other professional assistance, can be most helpful in strengthening many sick marriages.

"On the other hand, proper divorce counselling by attorneys are often necessary to help a client in a bad marriage, and a sincere and conscientious attorney can perform an invaluable service in aiding the emotional, financial, and other preparation of divorced people in the post-divorce period.

"Professional and sincere counselling by an attorney trained in this field can also better help a divorced person to be better educated for a remarriage that often follows a divorce."

He further stated:

"A lawyer who handles a divorce case owes it to himself, his client, and the legal profession to prepare himself with specialized training for this branch of the law, just as he would for other specialties of the law."

"Law school should recognize that divorce counselling should receive their attention the same as other law courses."

Colorado's "appallingly high" divorce rate, compared to national averages of one divorce for every 4-6 marriages, "is posing a major social, economic, and legal challenge to our society," said Judge Finesilver, who has recently completed nearly 13 months as presiding judge in Denver's Domestic Relations Court.

Attributing the rising divorce rate in large measure to teenage marriages, Judge Finesilver advocated marital counselling services starting in high schools and extending through college.

He also pointed out that in 1962 that 16,482 marriage licenses were issued in the State of Colorado, and 9,285 divorce cases were filed in the same year in the state courts, and 5,095 divorce decrees granted.

"Tragically", he added, "children were involved in nearly 65 per cent of all divorce cases."

"Never before is it so necessary for the legal profession, together with the medical profession, greater utilization of trained marriage counsellors, and the clergy, to join forces and efforts to meet the pressing challenge of marriage breakup—a great national tragedy."

Retarded Child Chapter Adds Meeting Speaker

The El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children, Inc., announces an additional speaker for its meeting on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the First Congregational Church. Walter Cogswell, psychiatric social worker of the Family Counselling service of Colorado Springs, will be one of the professional panel who will answer the question "What Can Your Agency Do to Help the Parents of a Retarded Child?"

Cogswell was graduated from Emporia State Teacher's College in 1958. He received his master's degree in social work from the University of Kansas and has worked in the Larned State Hospital out - patient department and the Kansas Neurological Center at Topeka.

He came to Colorado Springs from the Franklin County Guidance Center at Ottowa, Kansas. Married, with a small son, Cogswell lives at 1709 N. Franklin St.

Love Proclaims Engineer's Week For the State

Gov. John A. Love has proclaimed this week "Engineers Week" in honor of the more than 1,400 men and women engineers in Colorado.

This proclamation comes in advance of the 48th annual Engineers' Convention in Denver February 20-22.

In his statement, Gov. Love paid tribute to the "creative skill, resourcefulness and imagination of engineers" for their continuous contribution to the growth and development of the Centennial State.

"These," he said, "serve to remind us that the engineers' profession offers unprecedented opportunity for energetic, able, creative young men and women to provide leadership in the exciting and important tasks of today and tomorrow."

The Engineers' Convention at the Cosmopolitan Hotel will have as its theme "Engineering — A Continuous Contribution."

Principal speakers for the Denver meeting will be Herbert L. Misch, vice president of engineering and research for the Ford Motor Co., and Bryce Bennett, chief engineer for the Idaho Highway Department.

In conjunction with the engineers' meeting will be the 37th annual University of Colorado Highway Engineers' Conference Thursday and Friday.

The Thursday highway sessions will be held in the Memorial Center of the University of Colorado at Boulder, continuing Friday at Denver.
